"MEET ME ON THE GLORIOUS FOURTH! . . . BREAKER! YOU'LL KNOW ME BY MY MURDOCH COSTUME!"

Murdoch Costumes are conspicuous on every Beach and Breaker, because of their very marked superiority as regards fit and smartness. They're a down-right pleasure to wear—give wonderful freedom to the limbs—do not pinch under armpits, and although ample in texture they hold very little water.

Murdoch's Men's 2-piece Mixture Canadian, 3/11.

This is one of the most popular Costumes we sell. Not on account of its low price, don't forget, but because of the value represented. It will give you splendid satisfaction for a very long while. Some people know this as the "long swim" Costume. It's a surprise at 3/11—all colours.

MURDOCH'S WOOLLEN CANADIAN IS A BEAUTY AT 5/11.

Ah! Now we have something really exceptional. Made from delicately spun pure wool, unfadable, perfectly finished at seams, and warranted to give Seasons of service. We guarantee this Canadian to be worth at least 1s more than we ask; but we're able to sell at the price because we bought extra heavily. You can take your pick from a wide variety of handsome colour combinations, 5/11.

MURDOCH'S WOOLLEN "NECK-TO-KNEE," 4/11.

Many men prefer this type of Costume to the Canadian. Certainly it is very smart and comfortable, but, after all, 'tis only a matter of individual preference. It is as nicely and as carefully made as the Canadian style—but, being just one garment, it comes a bit cheaper, that's all.

We sell it at 4/11—it's a novelty—you may prefer it!

NOW, DON'T DECIDE UPON YOUR NEW COSTUME TILL YOU SEE THIS FINE SHOWING AT MURDOCH'S.

NOTES.

The champion two-year-old colt of the current season in England is The Tetrarch, who, at the end of last month, had an unbeaten record of seven races for £11,336; in fact, he was only £34 behind Jest, whose successes in the One Thousand Guineas and the Oaks were worth £11,369. The grey son of Roi Herode held an engagement in the Imperial Produce Stakes at Kempton Park on the 10th inst., but, if he started, he tasted the bitterness of defeat for the first time, that race having been won by the Lally colt, By George. The Tetrarch is a direct tail male descendant of Herod, through Thormanby and his son Atlantic, who won the Two Thousand Guineas for the late Lord Falmouth, and afterwards, through the French horses, Le Sancy, Le Samaritain, and Roi Herode, but there is no blood of Roi Herode which is not English close up, for Le Sancy was out of the Strathconan mare, Gem of Gems, and Clementina, the dam of Le Samaratain, was by Doncaster from Clemence (grand-dam of Carbine), by Newminster, while Roi Herode's dam, Roxelane, was by War Dance (son of Galliard), whose dam was by Uncas from Rose of York, by Speculum. There is no St. Simon blood in The Tetrarch, but he goes back to Galopin (sire of St. Simon), through Galliard, the sire of War Dance, and he has the Hagioscope—Speculum strain of Vedette, through Castania, the dam of Vahren and Rose of York.

Latest English sporting files show that, thanks to the achievements of Aboyeur, Fairy King, Stornoway, Craganour, Hapsburg, and Glorvina, the defunct Desmond easily held his place at the head of the list of winning sires, with 32 wins, value £27,457 10s; Sundridge, whose position is due to the classic races for "young ladies," secured by Jest, comes next with 24 wins, worth £21,443; then follow William the Third, with 23 wins, worth £11,658, to which Roseworthy, Pilliewinkie, and Birlingham were the principal contributors; Roi Herode, who had only two representatives on the winning list—The Tetrarch and the Miss Donovan colt—for eight wins, worth £11,436, all of which gave £100 won by the Miss Donovan colt, was earned by The Tetrarch; Rock Sand (now doing stud duty in France), six wins, for £11,127, to which the American-bred Tracery contributed £9170, and High Rock £1069; Gallinule (dead), 10 wins for £11,090 10s, and whose best representatives were Night Hawk (St. Leger), and Absolute; Spearmint (son of Carbine), 32 wins for £10,939, to which Lance Chest, Brakespear, Augur, and Catmint were the principal contributors; Isinglass, 14 wins for £10,713, of which Louvois was responsible for £9075, while the others to run into five figures were Picton, 22 wins for £10,465, and Santoi, 38 wins for £10,181 5s.

The Grafton horse Crown Grant, for whom Mr. Adrian Knox gave 700 guineas as a yearling, won his second race at the Charities' meeting at Newcastle last week. His first success was in a trial stakes at the A.J.C. Spring Meeting, 1911, and in the meantime his many disappointments caused Mr. Knox to get rid of the son of Grafton and Lady Lochiel, who was purchased by his present owner for 300 guineas. He has at length proved a payable proposition, for by winning the Charities' Handicap at Newcastle he landed £1200 in wagers, and so has made good for his recent purchaser, who should be well satisfied with his bargain. The son of Grafton was out under silk in the Canterbury Handicap on the following Saturday, and disputed favouritism with Zena; but neither had anything to say at the business end of the trip.

The list of winning stallions in the United States of America is this year headed by the native-bred Broomstick (by Ben Brush), whose son, King Broomstick, imported to this State, won a couple of races in Queensland last season. Broomstick's progeny had, up to the middle of September, credited him with 11,000 sovs., and his nearest rival was Starshoot (who headed the list of winning stallions in the seasons 1911 and 1912), with about 9500 sovs. Uncle (a son of Starshoot), who was recently sold for 7000 sovs., is sixth on the list with eight winners of 33 races, worth 7500 sovs., all of whom were two-year-olds. Peter Pan, who includes among his winning progeny Pennant, who captured the Futurity Stakes, is sixteenth on the list, with five winners of 13 races, worth 4800 sovs. At one time the Futurity Stakes was worth over 10,000 sovs., but although it is still the richest stake in the United States, repressive legislation has greatly reduced its value to the winner, and this year it was only worth about 3000 sovs.

The Invader gelding Mount Terrell made his debut at Wagga last week, over the battens, his pilot being N. Steiner, who, after the race, was interviewed by the stipendiary steward, and cautioned with regard to keeping too far away from his field. Mount Terrell, who ran "green," took some liberties with the hurdles in the early stages, but shaped better towards the end of the trip. The race was captured by King Lucre, who, for some time past, has been racing with more or less success in the metropolitan district. King Lucre got a cut on his off hind leg, which prevented him from taking part in the race over the obstacles on the second day of the meeting; but unless the injury is greater than anticipated, he will be sent on to Melbourne to try his luck.

The positions of the leading English jockeys when the last mail left England, was such as to create great interest as to whom the premiership will fall at the close of the current season. F. Wootton, who held the coveted position for the last three years, has, with increasing weight, reduced the number of his mounts, and, up to the early part of September, was a long way behind P. Maher and A. Whalley, but latest files show that the Sydney lad has passed Whalley, and was, towards the close of that month, within 14 points of the American rider, and just in front of Whalley.

A substantial increase of 500 sovs. has been made in the added money for Tattersall's Cup, to be decided at Randwick on New Year's Day, bringing it up to 1500 sovs., which, with nomination fees, forfeit, and a sweepstakes of 10 sovs., will make the prize worth winning. Tattersall's Cup has been the principal event in the annual outing provided by Tattersall's Club since Bulginbar won in 1868, and among the winners in the meantime were Morpeth, Coriolanus, Tom Brown, Acme, Sir William, Quiver, Old Clo', and Postillion.

A New Zealand exchange states that Mr. E. J. Watt, the owner of Wimmera, Midnight Sun, Athenic, and Co., has cabled to his trainer that he was not bringing any of his team from Australia. Midnight Sun held an engagement in the New Zealand Cup, but, according to these arrangements, the son of Multiform will not have a chance to repeat his victorious performance of last year at Riccarton. He did not have a particularly good passage in the Caulfield Cup.

The death is reported from New Zealand of the eight-years-old Gold Lace, by Gold Reef from Kahuwai, by Quilt from Brooklet, by Torpedo from Rivulet, by Javelin. Gold Lace won the Northern Oaks at Auckland in 1909.

The Wangaratta (Vic.) trainer, Fred. Hoysted, has taken in hand Mr. H. A. Hay's three-years-old filly, Mittalla, by Grafton (imp.) from Nak-Our, who is by Pilgrim's Progress from Athata, by Trident from Nellie, by Tim Whiffler (imp.), and consequently a near relation to Beragoon, whose dam, Wigelmar, is by Bill of Portland (imp.) from Etraweenie, by Trenton from Nellie; and Andelosia, whose dam, Diffidence, is by Pilgrim's Progress from Etraweenie.

Monoquil, the dam of Soltano, last month produced a filly to General Latour (son of imported Soult).

The profits of racing in this State may be gauged by the fact that the Newcastle Jockey Club provided £450 prize-money for the meeting held last week in aid of the local charities, and the sum available for distribution was £320. The annual race meeting in aid of the Newcastle charities was inaugurated many years ago by the late Mr. Clarence Hannell, and his successors in office have carried on the good work, which helps to relieve sickness and suffering of those in need.

In Australia few prominent men adopt assumed names in their racing affairs (writes a New Zealand sporting scribe). "Mr. J. Baron," the owner of Prince Foote and Duke Foote, is one of the number that prefer the assumed name, and that, too, in the face of his being a well-known personality, and one enjoying great wealth. "Mr. S. A. Rawdon" is another noteworthy Australian racing man who continues to race his horses under an assumed name. In New Zealand there is not, I think, one leading man who races under an assumed name. At one time the late Mr. G. G. Stead raced as "Mr. G. Fraser," but that ceased in the early "eighties." When Hilda, Mary, and Cissy raced in Auckland they did so in the nomination of "Mr. W. Sommerville," and then we had the wealthy syndicate which adopted the name of "Mr. J. Balmain." Latterly, however, our leading racing men have apparently scouted the privilege of registering an assumed name; and this is a sidelight on our racing affairs entitled to be warmly applauded.

The statement cabled from Sydney (says a New Zealand exchange) to the effect that Arthur Oliver, the rider of Soltano in the A.J.C. Derby, broke a stirrup and dropped his whip during the race in question, proves to be one of those little stories based on nothing that get a good start and attain a wide advertisement. Soltano's poor display in the blue riband at Randwick is largely attributed to the colt beating himself, not that it is contended he would have won, for the general opinion held is that a journey of 12 furlongs is beyond his tether at present.

Orchestra (dam of The Cornet and Fugue), who is probably the only Goldsborough mare in New Zealand to-day, is at the Bushy Park stud on a visit to Signor.

The Soult colt Soltano, who won a couple of races during his recent sojourn in Sydney, but missed the A.J.C. Derby, will likely take part in the Great Northern Guineas, to be run at the A.R.C. Spring meeting at Ellerslie next month.

Word comes from New Zealand that La Notte (dam of such good performers as Noctuiform, Midnight Sun, and Nightfall), by Eiridspord (imp.) from La Tosca, by Robinson Crusoe, has produced a filly foal by imported All Black (son of Gallinule).

The trophy which supplements the stake for the Melbourne Cup, 1913, is a solid silver centre-piece, of classic design, and stands 30 inches in height.

LAWN TENNIS.

WET COURTS.

THE USE OF SPIKES.

Less than an inch of rain spoiled the Strathfield tournament last Saturday, for, though the afternoon was fine, the courts were so slippery that all matches except those in the men's championship finals were postponed. In these events the quality of the play suffered on account of the difficulty experienced by the competitors in obtaining a firm foothold. Our players are so accustomed to dry courts that they are more inconvenienced by the wet courts than those players who have more experience of them.

It is practically impossible to move without slipping on courts in such a condition as they were on Saturday unless shoes with spikes are employed, but these were not used by the competitors. They are so seldom necessary that few of our players possess them. On some grounds the use of spiked shoes is prohibited, as they are supposed to injure the turf. It is, however, questionable whether they do any more injury than plain rubber, if so much. Certainly they scratch the grass a good deal, but the injury so caused is probably less than when a whole piece of turf is removed, as frequently happens with rubber shoes. The question of spiked shoes received considerable attention in connection with the Davis Cup matches played in England. The Americans, who are in the habit of using them whether the courts are wet or dry, found that they were not allowed on the centre court at Wimbledon unless rain rendered play impossible without them. While admitting the power to enforce this regulation in the all England championships, the Americans asserted their right to use spikes in the Davis Cup matches, but refrained from employing them in some of the matches in deference to the wish of the All England club.

An opportunity for Australians to participate in a tournament under new conditions is presented by the holding of the championships of the Orient at Manila early next year. In bringing the tournament under the notice of the Australasian Association, the secretary of the meeting stated that competitors were expected from America, China, Japan, and the Straits Settlements. The native Filipinos have taken to the game with keen interest, and some of them are already very proficient. Arrangements have been made for W. T. Johnston and Elia Fottrell, of California, to take part in the meetings. Johnston is the youth who won the Longwood singles this year in America, and is regarded as a probable Davis Cup player in the near future. Fottrell has been prominent in California for some time, his performances indicating that he is not much inferior to the better-known players from that State, such as M'Loughlin, Long, and Bundy. If they could be induced to make their return to California via Australia, the opportunity to see them play would no doubt be welcomed by Australians.

J. C. Parke recently gave further proof of his superiority over all other British players by the manner in which he won the South of England singles championship at Eastbourne. Although Parke's record against the same opponents as those of Dixon in Davis Cup matches had been far better than those of the British Isles team's captain, there were some who inclined to the opinion that Dixon would beat Parke if opposed to him. Strangely enough, though both have been playing for many years in English tournaments, they had not met each other till the semi-final of the singles at Eastbourne. Parke won the first set at 6-3, but Dixon led 5-4 in the second; then Parke won the set in a sensational manner by taking twelve points in succession by extremely brilliant strokes. "Lawn Tennis and Badminton," describing this portion of the match, says:—"It was an extraordinary piece of hard driving and perfect placing; so far as he was concerned his opponent's court consisted merely of 9 inches broad along the base line and down the side lines; no shot of his in the last three games transgressed this limit."

But for Gordon Lowe scratching in the round before the semi-final to his brother, the last four in this event would probably have been those who visited Australia as members of the British Isles team, which would have been a remarkable occurrence in the field of 74 competitors. A. M. Lowe beat Beamish in the other semi-final, and was then beaten by Parke in the final by 3 sets to 1. The entries at Eastbourne were more numerous than ever, 1240 matches having to be played throughout the meeting, of which 506 were in the level events.

FIXTURES.

November 8 to 15.—Australasian championships, at Perth.

GOLF.

ROYAL SYDNEY V. AUSTRALIAN

MANLY CLUB CHAMPIONSHIP.

Contrary to expectations the Australian Golf Club put up a very good fight at Rose Bay on Saturday, only losing by one match. With E. L. Apperly, T. Smith, and G. T. Balcombe away, it would not have been a surprise had they been beaten by 7 to 2, and in the circumstances they did very well to make so close a match of it. C. H. Reading was the only notable absentee from the Royal Sydney ranks. The course, both fairways and greens, was in excellent condition.

H. A. Howden led Royal Sydney against O. H. O'Brien, and both played well, Howden, however, being the better, excelling principally on and near the greens. He was out in 37, having had threes at the third, sixth, and ninth holes, and at that stage was 2 up on O'Brien, who had taken 39 to the turn. Coming home, Howden played brilliantly, and gained a hole on his opponent by the time the thirteenth was reached. A fine 2 gave him another win at the fourteenth, and a good 4 at the fifteenth against the wind gave him the match by 5 and 3. Continuing to play he finished with an approximate 74, as against 78 by O'Brien. Howden's figures were:—

Out: 4, 5, 3, 6, 4, 3, 5, 4, 3—37.
In: 4, 4, 4, 5, 2, 4, 5, 4, 5—37=74

J. S. Marks (R.S.) and N. F. Christoe (A.) had a strenuous match. After an interesting contest they were all square at the sixteenth, when Marks won the seventeenth and Christoe evened at the eighteenth. Playing on they each got poor drives, which found the bunker. Christoe was the better out, and looked a winner, but Marks also reached the green in 3, and luckily stymied Christoe, who lost the hole and the match. The golf in the W. S. Laidley (R.S.)-H. W. M'Lelland (A.), match was anything but good. At the turn M'Lelland, though he had taken 41, was 2 up, his putting having been good, but his long game was all over the place. Coming home Laidley improved, and made the match even at the fourteenth. He then won the fifteenth and sixteenth in well-played fours, and was dormy, a half at the next hole giving him the match, 2 and 1.

H. Terrey (A.) was 1 up on C. W. Rundle at the turn, and by good golf increased his lead until he was dormy 2. Then Rundle took a hand, and won the next three holes, Terrey only winning a good match on the nineteenth. C. L. Mackenzie (A.) was too strong on the day for H. M. Stephen, who was not playing well. They were all square at the fifth, when Mackenzie ran out with a sequence of 11 won holes. Before the sequence was finished he had won comfortably by 7 and 6, and was round in approximately 77.

P. Sydney Jones (A.) was 3 up on J. M. Arnott at the fifth, and 2 up at the ninth. Arnott won the tenth, but could not stop Jones, who forged ahead, and won by 4 and 2. E. J. B. Macarthur (A.) won a good match against H. R. Forbes-Mackay by 2 and 1, and then each side had won 4 games. In the last match, W. A. Windeyer (A.) was expected to beat R. H. Cumming (R.S.), but succumbed badly, the former winning creditably by 5 and 4, the match thus going to Royal Sydney by 5 matches to 4. The club has proved its supremacy for the season by beating the Australian Club in each of the home-and-home matches.

MANLY CLUB CHAMPIONSHIP.

J. B. Ferrier thoroughly earned the title of Manly champion by defeating P. F. S. Spence by 5 and 3. The first two holes were halved, both players finding the ditch in approaching the second. The third was won by Spence in 3 to 4, Ferrier's putt just failing to drop in for a half. At the next hole it was Spence's turn to miss a putt, and Ferrier drew level with a 4. The long fifth (bogey 6) was perfectly played, Ferrier reaching the green with three splendid shots, and Spence being on in 4. Each man ran down his putt, Ferrier winning in 4 to 5. Ferrier duffed his drive at the sixth, but made a splendid recovery, reaching the green, while Spence was short in his approach, and became 2 down. He reduced the deficit by holing in 3 at the seventh, where Ferrier's tee shot was in the rough, but lost ground by losing the eighth, where Ferrier negotiated a very difficult stymie successfully with his mid-iron. The ninth was halved in fours, but was awarded to Spence by the umpire owing to a breach of rule 28, section 1, by Ferrier, who thus turned 1 up.

Coming home, the first three holes were divided, and then Ferrier, with a perfectly-played 2, won the thirteenth, and also secured the long fourteenth in 5 to 6, and the following hole in 4 to 5. Spence won the sixteenth, but Ferrier took the last two holes, and finished the morning round 5 up. He was round in 75, the only serious blemish being a 7 at the second. His figures were:—

Out: 4, 7, 4, 4, 4, 4, 4, 4, 4=39.
In: 3, 4, 5, 2, 5, 4, 5, 3, 5=36—75

Spence required 82, 41 each way. In the afternoon Ferrier was in trouble at the first hole, and picked up, and the next four holes were halved in bogey figures. Ferrier, with a fine drive, an approach, and a long putt, won the sixth in 3, Spence having been in trouble. The seventh also went to Ferrier in 3, Spence duffing his tee-shot. He made amends by holing a long putt for a 3 at the eighth and the ninth being divided, Spence was still 5 down at the turn.

The tenth Spence won with a poorly played 4, but he missed an easy putt at the eleventh, and Ferrier won in 4 to 5. The twelfth went to Spence in 5, Ferrier having found the cross ditch with a sliced second. He made a perfect approach, however, and his putt hung on the lip of the tin for a half. Ferrier laid his tee shot dead at the short thirteenth, and repeated his first round performance of winning in 2, Spence just missing his putt for a half. Ferrier was now dormy 5. Spence won the long 15th, where Ferrier, having missed his drive, played safe with his second, and duffed his third, and being in an unplayable position, picked up. The end came at the fifteenth, which Ferrier secured in 3 to 4, and won the match and the championship by 5 up and 3 to play.

Spence appeared to tire towards the end of the morning round, and was up against fine golf the whole time. With a deficit of 5 holes in the morning he did well to carry the match to the fifteenth in the afternoon, and fought a good fight. Ferrier's game was consistent, and often brilliant. He was out in 32 for 8 holes in the afternoon, and had 5 holes in 20 coming home, while Spence was 34 for 8 holes out, and 21 for 5 holes coming home.

The Manly Club will hold a dinner at the Pacific Hotel, Manly, on Saturday, to celebrate the achievement of the club in winning the three grades of inter-club matches, and all will agree that a little jubilation is, in the circumstances, well justified.

The Manly Club sent its team of "zig-zaggers" to Concord to try conclusions with the local club, and, for once in a way this season, Manly were defeated, the Concord team winning by 8 matches to 5. At Killara, G. P. Dwyer, who has been displaying very good form during the last month or so, won the silver putter in the A grade with a good card, reading 84—10=74. Dwyer has, however, done better than this, having had several practice rounds well under 80. H. C. Till, a consistent player, was second with 81—5=76, and J. A. Ogle and A. J. Arnott were each 77 net. In the B grade, E. K. Burke, a young player, moved off the limit handicap with an excellent 99—30=69, and, being only a boy, will welcome the opportunity of henceforth playing up to a reduced handicap. W. D. Jones (20) and G. A. Morey-Smith (26) each returned good cards of 73 net.

The Dobroyde course presented a pleasing appearance when, after a spell of some years, mixed foursomes were again played. There was keen rivalry between the contesting pairs, the winners proving to be Mrs. Wigan and A. J. Dunn, whose card read 74—14=60. They were closely followed by Miss O. Walker and W. C. Sturrock with 68—6=62. Lest any misapprehension arises, it may be explained that the round was of 14 holes, the 7th, 12th, 14th, and 15th holes being eliminated from the usual round.

F. Alderson won the stroke handicap at Cammeray with a good card of 78—15=63, but did not have much to spare, as T. Michell was 64 net and two other 65 net. W. Gabriel, a long-mark man, had his first win at Bonnie Doon with 105—30=75, T. E. Howard (scratch) being second with a good 77. H. Somerset was the winner at Hunter's Hill with 80—11=69, while at Parramatta L. E. Carter and Miss G. Dale won the mixed foursomes of 13 holes with 70—22=48.

REVIEW OF THE SEASON.

With the second match of the year between the Royal Sydney and Australian clubs, the completion of the series of interclub matches, and the final of the Manly Club's championship (the last club championship of the year), the 1913 season may be said to be ended. The only event of importance still to be decided is the meeting of the champions of each of the metropolitan and suburban clubs, who will, at Concord, on the 15th proximo, play a competition for the honour of the championship of champions, and possession for the year of the shield presented by Mr. Jas. Kidd. This is the first year in which the metropolitan club champions have been eligible to compete, as in previous years the event was confined to suburban champions.

In several respects the 1913 golf season has been a most unfortunate one. In fact, from the beginning of the season bad luck seems to have dogged the footsteps of those responsible for the management of the game. To begin with, the season opened with an almost unprecedented spell of wet weather, which made many of the courses more or less unplayable, and in particular transformed the Australian Club's course at Kensington into a chain of lakes, and necessitated first a postponement of the Australasian open and amateur championship meeting, set down for decision on the Kensington links, and later the abandonment of the fixture so far as Sydney was concerned.

Then the outbreak of smallpox in our midst scared away golfers who would otherwise have visited us from other States, and it supplied the ostensible reason for the abandonment of the Australasian championship meeting. More than that, the pains and penalties of vaccination prevented hundreds of Sydney's local golfers from playing for varying periods at the beginning of the season. This and other reasons prevented this State being properly represented in Melbourne for the championship meeting, which, Kensington being unavailable, was held there, and the interstate matches had to be abandoned.

This was, of course, all to the bad; but as the darkest cloud has its silver lining, so the past golf season was in several points an important one; and in the history of Australian golf, yet to be written, will well deserve a page to itself. That distinction might well be accorded to the opening of the first New South Wales public course at Moore Park on May 24, which for the first time in this State brought the pleasures and benefits of the game within the reach of thousands, to whom otherwise they would have been debarred. We have not yet had time to properly appreciate the benefit to the game that must accrue from the City Council's enterprise in forming and opening this course; but the fact that hundreds of budding golfers, mostly of the artisan class, play at Moore Park every week, must certainly tend to popularise the game, and to dispose of the erroneous idea that it is purely a rich man's pastime.

For the first time, too, the northern and southern suburbs respectively combined in matches against the two metropolitan clubs, honours resting with the Royal Sydney Club, which beat both of the suburban combinations. The Australian Club was beaten by both north and south; while, as between the suburbs, the southern team beat the north at Manly. Royal Sydney proved itself undoubtedly the strongest club of the year, for not only did it win against both northern and southern suburbs, but defeated its ancient rivals, the Australian Golf Club, on two occasions earlier in the season at Kensington, and on Saturday at Rose Bay.

Among the suburban clubs Manly, stronger numerically than any of its rivals, showed its superiority also in playing strength by winning the interclub competition in each of the three grades, a performance which had never previously been equalled. Though without the assistance of E. L. Apperly towards the end of the season, the club found an efficient leader of its "A" team in the latter stages in J. B. Ferrier, who, if he sustains his present form, will require to be seriously considered in next year's State championship.

A notable feature of the year was the number of new players who have come to the fore. We cannot as a State take to ourselves undue credit for the fact, as several of the best of the newcomers came from abroad. W. C. Sturrock, who learnt his golf in Scotland, and coming out here won the New South Wales amateur championship in his first season, is the most notable illustration of this; and J. B. Ferrier, from Shanghai, who has been of great assistance to the Manly Club, the championship of which he has just won, is another. Ferrier has beaten several of our best players, and in important matches has only met one reverse, that by W. C. Sturrock at Dobroyde. On the other hand, J. E. Howard, a young player, who made his debut on the municipal links at Moore Park, and has since won the championship of the Bonnie Doon Club, and played very well in club matches, is entirely "made in Australia."

The following champions constitute the roll of honour for the year:—Champion club, Royal Sydney; champion suburban club, Manly; amateur champion of New South Wales, W. C. Sturrock. Club champions: Australian Club, P. Sydney Jones; Royal Sydney Club, H. A. Howden; Bonnie Doon Club, J. E. Howard; Cammeray Club, W. O'Gorman Hughes; Concord Club, R. B. Godbolt; Dobroyde Club, K. J. Harrison; Drummoyne Club, J. B. O'Neill; Hunter's Hill Club, C. L. Mackenzie; Killara Club, R. Colquhoun; Manly Club, J. B. Ferrier; Parramatta Club, L. J. Berckelman.

BASEBALL.

THE SUMMER GAME.

The Summer Baseball Association had two good areas available on Saturday, at Epping and the Agricultural Ground, where first and second grade games were played. So far Leichhardt has not been defeated in either grade. On Saturday the first nine were fully extended by the Waverley Blue Sox, who show promise of developing into a good side. W. Jones played for Leichhardt, and gave a glimpse of his old form at third base; he also captained the side very ably in the absence of E. Jansen.

L. Turner, at centre, brought off a very good double, after getting to a very high fly, holding it safely, and then throwing to first. Leichhardt's second nine are now playing well, and they work together splendidly. M. Machado turned out for Waverley Red Sox on Saturday for the first time. He will be a great acquisition to Waverley as a pitcher. Petersham's form on Saturday was far below what the side is capable of. They have some young players in the team who are entirely new to first-grade baseball; but they are good keen triers, who will soon make headway.

The Bank of Australasia team had their first match game on Saturday, and it was rather unfortunate that they had to meet such a strong side as Leichhardt. These players, without exception, are new to baseball, but with coaching they will rapidly grasp the finer points of the game. Swallow, the pitcher, shows great promise. Amies, the centre field, catches like a champion, and is also a splendid thrower. He is the making of a very fine player. The whole of the team were interested in the late match on the same ground, and no doubt the points gained that way will help them a lot in their next game.

The positions of clubs are:—Leichhardt, 6 points; Waverley Blue Sox, 2; Waverley Red Sox, 2; Leichhardt A, 6; Tramway, 2; Waverley Cubs, 2; Petersham A, 0.

SWIMMING.

STATE AND AUSTRALIAN CHAMPIONSHIPS.

NEW TEAMS HANDICAP.

A fine performance was recorded last Saturday by G. Page, the hon. secretary of the Randwick and Coogee Club. Page's development last season from a good interclub swimmer to a championship aspirant, will be remembered, and his latest swim seems to indicate that his promising form of last year will be maintained. In the club 66yds handicap on Saturday he won his heat in 38s and followed this up by winning the final in 38 4-5s. Although there are swimmers in Sydney who can do better, it is possible that Page may also be able to improve on them; but, as they stand, they are meritorious performances. Page was handicapped one second from his club's new member, E. Wickham, who did not start.

The other outstanding performance on Saturday was marred by a mistake at the finish. Great things were expected of Barry in his club's 75yds event after his 50yds performance on the previous Saturday. Unfortunately, in the long lap of the Domain baths, the 75yds mark was shown by a length of floaters with bare rope at each end, and Barry, swimming on the inside as scratch man, lost sight of the rope and stopped a foot or so from the end of the course. He had a slight lead at the time, and was swimming very strongly and with great determination. His time was taken at 39s, which suggests that another startling performance would have been recorded against his name.

Saturday's programme brought to light quite a number of good swims over 50 yards, and the performances of the younger swimmers, such as O. Hansel (29s), K. Wright (28 1-5s), H. M. Hay (26 2-5s), and F. S. Cotton (28 2-5s) leave little room for doubt that so far as sprint swimming is concerned there is plenty of material for the moulding of future champions. Among the older swimmers, L. Solomons began the season very auspiciously with a swim of 25 2-5s in the Manly club's 50yds opening handicap; and Eric Fox was again to the front with 27s in a dead-heat with K. Wright in North Sydney club's event. Levy, of the Sydney club, also showed consistent form in winning both his heat and the final of a 75yds race in 47s. Both Fox and Levy provide the best type of the interclub swimmer, their strength, determination, and pluck often winning contests for them in the last few yards. A pleasing feature of Saturday's fixtures was the Pyrmont Amateur club's return to the active list after an absence of two years. This club, which held the polo championship for two years, has returned with bright prospects, a schoolboy's race and a 50 metres handicap attracting good entries. The majority of the members who formed the club's strength in past years have again joined. Drummoyne in this way will lose both J. Conlon and H. Shaw, and will miss the former especially in their polo team.

The council meeting of the Amateur Swimming Association, which was held last week, called forth some animated discussion on various matters affecting the sport. Among other things, a communication was received from the executive stating that, as the Queensland body had fixed their dates for the Australian championships on January 17 and 24, the committee recommended that the State championships be held on 3, 7, and 10 of that month, with the New South Wales section of the Australian championships on January 31 and February 7. The last suggestion allows two Saturday afternoons with a week vacant between. The delegates accepted the recommendation applied to the State championships; but thought that a week between the two days of the Australian championships would be a waste of time. Accordingly the date for the second carnival of the Australian championship series was fixed for Monday night following the first series, on February 2. The four championships in this State (220 yards, 880 yards, and one mile free style, and 100 yards breast stroke) will be held on the Saturday afternoon and following Monday.

This course was adopted on the last occasion when the State body was allotted a section of the championships, and, as vice-president Hill pointed out at the council meeting, proved successful notwithstanding threatening weather. The attendance and enthusiasm at the night carnival was little inferior to that at the afternoon function; this was of course mainly due to the extraordinary happenings connected with Longworth's sensational debut, Beaurepaire's illness, and Hardwick's fine swimming. Night carnivals at the Domain baths do not generally succeed in attracting large attendances, but if Kahanamoku should be here, his appearance together with the best of the Australians will be sufficient to fill the baths.

The idea of holding the State championships before the Australian events seems justifiable, in so much that it not only creates public interest in the more important events, but it will also help in the selection of those who are to represent the State here and at Brisbane. There is this further advantage, that the dates will coincide with the first appearance of Kahanamoku and will serve to introduce him to the Australian public. It was found in previous years that if the Australian events were decided before the local premierships, there was little or no interest taken in the latter events.

The difficulty connected with the Australian championship dates will be in allotting the four fixtures to the two days. It seems that a possible injustice to all-round swimmers like Longworth, Hardwick, Page, Mason, Springfield and others can hardly be avoided; and that both the 220yds and mile must be decided on the one day. Two such swims would be sufficient to try the stamina of any swimmer. However, if all the competitors in the mile previously turn out in the 220yds race not much fault could be found with the arrangement, as none would have an advantage.

The attempt to add a second teams event to the list of State championships was defeated, mainly owing to the chairman's announcement that the programme for the next Olympic Games was not yet fixed. It was therefore uncertain whether an 800 metres teams' championship would be included or a 500 metres' race for teams of five. In the circumstances, the argument for a 880yds teams' event here fell flat, and failed to impress delegates, who, however, went so far as to endorse the hon. handicapper's (Mr. Cummins) motion for a teams' handicap over the distance. It was suggested that this event might be held at the Australian carnivals, when, not only the best of the State's swimmers might compete, but also those from other States. The council was strongly in favour of the handicap principle, as it tended to discover latent swimming talent, and that body showed no sympathy either with the championship proposal or one for a scratch race. The handicap should encourage some of the younger swimmers to try their powers over the furlong distance.

In addition to the Australian championships, Sydney enthusiasts will have an opportunity of witnessing interstate contests during the season in the form of meetings between the Sydney and Melbourne clubs; and between the Manly club and a New Zealand team of swimmers. The first mentioned contest will be the continuation of the annual series with Melbourne this year visiting Sydney. The second is a result of the successful tour of New Zealand last season by three Manly swimmers (Messrs. Solomons, Hay, and Riddington), and the sea-side club is to be congratulated on their enterprise in negotiating for the visit. Permission was given to the club at the last council meeting to forward the invitation. Another New Zealand body (Waitemata S.C.) is anxious to secure a visit from the Rose Bay club. The Waitemata club which styles itself the champion club of Australasia, owing to its victories over a Sydney club team two seasons ago, wishes to meet the new premiers and gain further laurels. It is unlikely, however, that the trip will take place.

The most important business of the council meeting, however, was the filling of the secretarial position, vacated by Mr. Beale. At the last moment an entirely satisfactory nomination was received in the person of W. W. Scott, a well-known interclub swimmer and member of the Sydney club, who, acting as assistant to Mr. A. C. W. Hill during the strenuous season of Olympic preparations, was responsible for much of its success. The relief felt by the delegates when the difficulty was overcome was shown by the manner in which the nomination was received. Mr. Scott was given the privilege of naming his own assistant and the executive were instructed to report on a means of lightening the duties. The selection adds still another to the list of secretaries furnished by the Sydney club, both under its new name and the old name of Enterprise; and the new occupant of the position should not suffer by comparison with his predecessors. The services of both the retiring secretary and his assistant will be recognised.

Definite dates and venue have not yet been allotted for the President's Cup handicaps. For the first two events over 880 yards and 1320 yards, respectively, only one application was received, and that from the Nepean club, which proposed to hold them in the fresh water of the Nepean River. The club is also anxious to obtain the right to hold the two remaining events of the series. But some opposition may be expected from the metropolitan clubs in the interest of junior swimmers and others who cannot afford the time or expense of journeying to Penrith. The executive committee have been instructed to report on the matter.

The acting hon. secretary of the Australian Swimming Union has received word from the New Zealand governing body, that the question of joining in the proposed visit of Kohanamoku was discussed and that New Zealand will willingly participate in the arrangements. As the New Zealand championships will be held this year at Blenheim from February 16 to 23, inclusive, the New Zealand Amateur Swimming Association wishes to arrange for the "Duke" to appear in these events, and it is also intended to arrange for carnivals at Wellington, Dunedin, Christchurch, Wanganui, Hawkes Bay, and Auckland probably in that order. A sub-committee is at work to draw up an itinerary and a scheme of finance.

The dates suggested will allow our visitor to appear at Sydney on January 3 and 10, then at Brisbane, and Sydney again for the Australian championships; finishing on February 2, at Sydney, then probably a flying visit to Melbourne before leaving for New Zealand, where his tour would last three weeks. Kohanamoku can look forward to a busy tour.

In a letter to a Sydney friend, Mr. Otto Wahle, who managed the American swimming team in Sweden, says that "Duke's" record of 55 1-5 seconds for a straight swim over 100 yards, has been recognised by the American Union; but that all papers in connection with the swim of 54 2-5sec. at San Francisco, over a 75 yards course, have not yet been received. The latter swim was in still, salt water. Truly, both are marvellous performances. Mr. Wahle also says that the leading American swimmers are all doing well. McGillivray has covered 100 yards in 55 2-5 seconds in a 20 yards bath; Nerich, 220 yards in 2 minutes 29 seconds, in a 25 yards bath, and at Chicago a youth named Raithel, 17 years old, has swum 100 yards in 54 4-5 seconds in a 20 yards bath. The American authority also mentions that he intends to carry on an extensive propaganda on the subject of the standing turn in Germany before next meeting of the International Federation. When brought up at the last meeting Mr. Wahle was met with the denial by the German delegates that it was allowed, but, in view of what he has seen and heard, he intends to go further with the matter.

Everything points to a still higher standard of swimming prevailing at the next Olympic Games. In addition to the American figures mentioned above, word comes of two fine performances by English swimmers, showing marvellous improvement. Both are well-known to our touring swimmers. One S. J. Hoskins, who was defeated by Leslie Boardman last year in 60 seconds over 100 yards, recently won the 100 yards Southern Counties Championship in 58 3-5 seconds, and the other, H. E. Annison, won the 440 yards Southern Counties Championship in 5 minutes 34 seconds.

At the annual meeting of the Ladies' Amateur Association, Miss Kathleen Durack's resignation from the secretarial duties was received. Miss Durack held the position for several years; and her place is filled by Mrs. Chambers, who has been secretary of the Sydney club for some time. It appears that the Ladies' Association is experiencing the trouble that sometimes creeps into such institutions, that of club jealousies, and if not checked may result detrimentally to the sport.

LEAGUE OF SWIMMERS.

ITS GROWTH AND PROSPECTS.

Considering that the League of Swimmers has only been four years in operation, the membership roll of 769 recorded in the annual report, presented at last week's meeting, reflects a wonderful expansion. The rise of the new swimming body was primarily due to the influence exercised by the Sporting Federation, which body decreed that the swimming organisations, owing allegiance to it as the controlling head of amateurism in this State, could not admit the men who had forfeited their status in consequence of joining the football ranks of the Rugby League. Many hundreds of devotees of the northern union game in Sydney were thus debarred from participating in the natatorial pastime during the "close" season. Several prominent members of the Rugby League, recognising that it would retard the progress of their winter game if an outlet for the energies of their numerous adherents could not be found during the swimming season, held a public meeting in the early part of 1909, and the launching of the new body was the result. From a comparatively unostentatious opening the League of Swimmers has developed to such an extent, that to-day it embraces no fewer than 19 affiliated clubs in the metropolitan area and branches at Newcastle and Wollongong.

During the earlier stages of its existence, the new body confined its operations mainly to organising clubs in the districts that provided the majority of the football players; thus, clubs like Eastern Suburbs, Glebe, and North Sydney, were quickly established. The men at the head of the swimming affairs, however, foresaw, that to keep pace with the development of the Rugby League, they would have to exercise a more progressive policy of organisation. This fresh enthusiasm began to make itself felt in the 1911-12 season, when 18 clubs were swimming under the league's auspices. Several big carnivals were successfully carried through during that period, and clubs were brought into existence wherever suitable headquarters in the way of baths could be found.

The following clubs are now swimming under the banner of the league.—Male: Eastern Suburbs, Glebe, Pyrmont, Waverley, Balmain, North Sydney, Western Suburbs, Leichhardt, South Sydney, Mosman, Randwick, Coogee, Marrickville, Wollongong, and Newcastle. Female: Randwick and Coogee, Eastern Suburbs, Glebe, North Sydney, Waverley, Leichhardt, Balmain, and Austral. The clubs' membership increased to a remarkable extent last season, particularly at Waverley, Randwick and Coogee, and Leichhardt. The firstmentioned club to-day has a membership of 200. When it is considered that this body had its inaugural meeting in 1911, its growth is phenomenal.

A feature of the league's development is the high standard attained by the female swimmers, notably the Misses G. Tate, G. Hooper, and N. Meads. The former won the 100 yards championship last season in the good time of 1m 15s. Miss Tate is also proficient in the diving art, and has the honour of being champion of the league in this section.

Carnivals were another feature of last season's operations. The following clubs having "gala" days:—Mosman, Leichhardt, Glebe-Pyrmont, Randwick-Coogee, Balmain, Waverley, North Sydney, and Wollongong, and the head body held the most successful carnival since its inception. At these functions the following championships of the State were contested:—100 yards, won by C. Lawes, in 1m 3s; 220 yards, by F. Sinclair, in 2m 47s; 440 yards, 880 yards, and mile, by Oscar Dickman; and diving by C. Scott. Balmain was the premier club of the year, and with the assistance of Messrs. F. Sinclair, C. Fraser, the famous full-back, J. Brunton, E. J. Russell, and J. Davidson, the club won the 500 yards teams championship in 5m 38s.

The times for the foregoing events, however, are appreciably below the standard set by the amateur champions of the State. Nevertheless, in each instance they are creditable performances, and show a distinct improvement on the previous times established in league championship events. The league has yet to unearth the swimmers capable of breaking the "minute" for the 100 yards; but it is confidently expected that this season's carnivals will produce a champion equal to the task. Such an achievement in the amateur ranks is one of every-day occurrence: but this high standard, it must be remembered, has been attained by youthful champions, who have had the guidance and assistance of some of the world's best swimmers for quite a number of years; whereas, the aspiring league swimmer has to win his spurs practically unaided, so far as tuition is concerned, as the League of Swimmers is composed mainly of men, who, until recent years, devoted their sole energies to the football side of their training.

However, numerically and financially, the League of Swimmers is exceptionally strong, and if it pursues its present progressive policy of encouraging speed swimming, the time for unearthing really high-class performers must not be very far distant. Over the longer distances the league has, in Oscar Dickman, a great exponent, and his connection with the sport is having a great influence on the younger members of the League Swimmers, many of whom are showing exceptional staying power. It is, therefore, only a matter of a season or two, before these embryo champions are prominently before the swimming world.

RIFLE SHOOTING.

COUNTRY MARKSMEN'S SUCCESS.

N. R. A. RESULTS.

The outstanding feature of the 54th annual prize meeting of the National Rifle Association was the extraordinary success of the country marksmen. In this connection a glance at the complete results is most interesting. It will be seen that the men from "outback" are prominent at every range distance, under all conditions, and in all three grades—the tyros, the second-class, and the first-class shots. Here is the position at a glance:—

C SERIES (TYROS).

The Barooma, 500 yards. Country marksmen won the first three prizes; also the 4th, 6th, and 8th.

The Dibbs, 300 yards, won third and fourth prizes; the Cooke, 600 yards, won second prize; Douglas Aggregate, won third, fourth, and fifth prizes.

B. SERIES (SECOND-CLASS SHOTS).

The Simmons, 300 yards, won all first nine prizes; the Cortese 500 yards, won first three prizes; also fifth and sixth prizes; the French, 600 yards, won first four prizes; also 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 11th, 12th, 13th, and 14th prizes. Only one metropolitan marksman in first 14 places; Brown Aggregate, won whole of first nine prizes.

A SERIES (FIRST-CLASS SHOTS).

The Members, 300 yards, won first two prizes; the Jaques, 600 yards, won, first, fourth, fifth, and sixth prizes; the Motton, 700 yards, won first and third prizes. Second prize went to Melbourne and fourth to Queensland; the Newmarch, 1000 yards, won second and fourth prizes; Longfield Aggregate, won third prize. First and second prizes went to Melbourne; the Prince of Wales, 300, 500, and 600 yards, won fourth and fifth prizes; the Wallack, 600 and 700 yards, won first prize, and secured eight of the first nine prizes; the Mills, 800, 900, and 1000 yards, won five out of eight first prizes; the "Referee," 600 and 700 yards, won first three prizes; fourth prize went to Melbourne, fifth to Western Australia, then country marksmen won the 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th, and 11th prizes.

The King's, all ranges, in A series, won by McAlister (Junee), second prize went to Melbourne (Stan. Edwards), third to Western Australia (Norris), then country marksmen won 5th, 7th, 9th, 10th, 14th, and 16th prizes.

The Sargood, rifle clubs' match, for teams of four, won by Millthorpe; third, fourth, fifth, and sixth prizes also went to country clubs.

This is an astonishing record, and the representatives of the country clubs deserve all the credit attached to their remarkably fine performances. Being the first occasion on which metropolitan marksmen have been unable to hold their own, it gives rise to some reflection. Referring to the scarcity of targets within the metropolitan area, Lieutenant Dakin, secretary of the Association, said that the trouble has reached an acute stage. The Association was keeping the matter prominently before the defence authorities, and they hoped soon to see a great deal more range accommodation provided around Sydney. The work, as a matter of fact, is already in hand. There are 50 targets now in use at Long Bay; 20 more are being erected, and another 40 are to be put in hand so soon as these 20 are completed. In the meantime, metropolitan marksmen must be content with the very limited accommodation—15 targets each Saturday—available at Randwick. "It is to be hoped," continued the secretary, "that they will not lose heart. Their proficiency with the rifle has been very valuable to Australia, and it has to be remembered that, while they are resting, so to speak, the targets are being put to very fine use in teaching the cadets and the militia to handle the weapon, upon which Australia must depend so much, if ever the occasion arises."

THE KING'S WINNER.

D. L. McAlister, the winner of the 1913 King's, has a remarkable record for a man of 28 years of age. He was born at Gundagai in 1885, and celebrated his birthday on the Sunday before his final triumph. He commenced rifle shooting five or six years ago, and has been a member of the Junee club for the last two years. Last year at Brisbane he was 8th in the King's aggregate, and at the New South Wales meeting in the same year was sixth in the King's and 12th in the Longfield aggregate. Going on to Melbourne in quest of further shooting honours, he was 5th in the Victorian King's. Subsequently he journeyed to New Zealand, and shot into 15th place in the big match at Trentham. The young marksman then went still further afield, and next faced the targets in the Scottish championship at Darnley, where he secured 13th prize. He did better in the service championship at the same meeting, where he shot into second place. Next he went to Bisley. He was not picked in the Bisley team of that year, but his record at the great world's meeting was better than that of any of the chosen members. He shot into 15th place in the King's, and was right up amongst the cracks in the Service Rifle Championship match, in which he secured fifth prize. On his return to the Commonwealth he journeyed to the Queensland Association's meeting, and managed to secure the second prize in the King's, being only three points behind the winner. He also secured first place in the King's at Adelaide, and was second in the Grand Aggregate. This is surely a great record for a man of 28.

FOOTBALL.

CHAMPIONSHIP CARNIVAL OF 1914.

Though it was arranged so far back as 1911 that the 1914 carnival games for the Australasian championship should be held at Sydney, close followers of the game have been in doubt, for many months past, as to whether the games would be played here, as the Sydney Cricket Ground is leased to the Rugby League; and at least two of the States had refused to play on any other ground. Happily, an arrangement has been entered into with the Rugby League whereby two Saturdays—August 1 and 8—have been secured for the carnival games. The "quid pro quo" is the use of the Melbourne Cricket Ground to the Rugby League on the same dates, where games with the English Northern Union team will probably be played.

The rival codes will thus be seen at their best at the two capitals—Sydney and Melbourne—where public patronage, generally speaking, is antagonistic. The result may benefit each: but it seems remarkable that such arrangements should be entered into by the lessees of the best grounds in each city, with the actual owners or trustees playing, so to speak, but a secondary part. In this connection it must be said that the trustees of the Sydney Cricket Ground dallied with the application of the New South Wales League, which was made previous to the trustees leasing the ground to the Rugby League.

It is expected that at least 1200 footballers, representing State, club, and country teams, will visit Sydney during the carnival, and the supporters who will accompany them should quadruple the total of visitors. Besides 25 selected players in each State team, it is known that many interstate club teams have been waiting for the carnival time to visit Sydney. The Perth club (Western Australia) has already made application, which has been granted, for the trip; and a busy time seems in store for those who may have the accommodation arrangements in hand. The carnival should easily provide—as it has already done in Melbourne and Adelaide—the greatest gathering of athletes, at least numerically, that Sydney has known.

BOWLS.

BREACHES OF THE RULES.

The showers of last Friday and Saturday morning still further shortened the programme that usually obtains at this period. Bowlers, however, will not complain at the loss of play, but, on the contrary, will rejoice at the immense amount of benefit that will result to their clubs' greens. Had last Saturday been a pennant day the committee would, no doubt, have been inundated with the usual inquiries as to whether the various matches were to be played.

It may not be out of place, therefore, to mention rule 46, under which the umpire—inter alia—has to determine as to the fitness of the green, or weather, for play. In this matter of umpires, and the duties which they are called upon to fulfil, it is notorious that time and again the rules are not adhered to. For example, take the question of a substitute in a pennant match. Rule 4 implies that no emergency shall be used, but fractional parts of a rink shall be allowed. If, however, some other member of the club which is short of its original selections happens to be present, and he is asked and consents to play, he must take a second position. There were cases well-known last season, where a club was allowed by its opponents to play in their team a member of the club on whose green the match was played. Then, again, on another occasion, a team was short, but a member of that club was on the bank. He was approached, and asked to play, and consented to do so, provided he played No. 2. No objection being raised by the other side, the match was played. Matches were also played in such bad weather that, if appeal had been made to an umpire possessed of commonsense, he would have ruled the conditions unfit for play.

The very simple, but absolutely necessary, rules governing conditions and precautions to be observed when the Jack has been knocked into the ditch, and the toucher bowl is also lying there, are rarely acted upon, at any rate so fully as they should be. Many bowlers will admit that, although they have usually seen the position of the Jack in the ditch carefully marked, the marking of the position of the toucher bowl is left severely alone. Yet this is just as important, because the toucher in the ditch can correctly have its position changed, by another toucher on the green being forced into the ditch. Not only is this so, but a powerful drive, accompanied perhaps with a sharp wick, may quite easily force a bowl, not a toucher, against the toucher in the ditch, and alter its position. In such an event the toucher must be replaced in its former position; but how is this to be done if its position was unmarked?

The Jack, having been knocked into the ditch by a toucher or by some other bowl being forced against it, its position is marked, and then it is placed on the edge of the green to indicate its position to any subsequent players. How often is it left there till the end has been completed, instead of being removed to its position in the ditch, so soon as a bowl is delivered? Yet its position in the ditch may be materially altered by a toucher on the green being forced on to it. There are many other points connected with the game that are well worth studying by bowlers generally.

VISIT TO VICTORIA.

Nominations for inclusion in a team to visit Victoria close to-morrow. The smallpox epidemic, which is still in evidence, the visit to New Zealand next December, and again the bowling carnival, set down for next Easter, at Brisbane, are all factors that may militate against a large number of bowlers showing a desire to go to Melbourne; but it is to be hoped the visit will be carried out.

The committee of the New South Wales Bowling Association will meet to-night at 12 Castlereagh-street, when the main business will be consideration of the pennant committee's draft programme for the season 1913-14. An application for affiliation by the Mudgee Bowling Club will be considered, and as it is understood this club can fulfil all the necessary qualifications, it can be taken for granted that their application will be agreed to. The association will then include 45 clubs, 22 metropolitan, and 23 country. Mr. M. J. Ryan, Assistant Clerk of Petty Sessions, is hon. secretary of the Mudgee Club.

Club secretaries should note that there is a daily service (Saturday excepted) from Sydney at 9.50 p.m., arriving at Mudgee at 7.30 a.m., and the return journey commences at 7 p.m. each day (except Sunday). Thus a run may be made to Mudgee on Friday night, giving players 12 hours in the town, and Sydney may be reached early on Sunday morning. The Mudgee green will be open for play after November 1, and those who take a trip to the western town will find themselves well repaid.

The ballot for the four pennant skippers for this season in the Stratfield Club closed on Saturday last, and Messrs. Love, Drake, King, and Reid were elected. The four skippers form the selection committee for the pennant rinks.

TEAM FOR NEW ZEALAND.

Particulars of the itinerary in connection with the tour of the Australian team in New Zealand will be made public when it has been approved of by the New Zealand Association. It is anticipated that it will be necessary to leave on December 17, and commence the tour at Auckland. So soon as a reply is received from New Zealand, Mr. Whitehouse will call a meeting of the entrants residing in New South Wales.

SAILING.

THE MARSHALL PLATE.

AMERICA CUP CONDITIONS.

The Royal Prince Alfred Yacht Club will hold its first race of the season on Saturday afternoon, when for the eleventh time the yachts are to be sent over the Manly-Pile Light course in competiton for the Marshall Plate. This handsome trophy, which has to be won four times by a yachtsman in his own yacht, was presented to the club by Mr. T. Marshall, the owner of the cruising yacht Nanoya, who has held the highest office in the club, namely, that of commodore.

Only three owners and yachts of the present racing fleet have their names inscribed once on the trophy. They are:—Petrel (Mr. C. Trebeck), Sunbeam (Mr. A. W. Crane), and Culwulla III. (Mr. W. M. Marks). The honour list in connection with this event is as follows:—

1903-4—Fleetwing (Mr. C. T. Brockhoff).
1904-5—Janet (Mr. J. A. Muston).
1905-6—Cooya (Mr. A. W. Beach).
1906-7—Kukuburra (Mr. A. E. Cutler).
1907-8—Rawhiti (Mr. C. T. Brockhoff).
1908-9—Thelma (Mr. C. Lloyd Jones).
1909-10—Petrel (Mr. C. Trebeck).
1910-11—Sunbeam (Mr. A. W. Crane).
1912-13—Culwulla III. (Mr. W. M. Marks).

Last season the club was not favoured with suitable weather for sailing on the day fixed for this event; and after a weary afternoon the first yacht, Culwulla III., managed to cross the finishing line after 8 p.m. This season, a new rule is in force with the Royal Prince Alfred Yacht Club, which reads:—"In all harbour races, where times are given at the start, any yacht not finishing by 7 o'clock shall be declared out of the race." This will be appreciated by the officials in charge of a race in extremely light weather, as there is very little amusement in sitting in a waterman's skiff after dark waiting for the yachts to cross the finishing line. No doubt the crews of the yachts will be glad enough to make for their moorings direct instead of over the finishing line, especially as they will know that another opportunity will be afforded them of proving their skill under more favourable and more comfortable conditions.

An interested spectator on the club steamer of the Royal Sydney Yacht Squadron last Saturday was last season's owner of Yeulba, Mr. A. L. Mullens, who had the satisfaction of seeing his old boat repeat her performance of last year, although with a different racing flag at the truck.

So far as could be seen from the club steamer following the R.S.Y.S. vice-commodore's races, Ranee should have done better on the wind, had her topsail been sent down, as off Smedley's Point it retarded rather than assisted her, being continually aback.

Evidently more than one mattress had been set adrift in the harbour last week-end, as Mr. N. L. Dreyer sailing his boat Hilmar in the Sydney Amateur Sailing Club's general handicap had the same misfortune as Mr. Trebeck with Petrel, in fouling one of these articles when off Dobroyd.

According to an exchange, the signed conditions for the America's Cup races next year were received by Sir Thomas Lipton on board his yacht the Erin on September 11.

Speaking at a dinner aboard the yacht Enchantress that evening, Sir Thomas said that it took nearly seven months to arrange the contest, and he more than once feared that it would fall through. He added:—

"While I was personally always willing to race under any conditions with a ninety or a seventy-five footer, I had to be careful not to agree to terms that would impose any undue handicaps on future challengers or boats from this side of the water. Several times I was advised to withdraw my challenge, but I stuck to it, and now the signed conditions are in my pocket.

"I am glad that I did; I am perfectly satisfied with them. It is true that they do not compel the Americans to meet me with a boat of the same size as the Shamrock, but I was always convinced that this would be done."

Sir Thomas expressed the belief that Nicholson, who is building the Shamrock IV., is the best designer in the world, and that Burton, who will command the challenger, knows how to steer to victory.

"Both the challenger and the defender, under the conditions signed," said Sir Thomas, "will be better types of useful yachts than the freaks that one was formerly compelled to send across the Atlantic, and I can say without hesitation that I have a better chance of winning the cup than ever I had before."

In conclusion he commended the sportsmanship of Americans and his treatment at their hands.

As a result of her win in the Sydney Club's race last Saturday, Advance now shares third place with Australian on the list of prize winners for this season. Kismet is on top with £24, then follow Mavis £20, Australian £15, Advance £15, Pastime £12, Mona £12, Arline £10, Nimrod £8, Desdemona £7, Enid £7, Scot £7, Donnelly £5, Golding £5, Sunny South £5, Lilian £3, Livonia £3.

Entries and handicaps for the Sydney Flying Squadron's race on Saturday are:—First heat: Swastika (C. Stewart), Scot (J. Smith), and Donnelly (Geo. Holmes), 1m; Arline (W. Edney), 1½; Enid (J. M. Firth), Acme (P. Harry), and Vision (H. Shambler), 1¾; Eagle (F. Fulton), 2; Mona (O. Hahn), 2¼; Quibree (O. Taylor), 2½; Sunny South (J. Allen), 3. Second heat: Kismet (W. Dunn), scr; Nimrod (W. J. Duncan), Australian (Chris. Webb), and Mavis (F. W. Moppett), 1m; H. C. Press (G. Press), 2; Eunice II. (B. B. Lloyd), 2; Pastime (S. Richardson), 1½; Golding (R. Beashel) and Desdemona (A. C. Roberts), 1¾; Livonia (J. Robinson), 2; Advance (H. E. Thompson), 2½.

It will be noticed from these handicaps that J. Smith is to sail Scot. This boat has just changed hands, and Mr. H. Smith has been registered with the Flying Squadron as owner.

The 22-footers Interstate Committee will consist of 10 representatives of the Sydney Flying Squadron and 10 of the Sydney Club. The Flying Squadron has appointed the following representatives:—Messrs. T. S. Don- and J. C. Carter, J. M. Firth, H. Langford, W. M. Ford, jun., J. M. Thompson, G. H. Perry, W. Hedge, E. G. Terrey, and J. Young.

CYCLING.

THE TRACK SEASON.

REDFERN CLUB'S CARNIVAL.

The entries for the six hours' teams race and the minor handicap and scratch races to be held in connection with the Redfern Club's carnival at the Sydney Sports Ground on Saturday afternoon and evening, November 8, closed on Monday; but long before that day it was evident that, excepting bad weather, the success of the meeting was assured, as the nominations from the more prominent amateur track and road riders were found among the earliest to come to hand.

With the arrival of Aubrey Taylor, who will team with E. W. Pedersen, from his successful American racing tour, additional interest is drawn to the six hours event, as it is more than probable that these two riders will represent Australia at the Berlin Olympiad in 1916. Taylor, of course, would compete in the track events, and Pedersen on the road. There are many other aspirants to these honours, however, and there is but little doubt that the Sports Ground track will be the scene of some sensational racing among the better known amateurs before the single tube tyres and high gears give way once again to those in more common use in the road season.

The council of the League of New South Wales Wheelmen is making a big effort to stave off from their track-racing season a threatening attack of general debility, the symptoms of which are appearing in much the same manner as they did in the early stages of the road season, with more or less disastrous results. At the last meeting of the council a strong sub-committee, consisting of Messrs. R. Reddy (president of the L.N.S.W.W.), J. Davis (vice-president), H. M. Mackay (Northern Suburbs District Club), R. Houston (South Sydney Club), F. Harrison (South Sydney Club), H. E. Coleman (Ashfield Club), and W. Palmer (independent member), was formed to thoroughly inquire into the prospects of the present track season, and see what steps could be taken to provide the League riders with a number of meetings more in accord with the status of those of the past few years.

The first move on the part of the committee was to interview Mr. Steve Senhouse, the well-known cyclist and sports promoter, with a view to arranging a six-day's race. Certain proposals were made, but nothing definite, however, will be made known until after the next meeting of the League council.

This evening the League riders, who have not journeyed to take part in the Orange or Junee carnivals, will be engaged at the eight-hour carnival at the Sydney Sports Ground. This is the last metropolitan meeting in view at the present time.

Ernest Pye, the Victorian professional, who teamed with Al. Grenda in last year's six-day race at Madison Square Garden, New York, who has won the Australian championship three times, and has been racing during the present season at the Newark N. J. Velodrome, is returning to Australia. Towards the latter end of last month Pye received word that his uncle, H. O. Pye, of Melbourne, had died, leaving him a moderate fortune. Pye and his wife and child were about to leave San Francisco on their voyage when the last mail left. He intends to return to America next year to continue racing.

H. E. Coulson, a cyclist, who is riding round the world for a wager of £1000 to nothing, is now en route to Sydney from Melbourne, where he arrived last week. Coulson is riding an American cycle, fitted with Continental tyres, and the conditions under which he is making his trip provide that he must not borrow or beg; that he must work his passage on the ships by which he travels, and must earn his own living by lecturing en route. Coulson started from Bombay, and his destination is Colombo, after covering a distance of 300 miles in Ceylon. Altogether he must cover 40,000 miles on his cycle, and up to the time he left Melbourne he had covered 5571 miles. Coulson is a month behind his time, but he hopes to recover the lost ground in America.

Yet another cyclist, prominent in the ranks of the world's amateur best, has donned the mantle of the professionals. Henri Fossier, who represented France in the 100 kiloms world's amateur championship at Berlin was listed to compete, when the last mail left Europe, with Shepherd, of Newcastle, N.S.W., in a 20 kiloms motor-paced match at the Buffalo Velodrome, Paris. Fossier, who is only 17 years old, and who is the son of the well-known pace maker, only came into prominence recently, when he set up an amateur hour record behind the new regulation motors.

The world's unpaced hour record has occasioned a remarkable duel between Marcel Berthet and Oscar Egg. In 1907 Berthet rode 40 kiloms 520 metres, upon which Egg improved last year to the extent of 602 metres. Last July, Richard Weise, the German roadman, raised the figures to 42 kiloms 306 metres. Berthet, however, retaliated with 42 kiloms 502 metres. This again brought out Egg, and on August 21 he added 1 kilo 23 metres to Berthet's figures. Berthet, however, was not to be beaten, and on September 20, at the Buffalo Velodrome, Paris, he succeeded in eclipsing Egg's wonderful performance. Covering the laps with great regularity, he reeled off 21 kiloms 863 metres in the first half-hour, and, finishing remarkably fresh, crammed 43 kiloms 775 metres (27 miles 365 yards) into the 60 minutes.

According to a Paris contemporary, Major Taylor, the coloured crack, is floating a company with a capital of £200,000 to run a patent tyre of his own inventing.

BILLIARDS.

AN IMPERIAL CONTEST.

The Olympic Games scheme has suggested the idea that contests in Imperial billiards should take place between players of the old country and those of the outlying dominions. Australia could provide two first-class exponents in Gray and Lindrum, and South Africa has a representative in Frank Ferraro, whom good judges of billiards declare is one of the best players in the world at the English game.

Discussing this topic, a home writer is of the opinion that a test between these three players and Stevenson, Inman, and Reece "would be of the greatest interest" if the ball problem could be solved. That is the real difficulty. Both Gray and Lindrum are unknown quantities so far as ivory balls are concerned, and Ferraro is in much the same position; for, like his brother colonials, he plays with the material which is not affected by climatic changes to the same extent that ivory is, and the English champions won the title with the ivory ball.

The writer in question evades the point of the merits of the balls for comparing them with what he terms the "natural article," but he goes on to point out that although there is no arrangement regarding the type of ball to be used in the future, the controlling powers in the billiard world are not likely to go out of their way to organise "test" matches.

At present the English championship is "free for all," but it is decided with ivory balls; and it will most likely be many years before it is changed. So, if the trio of brilliant colonial players have designs on that title, they will probably be well up in years before they get an opportunity of competing with anything but ivory, notwithstanding that the composition ball may be called "Imperial," and the ivory "insular."

These conditions should be severely condemned by those who control the British championship, or, as it is termed, the "championship of the world," for they practically disqualify a tough opponent, and they are apt to be held up to ridicule when it is remembered that English players often play many important games in England, and all their games abroad, with the composition article.

It was with composition balls that Stevenson made his record break of 1016 in England last November, and the only objection that Inman raised to this make, when in Australia last year, was that they made billiards too easy owing to their more perfect shape and weight throughout a game. His argument that, in the greatest test at billiards, a ball must be used that is admittedly imperfect, hardly coincides with the English idea.

If the ball question was settled in favour of composition—the material used by eight out of every ten players who compete under the Billiard Association's rules—the representatives from the overseas dominions would certainly start favourites in, say, a series of games of 18,000 up, in which each player would meet, and the result be decided by the aggregate of points scored in the nine games.

Gray and Lindrum in their best form would be certain to each have a big margin in their favour in the 54,000 points which each would play against the English trio; sufficient one would think (on past performances), to make up for any deficiencies on Ferraro's part, even if he were not so fine a player as his South African friends considered last year, when they offered to match him against Stevenson level for £500 aside.

The Imperial contest idea is a good one, and should it come about, would create more interest throughout the Empire than any billiard match that has ever taken place. Meantime it is a misnomer, from several viewpoints, to term what is purely a local event in England "the world's billiard championship."

George Gray is playing a series of games against second-class professionals in England, filling in time until the season is more advanced. In opposition to the Yorkshire champion, the Australian made a break over the eighth century. The cables may shortly be expected to announce that he has again run into four figures. Since using bonzoline balls, Gray has not done so well as when he relied exclusively on the crystalate make. There is a slight difference in the angle thrown by each variety, and during a long run the player is apt to get a trifle mixed in consequence, and forget to make the requisite allowance for the throw-off.

ANGLING.

OPENING OF THE TROUT AND BASS SEASON.

On Saturday next, November 1, the opening of the trout-fishing season will attract scores of anglers to the river banks. The rainbow trout, that prince of sporting fishes, ever present in the mind of the sportsman, will become on that day the lawful prey of everyone skilful enough to catch him. Daylight on Saturday morning will see many city men, unaccustomed to such early rising, braving the chill Monaro air long before the sun appears over the hills, wading in midstream, plying the split-cane, and searching every ripple, eddy, and pool, in the hope of catching the first trout of the season.

Last year the first trout came to the fly of a Sydney doctor, at Stewart's, on the Badja, and as a large party of clever anglers will be there on Saturday, it is reasonable to expect that the same stream will secure the laurels this year. The Badja is a stream that never becomes discoloured, no matter how big a flood rushes along its bed. Floods during the winter have positively carried away all the weeds, and at the time of writing there is not one showing anywhere. No doubt a growth will soon reach the surface, as these aquatic plants grow quickly, and it is very seldom that the roots are disturbed even by the heaviest floods. There is more water in the Badja than is usual at this time of the year; and this sluggish stream now has a fairly strong current running through it. Good trout are to be seen since the weather became warm, rising to the fly, and playing about at the surface, and so the opening week promises well.

Among the visitors who intend spending the opening week or so at Stewart's, on the Badja, are Dr. H. L. Maitland and Mr. C. H. Gorrick, who leave Sydney by motor on October 29, proceeding that day to Yass, thence to Tumut and the Yarrangobilly Caves. From there they will journey to Kiandra, then to Cooma, reaching the Badja on the night of October 31. The remainder of the Sydney party, which includes Mr. F. Hyland, Dr. A. B. Cox, Mr. Guy Belisario, and Dr. Phipps, will also arrive at Stewart's on October 31, while Dr. Stanwell and Dr. Dunhill, from Melbourne, both keen fly-fishermen, and members of the New South Wales Anglers' Casting Club, will be very early on the scene. To judge by past achievements, the trout in the Badja River are likely to be thinned out a little during the opening week. The Queanbeyan River is another early stream that will not be neglected on November 1. Mr. W. Bollard, with his sons Jack and Frank, Mr. Strudwick, Mr. Corey, Mr. Roach, and other keen local anglers will be early on the water, and it will be a close thing between the anglers, on this stream and the Badja, for the honour of catching the first trout.

Last season Mr. W. Bollard caught the largest trout of the season in the Queanbeyan. It was a 9½lb rainbow, and he seconded it with an 8½lb brown trout, both of which were sent to his friends in Sydney.

Brindabella will not be without its share of visitors; the reputation of the Goodradigbee as a trout stream is too well-known to need much comment. The trout run smaller than in the rivers mentioned above, but they make up for this by marvellous gameness and endurance. The water is swift, clear, and cold, and it is the ideal home of the rainbow trout, the main river and all its tributaries being heavily stocked. Last season 4lb was the weight of the largest trout, taken by the late Mr. L. Whitfield, whose genial face will be seen in his favourite haunts no more. It is here that Mr. John Gale, the veteran Queanbeyan fly-fisherman, caught the largest trout that has been recorded from the Goodradigbee, and no doubt there are many more like it in this fine stream.

From Tumut we learn that the Tumut, Goobragandra, Yarrangobilly, and other streams in the district are in good fishing trim. They are a little above normal level, but the water is clear and the trout are feeding at the surface. In these, and the other streams referred to above, there is little or no inconvenience caused by snow water, and quite a number of Sydney and local anglers will be on them early on November 1, and good sport is practically assured.

For the month of November we do not recommend the Snowy River; it is very full just now, due to a heavy flood recently; and there is a great deal of snow still on the mountains, which must melt before the river will be at its best. Flocks of shags are taking their toll unmolested, and if every angler visiting this stream took his gun with him occasionally, he would have good sport stalking these wily birds, and do a deal of good to the district at the same time.

In the "Herald" lately attention was drawn to the northern trout streams, as offering great inducements for the early weeks of the seasons; and we understand that a party of Sydney anglers are leaving for Woolbrook and Walcha Road, so as to get a fly on the water before the heat of summer spoils the fishing. The M'Donald River is a fine stream; it comes from the Moonbi Ranges, and is fed by numerous springs and perennial gullies, and contains plenty of large trout. Local anglers catch a great many with natural bait, but are rapidly becoming converts to the scientific art of fly-fishing.

PERCH OR AUSTRALIAN BASS.

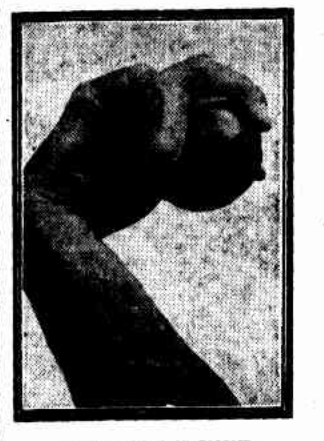
While there is not so much enthusiasm in respect to perch fishing, as is inspired by the rainbow trout, there are many keen anglers, unable to get away for a holiday just yet, who will spend most of their week-ends on the rivers nearer home, fishing for bass with fly or spinner. For detailed information as to the best places to go for these fine sporting fish, reference should be made to an article in the "Herald" of September 27. A small army of anglers will leave Sydney on Friday and Saturday next for the Nepean, Grose, Burragorang, Woronora, Wyong, and other streams near Sydney, in many of which the fish have been seen rising since early in September. The closure that has been proclaimed for the protection of the bass will be of incalculable benefit, as in September nearly all the fish caught are females. It has not been scientifically explained whether their full-roed condition makes them extra ravenous, but it is on record that 18 of these fish were caught by an angler at Albion Park on September 21, 1909, and every one of them was a gravid female. Hence the careless angler prior to the proclamation of the close season, must have destroyed, in his ignorance, hundreds of thousands of eggs, doing incalculable damage, and spoiling his own chance of sport in the future.

GRADE CRICKET.

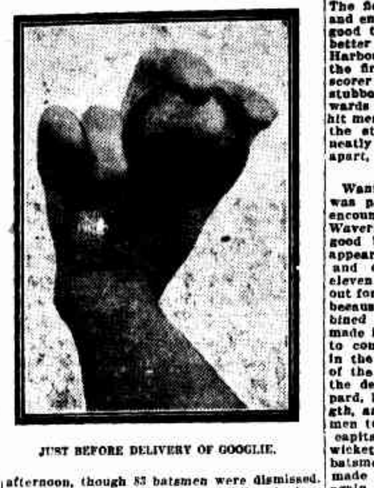
END OF THIRD ROUND.

A BOWLER'S DAY.

It was a bowler's day in grade-cricket on Saturday. The showers of Friday and those in the early morning on Saturday had impaired most of the metropolitan pitches to a greater or less extent; and incidentally conferred a great advantage upon the teams having the good fortune to bat first on the previous Saturday. Gordon was the only team to set the conditions at defiance, but then the northern suburbs team had the smallest total to face, and the pitch played comparatively easily. At one time, however, when six wickets were down for 127 (six for 78 on the day), Balmain seemed to have the match well in hand. The next partnership, F. A. Iredale with H. Barker, completely reversed the positions; 93 runs were added before the latter lost his wicket, and 28 only were required for victory. It was a stirring partnership, and one that provided the expectant crowd with many thrills.



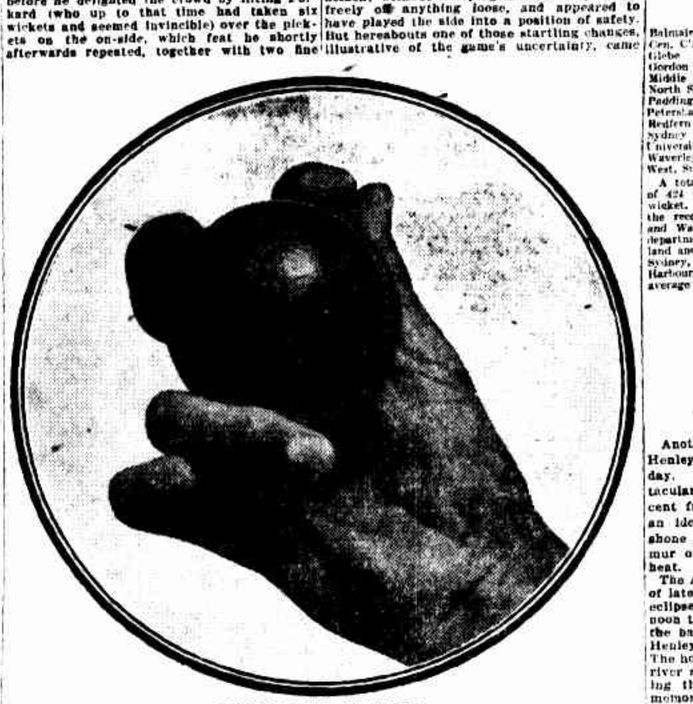
COMMENCEMENT OF GOOGLIE.



JUST BEFORE DELIVERY OF GOOGLIE.

A VETERAN'S SUCCESS.

The veteran internationalist, whose graceful and scientifically correct batsmanship, will always be remembered as one of the pleasantest "spots" in historical cricket recollection, was seen in the somewhat unfamiliar role of vigorous and defiant aggression. Hardly had he taken his place at the creases before he delighted the crowd by lifting Folkard (who up to that time had taken six wickets and seemed invincible) over the pickets on the on-side, which feat he shortly afterwards repeated, together with two fine fours in the same over. It seemed as though the veteran was endeavouring to give effect to the notion that the "colts" who preceded him had shown too much respect for the bowling. He turned his attention chiefly to Folkard's deliveries, and he was the only batsman to really punish it, or, indeed, to play it with any degree of confidence. He took risks, certainly, and more than once should have paid the penalty; but the risks he took were justified in the circumstances, and in their results. It is not like Iredale to take risks so freely, but that only added to the popularity of his performance and increased the general admiration for his exceptional skill which, even now, in the autumn of his career, so readily adapts itself to circumstances. In his 84, there were ten fours and three sixes; his innings was the big match-winning factor on Saturday.



BOTH LEG-BREAK AND GOOGLIE.

A VALUABLE RECRUIT.

But there was another from this view-point, hardly less meritorious performance, though not comparable in the matter of runs nor in its spectacular aspect. This was Barker's patient, defensive innings. Most of his runs were made in singles; there were three fours and one six in his 43; but the supreme value of his innings lay in the stubborn defence he set up which worried the bowlers even more than his partner's hitting. It was playing the game for his side. Already in a previous match, Barker has done that in a very aggressive manner, so that he is proving a very valuable recruit to the ranks of Gordon.

HOW A GREAT BOWLER GRIPS THE BALL.

DR. H. V. HORDERN'S FAMOUS "GOOGLIE."

FOLKARD AGAIN!

The bowling honours of the game certainly belong to Folkard, who, despite miserable assistance from the field, captured seven wickets for 93 on Saturday, which, as 34 runs had been hit from him on the previous day, brought his complete analysis for the innings up to seven wickets for 127 runs. For 2½ hours on Saturday he kept one end going, and always appeared likely to get the batsmen out. As previously stated, Iredale was the only one to mete out punishment to him, and in this case the luck was with the batsman; several other chances, too, were dropped off his bowling. His success on Saturday gives him 25 wickets for the three rounds (more than any other bowler) at an average cost of 14.36 runs per wicket. With the bat, too, Folkard has made most runs to date (232) at an average of 77.33 per innings without a not-out. These are splendid testimonials of all-round ability.

GOOD EFFORT BY WESTERN SUBURBS.

Gordon's victory keeps that team at the head of the competition tables. It was the exception to the rule, for in every other instance victory went to the side winning the toss. Of the others, Western Suburbs made a very good attempt to stave off defeat at the Sydney Cricket Ground. At one time with 70 on the board and no one out, the position looked very encouraging for Western Suburbs. P. W. Docker and H. G. Pratten were batting well. The former, after a cautious opening, settled down to vigorous play, and soon had 48 to his credit, though only four fours were included in this score. The outfield was sodden and boundaries were not easy to get; hence his strokes would have been worth very much more in more favourable circumstances. A similar commentary might be made on Pratten's batting. He played as neatly and correctly as he usually does, but his best scoring strokes lacked the vim and power to carry them to the boundary. His 61 was a splendid effort in the circumstances, but it only included two boundaries. It shares with Iredale's 84, however, the distinction of being the only half century scores of the afternoon, though 83 batsmen were dismissed. Later on Docker played a sparkling innings for 32 including seven fours, but the efforts of the others tailed off, and the innings which promised so much at the outset ended for 210, which, considering the state of the pitch and the outfield carries no special credit for the bowlers. Strange coming on late, did best capturing five for 50 in fifteen overs. In the second innings Coogan, three for 10, in seven overs, did best, and a word of praise is due to McKay for a promising innings of 32.

MORE BOWLING SUCCESSES.

At Glebe the game was delayed till 3.40, and after the first hour's play Glebe still had all its wickets intact, with 60 runs on the board. Kelleway and Watson, the opening pair, apparently found little difficulty in the attack; without hurrying matters they scored freely off anything loose, and appeared to have played the side into a position of safety. But hereabouts one of those startling changes, illustrative of the game's uncertainty, came over the play, and the prospects of the home side ran rapidly down hill. L. A. Minnett was given a turn with the ball; he clean bowled Watson in his first over, and, continuing to keep the upper hand along with Hopkins, may be said to have gone through the remainder of the side. Cotter hit up 35 in half an hour, and Buckle scored a hasty 24 in half the time; but the seven remaining [illegible] scored only eight between them. It looked very inferior batting, but much credit is due to the bowlers—Minnett and Hopkins. The former secured five for 37 in ten overs, and the latter five for 21 in eight overs. It is worth noting that they were the fifth and sixth bowlers tried respectively. As captain "A.J.H." would appear too modest in regard to his own bowling. He has captured 12 wickets at an average of 8.16 per wicket in this season's competition, and appears to be bowling with very near his oldtime dash and penetration. Leslie Minnett, too, is to be complimented on what appears to be a return to form. For quite a while, owing to a fractious ankle, he has been unable to do himself justice at the bowling crease; but there seems no reason, with restored health, why he should not resume his former effectiveness in grade cricket, even if it is rather late now to fulfil the promise of international honours of a few seasons ago.

REDFERN SCORES OUTRIGHT.

The most complete success of the round belongs to Redfern, who gained three points at the expense of Sydney. Excluding the spin of the coin (the biggest factor in this success) the leading feature in the local team's victory was the all-round play of Grummett. On the previous Saturday, when the Redfern innings was tailing off badly after a big beginning, Grummett hit about him with splendid confidence and resolution, and was not dismissed till he had made 75 most useful runs. With the ball he captured six for 42 runs in the first innings, and four for 52 in the second. These are splendid figures, and it may be added that but for a couple of overs during the last wicket partnership in the second innings of Sydney, he bowled throughout both innings. The main feature of his bowling was his accurate length, although at times he varied his pace very well. It was a bowlers' wicket, of course, upon which length is always of paramount importance. Notwithstanding the fact that on such wickets "break" is so easily obtainable, the tendency to indulge in big breaks on a bowlers' wicket is the cause of most failures on such pitches. It was an ideal wicket for a left-hander, and although Makin captured four for 22 in the first innings and two for 26 in the second, his efforts can hardly be written down an unqualified success. There is little to be said of the Sydney batting. The conditions of play were all in favour of the bowlers, and Jenkins was the only player to reach double figures in each innings. He top-scored with 35 in the first, and played very well also in the second for 23.

THE SUCCESS OF THE "COLTS."

Paddington scored a big victory over Middle Harbour—229 runs on the first innings and only two men out—but there was not sufficient hostility in their bowling to gain the major points. Five bowlers captured wickets in the first innings with Trennery (four for 35) doing best, and in the second innings Francis (three for 22), and Callaway (one for 10), who did not bowl in the first, captured the wickets. This was Paddington's first success of the season and the great feature about it was the prominent part played by the "colts." The batting on the previous Saturday was a veritable triumph for the new men, and ten of the 13 Middle Harbour wickets that fell were obtained also by "colts." The fielding of the team, too, has the dash and enthusiasm of youth about it, and, though good throughout on Saturday, promises still better work in the near future. Five Middle Harbour batsmen reached double figures in the first innings, with E. P. Woolcott top-scorer with 27. The veteran played very stubbornly, keeping the attack at bay for upwards of an hour. Gee, on the other hand, hit merrily for 19, including one nice drive into the street for six. Anderson (26) played neatly in the second innings, but these efforts apart, the mastery was always with the ball.

PETERSHAM UNLUCKY.

Wanting 220, with nine wickets in hand, it was particularly bad luck on Petersham to encounter unfavourable batting conditions at Waverley on Saturday. As it was, a fairly good beginning was made, but although 70 appeared on the board with only two men out, and despite the fact that seven of the eleven got double figures the whole side was out for 141. Runs were hard to get, certainly, because the outfield was dead, and this combined with the slow character of the pitch made it necessary to "force" runs if they were to come in any number. It was generally in the attempt to "force" things that most of the batsmen fell, though when playing on the defensive they did well enough. Sheppard, however, bowled a very persistent length, and was successful immediately the batsmen took liberties. His seven for 62 was a capital performance. Following on, the wicket played better after the rolling, and the batsmen quite held their own. Newton, who made 42 (top score) in the first innings, again batted well in the second for 37. Some of his off strokes were very crisply and confidently made, and his defence was always good. Harvey, who had made 12 not-out in the first innings, also batted with confidence and freedom for 32, whilst both Oram and Norris batted with studied care for their contributions, 35 and 31 respectively. In six overs Shea captured two wickets for 22; but Sheppard injured a finger and had to retire after sending down seven overs for 14 runs. At the close of play Petersham had regained most of their lost ground, despite the disadvantageous conditions and the follow-on. It was a very meritorious performance.

A total of 9870 runs have been scored for the loss of 424 wickets, giving an average of 23.27 runs per wicket. It will be noticed in the above table that the records of Balmain, Gordon, Redfern, University, and Waverley are better than this average in both departments, whilst the batting of Central Cumberland and Paddington, and the bowling of Glebe, North Sydney, and Petersham are above the standard. Middle Harbour, Sydney, and Western Suburbs are below the average in both batting and bowling.

ROWING.

HENLEY-ON-YARRA.

A BRILLIANT SUCCESS.

Another brilliant success for Australia's Henley was recorded at Melbourne on Saturday. It was not only a truly brilliant spectacular display, but it was equally magnificent from an oarsman's viewpoint. It was an ideal Australian spring day. The sun shone brightly, and there was just a murmur of a breeze that prevented unpleasant heat.

The Australian Henley has grown enormously of late years, and on Saturday the attendance eclipsed all previous records. Soon after noon the crowd began to take up positions on the banks of the river, and by 3 o'clock the Henley Reserve was a gay and living picture. The house boats were snugly moored along the river side, and were brightly decorated, making the main feature of a picturesque and memorable display. The boats were made the rendezvous of Melbourne's elite; also the interstate visitors and race competitors.

The president—Mr. Geo. Fairbairn—and Mrs. Fairbairn entertained a number of guests on their house boat, amongst whom were Messrs. Alex. Thomson, A. Kenny, McKenzie, and Mears, as well as the crew representing the Leichhardt Rowing Club in the Elswick challenge race. An enormous crowd of well-dressed people lined the banks of the river, and obtained an excellent view of the racing. The river was "boomed," and hundreds of uniquely-dressed pleasure skiffs and motor boats moved gracefully through the water. In many instances the decorations were the results of excellent taste, and these in themselves were worth a journey to see. The well-kept lawns and neatly-designed flower beds, which were all in full bloom, added charms to the wonderful scene.

The boat-racing was in many respects not first-class, but nevertheless produced some very exciting finishes. The first event took place at 12.15, and the racing continued until 5.15 p.m., during which no fewer than 39 events were contested. The race of the day, of course, was the Grand Challenge. At practice, during the week, the University crew were slightly favourites. It was stroked by the Olympic oarsman, Simon Fraser, with Ross Soden No. 7. Their form was rather disappointing. Considering the race was only a mile, they found some difficulty in striking more than 33 or 34 per minute; and their best time over the course was given as 5m 7s. The Mercantile boat also covered the course in 5m 7s. Ballarat and Footscray did not succeed in doing a full course trial row; but the Civil Service covered it in 5m 3s.

However, the first heat in the race provided good sport, and a great race. Civil Service, rowing well up to practice form, won by two lengths in 5m 2s. Perhaps the second heat was even a better race, and was won by Albert Park from University, with Mercantile third. The final resulted in a desperate struggle, in which the Civil Service crew prevailed and secured the victory by a few feet. In this, as in other races, the form shown was disappointing. In fact, it might be said the rowing was below the average, not only in the maiden and junior division, but in the higher divisions as well.

Although the Henley regatta is held at a time which is popular, and when the city is beginning to fill in anticipation of the great racing carnival, it is doubtful if the time is best suited for rowing races. It seems to be the general opinion that it is too early in the season to allow of a good display of oarsmanship. It must be remembered that the distance for the races is only one mile, and to row them well needs careful and complete training and thorough coaching.

The Yarra Challenge Cup was captured by a New South Wales sculler, Alma Cox, who had a rather easy win and showed good form. The Ladies' Challenge Cup for school crews attracted some good crews, and it was anticipated that Melbourne Grammar School and St. Joseph's College (Sydney) would put up a great record. The form shown by the Melbourne boys was perhaps the best on the river, and superior to many of the senior crews. However, they were too good for the St. Joseph's lads, whose stroke was too erratic for the well regulated men behind him.

The Elswick challenge race was disappointing from a New South Wales view point. Leichhardt R.C. had the honour of representing the State with a very neat and fast junior crew, who succeeded in attracting favourable comment from good critics on the river, who expected them to win. They went to the post fit and well and confident, but they were badly boated, having to row in one that had seen its best days. In their heat they secured a good lead, but it did not last long, as No. 3 seat became detached from the runners owing to one of the clips giving way. The accident put them out of the race, and they appealed to be allowed to start in the second heat, but the rules would not permit such a course, and they were a much disappointed crew. They returned to the sheds without the satisfaction of testing their powers.

THE SCULLING CHAMPIONSHIP.

Next Saturday, about 4.15 p.m., D. J. Arnst and James Paddon will row for the sculling championship of Australia, £400 stake money and the "Referee" Cup. Three suitable steamers have been chartered, in the interests of the rowers, to follow the race, with the sanction and under the regulations of the Sydney Harbour Trust. These steamers will start from, and return to, No. 5 and No. 6 berths at Fort Macquarie, and complete arrangements have been made for the sale of tickets at £1, 10s, and 5s. The Gosford will carry the referee, William Beach, and a limited number of interested persons. On the other two boats there will be room for at least a thousand spectators, and a large amount of gate-money is expected. Besides these steamers two others will be moored alongside the course, but well clear of where the rowers will want to take their way.

The start will be by mutual consent, from near the Ryde end of the railway bridge. Just there, the tide will serve, but it will probably be slow, because the water will be low in the river, with only about one hour's ebb. A straight run to the beacon on Blaxland's Point will mark the first mile. It will be a hot time to Putney, and the distance to this point is about 1½ miles. After leaving Putney it is usual to cross over to the Gas Works; but this will depend on how the falling tide serves the rowers, also as to the direction of the breeze. The tide table is calculated for Sydney Cove, and about one hour has to be added before it will be high water at Ryde. After passing Cabarita, there probably will be very little tide to help the scullers, so nothing wonderful in the way of fast time can be expected. However, the course will take a deal of rowing, when two men such as Arnst and Paddon are called upon for a supreme effort. Both are so well that neither is likely to falter; and those who go on the river to see a great struggle will not be disappointed. How Arnst is going to shake off Paddon one cannot tell, but to win he must put on his best pace. The ex-champion is evidently favourite with the public; and the reasons for this are his previous successes, and his fitness at the present time. Paddon has been seen getting up great pace, but Arnst does not get away from Felton. He, however, must have done something very good to inspire so much confidence in the minds of his immediate following who are such experienced men.

The Richmond River sportsmen have not found as much of Paddon's stake-money as was expected; and there may be only a moderate amount of money from there to wager with. There are many indications that Arnst will be a strong favourite owing to his experience, and the lukewarm support accorded to Paddon in the matter of his stake-money. Mr. Hay Wilson, who is the organising secretary, is certainly good at developing details of management, and no hitch of any kind should occur.

It is interesting to know that Paddon will be 27 years of age on November 19, and Arnst will reach 30 on November 25. Peter Kemp, who has so much to do with Arnst, will celebrate his sixtieth birthday just 10 days before Arnst is half that age.

THE QUESTION OF AMATEURISM.

This is the only State of the Commonwealth in which professional rowing has found anything like a creditable and definite foundation. There is, however, nothing from a pecuniary standpoint, to induce an amateur to lose his status; for about 75 per cent. of professional rowers do not get back enough to clear out-of-pocket expenses, such as for boats, sculls, and training. Still, so long ago as can be remembered, professionals came from the amateur ranks. To mention a few instances will serve to make this statement good. Edward Hanlan rowed in Canada as an amateur, William Hickey, Michael Rush, Edward Trickett, and several others have competed here in the amateur races. Harry Pearce first started in a race open to amateurs, and in which amateurs entered. In New Zealand W. Hearn, T. Sullivan, W. Webb, C. Stevenson, and some others were recognised as amateurs. Of those who have gone over during the past few years, several represented the strength of rowing in this State, and the New South Wales Association availed itself of their services. Rowers at Henley who had represented America soon afterwards became professionals. Many well-known families in Sydney have provided amateurs as good as any who have ever rowed, but their prizes were cash; for the reason that in those days, and up to January, 1875, everybody rowed for money prizes. At the present day the amateur sportsman has a better status than at any time before, and the line between the two classes is clearly defined, yet the professional is by no means a bad sportsman.

A cable message, published in yesterday's "Herald," states that the "Sportsman" (London) is of the opinion that if Ernest Barry does not accept William Albany's challenge in terms of the sculling championship rules, that he must forfeit the title. It is believed here that Barry has never complied strictly to the rules which were drawn up in this State, and partly adopted in England. Barry, no doubt, is waiting to hear the result of the Arnst-Paddon race, to be rowed on the Parramatta next Saturday. He promised, according to the newspapers, to accept a challenge from Paddon if he wished to row for the title on the Thames.

AMATEUR SPORT.

SACRIFICED TO PROFESSIONALISM.

THE NEED FOR REFORM.

The bonds of conservatism, no matter how tightly they may be drawn, have not, apparently, preserved the citadel of amateur sport from those rude and oft recurring shocks caused by the defection of prominent athletic champions to the ranks of the professionals. A prominent footballer forsakes the Union code for the glamour of the League; then an oarsman, one of the crew who made Australia's name famous in the aquatic world, deserts his old comrades for a professional crew. So the same story is told in the club rooms of the cyclists, and other places where athletes foregather. The defections are many; but the applications for reinstatement are few.

Each branch of athletics is composed of two rival factions—the amateur and the professional. There is no gainsaying the fact that slowly but surely the professional element is gaining ground and becoming the stronger of the two, not only in one, but in all branches of sport. Its most rapid advances naturally are in the direction in which the popular fancy of the sport-loving public is centred. The professional athlete's services are of a high marketable value, and his life, especially in certain callings, is not one to be decried.

It is apparently only a matter of time, and it may not be very far distant, before the entire athletic world will be swamped by professionalism. Several of the amateur sporting bodies have foreseen this. They are fighting tooth and nail to keep their own particular sport free from the professional taint, principally by fencing themselves in by the most rigid regulations and dealing summarily with defaulters. Other bodies are notably lax in these respects. They permit their associates to take the field with professionals, and to compete against professionals for prizes which may or may not be of the open-order variety. Rumours are freely circulated that members of so-called amateur bodies, individually and collectively receive monetary grants for their services. If then, there is a decadence in amateur sport, herein lies the cause. Actually there is no consolidation of amateur sporting bodies. A cyclist, affiliated with the New South Wales Cyclists' Union, for example, would irrevocably be classed as a professional if he indulged in the same round of cash-besprinkled contests as some of the much-travelled representatives of other pastimes.

The standard of the professional games and the calibre of the cash-hunting athlete apparently does not deteriorate under the guidance of a sound commercial directorate, rather does it appear that there is a general all round improvement. Under bad management, of course, the sport, be it football, cricket, or cycling, fails. But to what heights above the corresponding amateur branches has it attained where the council has been well-chosen and its dealings above board? In these circumstances, it is easily understood why these defections occur; upon consideration, the surprise is that there are not more. An amateur footballer in New South Wales cannot take part in a League game, as played at the present time, without forfeiting his status as an amateur. The same rule does not apply on the cricket field in Australia, nor yet on the football field in England. C. B. Fry the University athlete was considered none the less an amateur because he donned the jersey of the Southampton Football Club and played for season after season in the full-back position; and he was the only amateur on the field. The cords which bind the Australian amateurs are strangely drawn indeed.

The motives which prompt the amateur athlete to throw in his lot with the professionals may not be entirely governed by a desire for large monetary benefit. It is difficult to believe that a man would submit himself to the rigours of training for these first-class athletic contests without there being a strong interest for the game at the back of it all. It is notorious that some athletes are not content without the limelight and the crowd, and in some branches of sport, as is well known, it is necessary to be in the front rank of the professionals for them to attain this end.

In what manner, it may be asked, are these defections to be stopped? How may the citadel of the amateur be strengthened? In the first place, it is evident that the amateur status must be clearly defined, the same definition applying, not only to one branch of sport, but to all departments, which, say, are recognised by the Olympic council. Secondly, all branches of amateur athletics should be banded together by one federation, whose duties, among other matters should consist of the allotting of prize moneys, and the disbursement of funds in such instances, where the despatch of an international team or representative abroad, is concerned.

ATHLETICS.

SOUTH SYDNEY HARRIERS' CARNIVAL.

COUNCIL MEETING.

Some excellent performances were made at the Sydney Sports Ground last Saturday, when the South Sydney Harriers held the first meeting of their tenth annual carnival. Fine weather was experienced, although rain fell on the previous day and during the morning which made the tracks a little on the heavy side. The attendance was not large, but those on the ground enjoyed a splendid programme. All the field games and jumping events were open to members of the New South Wales Association, and were all well supported, notably the running high jump, which received a nomination of 19. The most important item of the afternoon was the running hop, step, and jump championship of New South Wales, which proved highly interesting. Eleven entries were received, and with the absence of such fine performers as D. Lane, who holds the Australasian record of 47ft 3in, and E. A. Southee, the winner was not easily selected, but E. R. Cox (East Sydney), holder of the 100 yards championship of New South Wales, won decisively, recording 43ft 2½in. This is 1ft 9in better than that done by J. Smith (South Sydney), who was placed second. The latter won the club championship. With practice, Cox should improve; his hop and step are well done, but the concluding jump lacks method. He should double his legs under him more, and when nearing the ground throw them well forward, but not too much.

One of the most interesting events was the running high jump, which was won by W. J. Potter (Redfern) who, with his allowance of 4in, registered 5ft 11½in. A. H. Scott (East Sydney), holder of the New South Wales record of 6ft, was a competitor, but being out of form could not do better than 5ft 6½in. J. Smith, of the promoting club cleared the bar at 5ft 8½in, gaining third place in the open handicap, and first in the club championship. T. Maker (East Sydney), with an allowance of 4in, was second. The concluding open event was putting the 16lb shot, for which 10 nominated, and was won by J. Smith (South Sydney Harriers), with an allowance of 5ft, and he also gained first place in the club championship, his best effort being 32ft 6½in. C. E. Griffiths, allowed 7ft 6in, and G. C. Smith allowed 14ft, members of the same club, filled the remaining positions. W. O'Reilly (Police Club) who holds the Australasian record of 44ft 3in for the 16lb shot was a competitor, but was unplaced. As expected, J. F. Bradley easily won both the 100 yards and 440 yards championships. In the former event Madeley was first away, and led for 60 yards, when Bradley, with a grand burst of speed, went away and won by two yards in the splendid time of 10 1-10s. He was not troubled in the 440 yards, which he won very easily in 53s. The winner has on several occasions done 51s for this event, and should he retain his form, he has an excellent chance of winning at least two events at the next Australasian championships. He is also expected to run well against the American athletes who will visit us early next year.

South Sydney Harriers are fortunate in having such a fine walker as H. T. Dent. In the club's one-mile walk championship, he easily won by 40 yards from R. L. Banham, in the good time of 6m 57s. This is the best time that has been recorded in New South Wales for some time, and he should, if extended, establish much faster time. He holds the 25 miles' walking championship of New South Wales, and also the two-miles' record of 14m 54s. At the Manly Marathon sports Dent also finished third from scratch to A. Pickard in the one mile club handicap walk. J. W. Frazer easily won the 120 yards hurdles championship from C. E. Griffiths, the time being 17 1-5s. Frazer has frequently beaten this time; his record is 15 9-10s, when he finished second to J. L. Davis, in the Victorian championship in February, 1912. A. F. Thorpe did not experience any difficulty in winning the one mile championship. Leading practically from start to finish, he passed the tape by 10 yards from the holder of the title, E. J. Manson, in 4m 55s, which shows how easily he won. At the last Eight Hours Day Sports the South Sydney runner was successful in the one-mile open handicap, starting virtually from scratch (10yds), and winning by 40yds, in the fast time of 4m 29s. This athlete has many other fine performances to his credit, and he holds both the 440yds and 880yds State championships. He won the latter by 40 yards in the fast time of 2m 0⅗s, and had he been extended, he would probably have broken the two minutes. He should be a valuable man for New South Wales at the next Australasian championships.

The South Sydney Harriers will conclude the carnival next Saturday afternoon at the Sydney Sports Ground, where a large programme of events will be run through. The most important item to be contested is the one mile relay championship of New South Wales, for five men in a team, each to run 352 yards. Only two teams have nominated—South Sydney and East Sydney clubs—but this was all that was expected, because no other club, could enter a team capable of extending either of the foregoing clubs. Although the East Sydney team, composed of E. R. Cox, A. L. Harwood, C. R. Harwood, M. J. M'Carthy, and R. P. Warner, is a strong combination, South Sydney Harriers' representatives—J. F. Bradley, P. T. Redmond, F. E. Beaver, A. F. Thorpe, and F. C. H. Madeley—should be a little too strong for them. It might be mentioned that all the South Sydney team have either won or been placed in a 440 yards State championship.

Seven nominations have been received for the pole vault open handicap, which is a fair nomination for this class of event. H. Thompson, who holds the club championship, should again be successful, followed by J. Smith and C. E. Griffiths. Thompson, who also holds the State championship, is on scratch in the open handicap, giving away allowances up to 2ft 3in. C. T. Ferguson (Police Club), who has a concession of 1ft, should win, with Thompson and J. Smith filling the minor places. The running broad jump open handicap, and club championship has received the splendid entry of 28. This is probably the largest nomination that has been received in this State for this branch of athletics. J. H. Wicks (South Sydney) from 1ft 3in mark should win, with W. H. Kerr (6in) and J. Smith (scratch), in the places. J. Smith should win the club championship, followed by J. H. Wicks and J. W. Frazer. The concluding open event on the programme is throwing the 16lb hammer, for which five competitors have entered, including the joint N.S.W. championship holders, W. O'Reilly and C. T. Ferguson, both members of the Police Club, and they should fill the leading places respectively. O'Reilly is conceding Ferguson 3ft. F. C. H. Madeley, F. E. Beaver, P. T. Remond, and J. H. Wicks are the entrants for the 220 yards club championship, and should finish in that order, although the competitor who draws the outside position will give away a lot of ground, as the track at the Sport Ground has such sharp corners.

H. T. Dent, who has lately been walking so consistently, should win the three miles championship walk from R. L. Bonham and J. J. Harley. A splendid race should be witnessed in the 880 yards event, between A. F. Thorpe and J. F. Bradley, both of whom have been successful in a State championship at this distance; nevertheless Thorpe should win from Bradley, with E. J. Manson in third place. The 440 yards hurdle championship should prove an easy victory for J. W. Frazer, holder of the club and State championships, followed by T. R. Cole and F. E. Beaver.

The three miles championship, however, should be a keener race, with E. J. Manson passing the tape a winner from R. J. Fitzsimmons and T. R. Cole. Other events to be contested are:—100 yards handicap for members of the Mozart Juvenile Harriers, 352 yards handicap walk for the Ladies' Amateur Club, 100 yards novice handicap for the South Sydney Club, and a 880 yards handicap walk for members of the Sydney Amateur Walkers' Club, all of which have received a satisfactory nomination.

The principal discussion at the council meeting of the New South Wales Association last week was in reference to a telegram from the Victorian Association, asking if a change in the dates of the Australasian championships from January 24 and 26 to two Saturdays in the latter end of February were suitable. This alteration has been approved by the New Zealand body, and it is quite probable that they will send a team to represent the Dominion at the forthcoming Australasian meeting. The local association decided that the alteration in the dates would not inconvenience them in any way, and that they were agreeable to the alteration providing that the Victorian body announced definite dates. This arrangement is very pleasing, and the prospect of New Zealand being represented at the 1914 Australasian championships is gratifying, as a meeting without the Dominion athletes would be incomplete. Other important business was that dealing with a letter from the New Zealand Association, asking the New South Wales body to forward the £150 guarantee, required for the initial expenses of the American athletes before the 31st instant. The New South Wales Association decided to remit the amount, providing the Dominion furnished further information.

HEALTHY AND WEALTHY AND WISE.

"Bad habitations in cities are probably the most potent cause of the degeneration of the race, and of the lowering of the health-producing capacity of the nation," said Mr. J. D. Fitzgerald in a lecture on "The Effect of Health on National Wealth," before the Health Society of New South Wales last Monday afternoon. The question of bad habitation is one that ultimately affects women, for it is the women and children who suffer most directly from the effects of poor and unhealthy dwellings. "The wives and mothers of the workers (who are mainly exposed to these risks) have to live most of the 24 hours in the poisonous surroundings which slum areas, congestion, and bad housing produce," said the lecturer. And, again, "Special diseases are produced upon children in these surroundings, which retard their growth and tend to handicap them in industrial life. These children are, moreover, doomed to suffering, disease, and unhappiness. They become a burden upon the State from a very early period of their lives, and frequently a charge upon State institutions, either the gaols, hospitals, or asylums."

The speaker reminded his audience that it is not only in the old-world that these conditions exist: they are not unknown in the principal cities of the Commonwealth.

"Well, what has it to do with me?" asks Mrs. Suburbs. "Of course, I am very sorry that everyone hasn't a nice home, but if they like to live in slums it's no business of mine." But it is her business, and yours and mine. It is the business of every woman in the land—as well as every man—to see that the conditions which lower the vitality of the race are improved, and to see that every individual has a fair chance of being a healthy and useful member of the community. If no altruistic motives impel us, we are forced to make this matter our business by the fact that it touches our pockets. Hear what our lecturer has to say:—"Wherever the efficiency of the individual is impaired, either by accident, sickness, or permanent disablement, the wealth fund suffers. It suffers in two ways: By the actual loss of wealth-producing services of the disabled wealth-producer, and by the burden which is put upon the State of maintaining him, either in hospitals, institutions, or in enforced idleness in his own home." And the "State" does not mean Parliament or the Ministry. It means you and me, for we are the taxpayers, and out of our pockets comes the money to support the disabled worker.

"Well, supposing it does affect me," says Mrs. Suburbs, grudgingly, "what can I do to alter matters?"

As much as anyone else, for you have a voice in the affairs of the State. You can, for instance, help in the campaign to provide all crowded areas with open spaces and playgrounds for children, and to set apart such spaces in the new suburbs. Listen to our lecturer once more:—"It has been proved in the garden villages in England and Germany that the child in the garden village (where ideal housing conditions exist) is taller, broader in the chest, heavier, healthier, and probably happier, and, therefore, more likely to be an efficient wealth-producer than the child of the city lane or the slum street."

And you can help to arouse the civic conscience, and to form public opinion, so that bad housing and over-crowding will in time be as impossible in our civilisation as bear-baiting and bull-fighting. Read what is being done in other hands; you will not find it dull reading, go and see for yourself "how the other half lives"; picture yourself and your children forced to dwell under the same conditions, and then, when you are filled with the horror and seriousness of things as they are, talk about them to your neighbour, to your husband, to your sister, to anyone who will listen. And once you have thoroughly grasped the situation and realised its importance, you will have no difficulty in interesting others. So by degrees the civic conscience will awaken, and we will, as a State, arrive at that wisdom which is the forerunner of health and wealth.

But remember that nothing can be done without your help.

MELBOURNE NOTES.

The queue system has not yet been adopted in Melbourne. The chief objection appears to be its interference with traffic. But the control of the traffic is anything but satisfactory at present. The Lord Mayor is giving serious consideration to the urgent necessity for the establishment of queues. Once the public become accustomed to the idea very little trouble should be experienced in enforcing the system. It has proved a success in other places, why not here? The recent rush of the public to get vaccinated was a sample of congested traffic without method. After the first day's disgraceful scenes, the police took a hand, and marshalled the crowd into a queue, and kept them there. The confusion was ended, and law and order was maintained.

The twenty-sixth State conference of the Women's Christian Temperance Union is being held in Hamilton (western district of Victoria), from October 25 to November 1. About 100 delegates are present. The conference will deal with general matters affecting social life. Mrs. F. C. Spurr will introduce the subject: "Does the White Slave Traffic Threaten Australia?" Nurse Lee will introduce the subject of the "Maternity Bonus: Its Use and Abuse." "Schools for Mothers," by Mrs. Spurr; "Public-house Visitations," by Mrs. Mills; and "The Cradle Roll," by Mrs. J. Davies are some of the papers to be read. The Mayoress of Hamilton will entertain the delegates at the conclusion of the conference.

A meeting was recently held in the Melbourne Town Hall to discuss the best method of ensuring the success of the Children's Welfare Exhibition, which is to be held in November. Various institutions have come to the fore and the outlook is most satisfactory. All expenses are provided for, and the proceeds made from entrance money and the sale of refreshments will be profit.

Mrs. Fred Niblo (better known on the stage as Miss Josephine Cohan) suffered from ill-health on the occasion of her first visit to Australia, and was obliged to return to the United States. She has ventured to return to it, and is at present in Melbourne. With her husband and company, she is going to [illegible] to take the part of the leading lady in "Officer 666." This play is staged for the first time in Australia in that city. According to this versatile actress, "Ragtime" is the prevailing craze in the States.

A large and appreciative audience visited the Auditorium to hear Miss Carmen Delorat, violinist, and Mr. William Silver, pianist, give a concert of exceeding merit. Miss Delorat made a most favourable impression. She is a young player of undoubted talent, and shows signs of advanced training. It was a musical treat for music-lovers and the reception accorded the players should induce them to repeat the performance at an early date.

VERONICA.

FOOD AND THE GODS.

I have been trying for some days to catch Alicia, who had promised to help me in choosing gowns for my trousseau. When not in the clouds, she has excellent taste in dress, and combines fashion with individuality, in the racest and most effectived manner. She is also blessed (or cursed) with imagination. It was quite a month since we had met, and telephone messages, postcards, and even letters, having produced no result, I was delighted to run across her in town one morning, and promptly invited her to have some tea. She was looking very tired, so I plied her tactfully with food instead of questions. After her third scone, she apologised for having such an appetite. "But you see," she explained, "I couldn't settle to anything until Valhal was burnt." I am frankly unmusical, and my look of surprised interrogation drew an explanation.

"You evidently aren't a complete Wagnerite," she remarked scornfully, "or you would have understood my allusion."

"Possibly," I answered, with meekness—the prospects of my trousseau helping me to be meek.

"Do you know," continued Alicia triumphantly, "I did the whole of the 'Ring' on one boiled egg?"

"That would account for your exhausted look," I replied. "The fourth part of an egg can hardly sustain one during four hours of music."

"How literal you are," said Alicia peevishly—she is usually very sweet-tempered. "You see, that wonderful music is a strain on one, mentally and physically, and you should only eat the lightest and most nourishing food beforehand, so that all your faculties are free and clear to enjoy the music."

"But," I began—

Alicia interrupted me. "I know an ardent Wagnerite at home, who advises just one glass of sherry and a biscuit, before hearing one of Wagner's operas."

"Really," said I, "but would you mind not waving that piece of cake about? You nearly hit that woman in the eye."

Alicia looked annoyed, but began on the cake. "I went one night," she continued, "with a friend who had just dined off beefsteak and kidney pie, and she admitted to me afterwards that she had found the music much more difficult that evening, and that proves my case," she concluded triumphantly.

"Which opera was it?" I asked.

"Another time," pursued Alicia, ignoring me, "we ought really to have concentrated food—like what people take to the South Pole—so that we don't have to think of eating in connection with that sublime music."

"Not concentrated," I said imploringly; "I had something of that kind once, at the new food restaurant. For the space of one hour I felt as if I'd eaten an elephant, then, suddenly, an aching void. It would be worse than your boiled egg."

"Well, something simple, anyway," said Alicia unabashed, "then, when it is over, I like just one glass of champagne, and a few sandwiches; oyster and caviar so the best. That's all one wants," she added, seeing that I was about to speak, "and they are better than pate de foie-gras—I've tried both. They seem to suit with the exalted mood in which Wagner's music leaves one."

"Yes, I've heard of that mood," I remarked; "some people prescribe a cup of cocoa for it or biscuits and soda water."

"How very incongruous; but you have no imagination. And would you believe it, I was almost the only one among the audience who had thought of dressing appropriately."

I groaned at this. "That is too much! Surely the unfortunate audience are not supposed to dress in character, like the performers?" I shuddered, seeing in imagination the portly form of my brother, shouldering his way into the stalls, with bright pink arms and legs!

"No, no, but in colouring suited to the general tone and scheme of the play. For instance, when we went to see 'Tosca' I wore rose-coloured chiffon, utterly unsuited for any but the Italian opera. At the Rhinegold I had on a pale green ninon, and the yellow crepe-de-Chine—it's rather shabby—did quite well for the Valkyrie. I rather envied the woman next me her crimson scarf, it just hit the right note."

"How do you know when you are striking the wrong note in dress?"

"Oh you feel it. I knew the soft pale blue was the right for 'Siegfried,' just as nothing could have been better for the last one than my rainbow tinted net, over dull grey chiffon. It does help one to realise the music." Alicia pondered awhile; "I wish everything didn't seem so flat now!"

The subject of dress augured well for my trousseau. "You are so clever about clothes; Alicia, dear, do advise me how the wedding dress should be made."

Alicia though for a few moments, wrinkling her brow. "Let me see, Eric is tall and well-knit, the Siegfried type—I have it," she cried with joy, clapping her hands. "I have it! Made quite simply, plain and straight cashmere, I think, or nun's veiling, like Brunhilde's, but, for you, the girdle might be of silver," she looked scrutinisingly at me; I rose hastily, signalling the waitress. "How much?"

"I've had five scones, three cups of tea, and a piece of cake," said Alicia. "You are a dear; I certainly do feel much better. I'll help with your frock; leave it all to me."

"Thank you very much," I answered firmly, "but I've no time this morning. Next month we could meet and have a talk about it."

"Won't it be rather late then?" queried Alicia.

"Much too late," I said kindly, but firmly; "but if you'll live on mutton chops for a week I may consult you about my going away gown." And then I drove away to my dear Madame F. She may be rather too conventional in her ideas, but at least she is not musical!

WE ALL HAVE A HEADACHE.

Father has a headache,
Mother has a headache,
Sister has a headache,
Brother has a headache,
Auntie has a headache,
Uncle has a headache,
We all have a headache.
Why? Veils.

The song is one that the Pierrots used to sing; the answer to the question is our own. But you have only to look at any half a dozen women in boat or train to know that we are right, at least as far as "mother," "sister," and "auntie" are concerned. "Father," "brother," and "uncle's" headache may arise from various reasons, but in nearly every case where a woman complains of a headache at the end of the day, you can put the blame down to her veil.

Look at them. "mother," "auntie," "sister," each with her different type of headachey veil. "Mother" literally has "spots before the eyes"; she looks as if she has stuck her face into a bag of currants, and the black dots that sprinkle her veil catch her line of vision which ever way she looks. "Auntie" gazes out at you from a bewildering thicket of ferns and flowers and twining stems, which straggle blackly all over her carefully-finished complexion. You try to catch her eye in conversation, but a shaded fern-leaf blocks your view, and only a glint of an eye shining out at intervals from the bushy screen tells you that she is looking your way. Poor auntie! With so much dodging of stems and foliage, no wonder her eyes and head ache when the time arrives for coming out of the thicket. "Sister" does not obscure her features in so dense a cover. Confident in the power of her smooth skin and liquid powder, she boldly allows a black-winged butterfly, or even a dusky spider or murky octopus to sprawl across the whiteness of her cheek. (The damask cheek is out of date.) But in her maidenly glances, up or down, the tip of a wing or leg catches her eye, and causes her to squint a little to right or left, so as to dodge the obstruction.

Day after day "mother," "sister," "auntie" cover up their faces with these ridiculous veils, as they go out to do their shopping or calling. And night after night they come home, tired and headachy, and the family suffers from their fractiousness, and there is talk of nerve tonics and change of air and more help in the work, when really all they need is a plain veil, or, better still, no veil at all.

THE WONDERFUL WEEK.

It is ended now: Valhal has gone in flames, and the race of gods has departed. But it was a glorious, golden week while it lasted. Life was lifted out of the commonplace; the everyday events were lost in a burst of gorgeous music, the ordinary people mixed and mingled in an extraordinary fashion with gods and goddesses, heroes and kings. Even meals became invested with a strange interest, and rose superior to the rule of three.

For a whole week we lived in a topsy-turvy world, where values were readjusted and life was seen from quite a new point of view. For one wild, delirious week, "The Ring" was the centre of our universe, and all life revolved round it. The nights when the gods and heroes made way for mere mortals were just nights to rest in preparation for the coming feast of music; the events of the day were arranged to fit in with the 7 o'clock performances, engagements were postponed "till after the Ring," for the Ring of the Nibelung worked its magic spell over Sydney just as surely as ever it did over the race of Wotan.

You had only to peep into a tearoom at 6 o'clock on any "Ring" night to prove it. There you would have seen men contentedly making a meal of cold meat or sandwiches—men, who as a rule, demand the best of the cook's art and are satisfied with nothing less. But one can eat dinners any night in the year, while the "Ring" is a swiftly fleeting joy, to be seized as it flies. So the dinners were despatched without a thought of their dignity. In the long intervals between the acts were more signs of the magic of the "Ring." With the falling of the curtain men and women left their seats in stalls and circle, thronging out into the "foyer" and the vestibule for a breathing space. At the little counter waitresses worked unceasingly serving ices and cool drinks; white-haired ladies, carried away to the realms of the immortals, flung prudence to the winds, and fearlessly enjoyed their ices. Men and women, young and old, recklessly swallowed glasses of cool drinks, while the more venturesome, leaving the theatre, rushed across to convenient cafes for a cup of tea or coffee. And over the ices and the tea there was but one topic of talk—the Ring and its absorbing power. Snatches of criticism floated here and there above the din of eager voices, but the superior fault-finding critic was conspicuous by his absence. Even he had been caught in the magic whirl, and his carping voice was silenced by the torrents of music. The spell was potent.

And when the last curtain had fallen, and the last bar of music was ended, the magic still worked its power. You saw it in the flight up Market-street. Elderly men, with coat tails flying, elegant ladies with skirts recklessly held under their arms, young girls with streaming scarfs and the score clutched to their breasts—all of them, regardless of evening shoes, regardless of puddles, regardless of appearance—all tearing with feverish haste to the tram. It was the North Shore line, going for its last train. They might have slipped out a few minutes earlier, these people, and walked with dignity and ease to their trams and boats; but the magic held them spell-bound to the last chord. It was only when the last note was sounded that they woke, with a start, to the remembrance that the "Ring" held no power over the railway authorities, that station masters cared nothing for the sorrows of Brunhilde and the adventures of Siegfried, and that the last train would start just as it started on any ordinary night.

The "Ring" is ended, Valhal has gone in flames; the race of gods has departed, but the magic still weaves its spell in the memory.

THE NEW KINDERGARTEN COLLEGE.

Friday, October 24, was an eventful day in the history of the Kindergarten Union of N.S.W., for on that day, after 13 years in rented houses, it moved into a house of its own.

In Liverpool-street, on the heights of Darlinghurst, stands a solid old house, well-known to the older generation as Hilton, the residence of the late Mr. John Ray. Solid and faithfully built, and standing in a garden of its own, this house was for long associated with the family life of the past. In future it will be known as Froebel House, and it will play a still more important part: for here from now onwards will be trained the Kindergarten students, and from its doors will go forth the teachers of little children. The old premises in Roslyn Gardens, so familiar to all who are interested in educational work, have been left behind, and the Training College has commenced a new epoch of its existence.

Last Friday the moving took place, and such a moving it was! For with 15 students, principal, secretary, and staff, the college household is a large one. And the accumulation of 13 years was no light thing when it came to moving day. But there were plenty of hands available, hands as willing as they are clever, and when an interested visitor called at the new college on Monday morning she was amazed to find that the place had already attained the atmosphere of culture and homeliness which belongs to the college, and that most of the rooms were completely settled. It was a tribute to brains and organisation, for the moving had all been so carefully arranged—furniture marked for each room, carpets down beforehand—that everything had gone smoothly and without a hitch.

"And we have had such kindly help from every one," said Miss Dumolo, Principal of the College. "The men who moved us were splendid and made things easy for us, while the men who worked at the renovations were splendid too. They seemed to take a real interest in the work, and did all they could to get the place ready in time, and to make it look nice for us."

And they certainly succeeded in making the house look nice. The whole building has been repainted, and the solid, brown cedar fittings stand out effectively against the creamy walls. Cream is the prevailing note, both in paper and distemper, and with the brown woodwork it certainly makes a most effective background for the pictures and book shelves which form so important a part of the college furniture. At back and front of the house are wide balconies, where the students sleep, thus leaving their rooms free for study, and the ingenuity and taste with which the bed-sitting rooms have been arranged speak of the careful training and the attention to detail which form part of the kindergartner's course. At the back of the house stretches a long garden, where a big, up-to-date classroom is in the course of erection, but where there is also a grassy space and trees and flower-beds for the rest and refreshment of the students and teachers. This garden is one of the joys of the new college, and it is hoped that in the future a tennis court may be added to the good things of the students' life. Everyone who has known the discomfort in which the college has existed in the past is rejoicing over the new premises. Apart from the inconvenience of the old building, which was never intended for the purpose, it was rather ignominious that a college which does so much for the community, as the Kindergarten Training College, should have to squeeze into a house not big enough for it, or take rooms in a neighbouring house for any overflow of students. In having a building of its own the college has attained to the dignity which is its natural right.

At present, certainly, the building belongs only nominally to the Kindergarten Union; but the deposit has been paid, and, with the help of friends it is hoped that there will be no difficulty in paying off, as rent, the balance of £3000.

SCHOOL OF HORTICULTURE FOR WOMEN.

The display in the horticultural section at the women's handicrafts exhibition last week has reawakened interest in the question of a horticultural college for women near Sydney. When some time since a deputation from the Women's Horticultural Guild waited upon the Minister for Agriculture to urge the establishment of a horticultural college for women, Mr. Trefle said, as a reason for moving slowly in the matter, that the college for women at Burnley (Victoria) was a failure. This erroneous statement (which, by the way, has aroused much feeling in Victoria) was questioned by several present, but it would perhaps be more effectively answered by giving a brief history of Burnley and its students. Some ten years or more since a number of women enthusiastically took up the question of opening the horticultural college at Burnley to women. They were successful in their efforts, and the classes began with over 50 women students. Burnley Gardens comprise about 15 acres, including orchard, and are about 15 minutes' train or tram ride from Melbourne, and owing to their convenient situation pupils are able to attend either the whole course or special classes. The classes include practical and theoretical training in garden management and designing, the growing of small fruits and seeds, poultry farming, and bee keeping. There are also special lecture courses on subjects which are adjuncts to horticulture, viz., fruit drying, household fruit preserving, bee keeping, and poultry rearing and management. Many of the pioneer women students went through the two years' course, and received their certificates in horticulture, and have since successfully engaged in various branches of the work. At the present time there are at the Burnley School of Horticulture some 30 women students, seven of whom hold Government certificates.

Several of the students are successfuly engaging in all classes of horticultural work. These classes are under the direction of Mr. E. Pescott, principal of the college, who considers that garden management and designing, the growing of small fruits, seed and seedlings, can be successfully carried out by women. One of the most promising pupils at Burnley Horticultural College at present is Miss Olive Holttum, who is just completing her two years' course, and has taken up the work professionally. Her work has been both varied and interesting. She has designed gardens for suburban villas, tended rose arbors for anxious rosarians, arranged lawns, installed window-boxes, and attended to pot plants.

A profitable side line she finds is undertaking to keep gardens trim and tidy; also pruning of fruit trees when required. As a visiting gardener she receives 1s 6d an hour, and finds that she can work six hours daily without suffering the slightest fatigue. For pruning 2s an hour is paid. Miss Holttum intends to make a specialty of window boxes and suitable plants, and is establishing a plant hospital. In this she will, for a small fee, tend weakly drooping pot plants and restore them to healthy growth, so that those housewives who are fond of indoor plants, but who do not know how to undertake their successful care, will, by a system of exchange, be assured of their healthy condition throughout the year. The fee for instruction for women students at Burnley is £2 2s a year, and when one considers that, with the right aptitude and average intelligence, a girl can be put in the way of earning £2 14s a week in the open air after two years' of study, one realises how many advantages there are in gardening as a profession for women.

A paternal government has done much to perfect our public educational system in New South Wales. Therefore, it is hard to understand why the horticultural training which is deemed essential in all the progressive countres of the world, should be denied to our women, and new, healthful, and profitable avenues of employment thereby closed to them.

FROM BUSH TO OCEAN.

A few days ago we had a "hot spell," and the mercury climbed into the nineties, and the city folk complained of the heat. Out Bourke way it has been over the century and the summer seems to have come to the bush, and people are asking: "What has happened to the seaside camp scheme?"

It has not been forgotten. A few enthusiasts are hard at work for it, and the details concerning the camp will soon be made public, but, as the first social experiment of its kind in this part of the world, there are many important details to work out.

The scheme itself is very simple. It is not a charity. The idea is to give the people in the country a chance to come to the seaside in the summer, at a reasonable rate. There are hundreds of bush children and bush mothers who have never seen the ocean. They live from year's end to year's end in poor houses, with few or no modern conveniences. In many of the houses where the workers live, baths are impossible, because water is precious. In many of the houses there is only a tin roof between the family and the blazing sun of summer, and when the little children get ill, there is no convenient doctor; there is no ice for the parched lips, there are none of the city luxuries (we think them necessaries), and the father and mother have to nurse their sick darlings in the midst of flies, heat, and misery, in a way that is incredible to city dwellers.

We owe much to the workers in the bush, the cockies and the shearers, the boundary riders, and the casual hands in the far back, and some few dreamers seem to think that the best gospel to preach to them is one of kindly helpfulness.

Many of them could pay the railway fares of the "wife and the kiddies" to Sydney, but what about the boarding-house where children are not wanted, where they are anathema? You can't blame the boarding-house keepers for not wanting the untamed little bush children in their houses, and, yet we want the bush children to be healthy, and we want them to feel kindly towards the city people, don't we?

And the simple bush mothers deserve all we can do for them. When you are out in the bush when the temperature is well over a hundred, and you see the children clinging to the tired little mother, you realise that there is missionary work for us all to do, in the way of helping the weary mothers of our own land.

The enthusiasts are going to form a camp by the seaside, where the bush mothers and children can come for a spell in the summer, at reasonable rates. They intend to have cottages of one, two, and three rooms, with big verandahs, close to the edge of the sea. The workers will be able to hire a cottage for, say, 10s, or 15s, or 20s a week, and there will be conveniences for boiling the billy and simple cooking, but there will also be a common dining hall, where a "shearers' cook" will provide and serve simple, plentiful meals at a cheap rate.

There will be a public hall as well, where the visitors can live their lives if the want to, on wet days; where they can read or write or rest. There will be over 170 acres of public reserve for the children's playground, and all the golden beaches at the front door.

Close beside the camp is the Salvation Army headquarters; the farm and dairy and industrial home, where the camp can obtain milk, fruit, and vegetables, and the city water is within a few hundred yards of the camp, so that the expense of water suppy will be very small. The electric tram to Narrabeen is close by, so that electric light is part of the dream.

Major Stowe has the work in hand of sanitation, construction, and architectural possibilities, and many people are interested in the movement. A strong committee of good people is hard at work, and the hon. treasurer is Mr. H. Russell Crane, public accountant, 16 Spring-street, Sydney. The general secretary is Miss Grace Borrows (Girl's Realm Guild), Vickery's-chambers, 76 Pitt-street.

The realisation of this social experiment has been rendered possible by the action of the Minister for Lands (Mr. J. L. Trefle) granting the committee a lease (permissive occupancy) of three acres of ground on the Long Reef Reserve (the steamer Euroka is ashore at the end of the reef just now), an area 179 acres recently reserved for a public breathing-place.

It is an ideal spot for a camp, and it is suggested that those who contribute the necessary funds should have the cottages named after them, as hospital beds are named after the donors. Funds are required for the initial cost of the camp, but once started, it is expected to be self-supporting. It is an admirable scheme, and deserves the most cordial support of the city, as well as that of the well-to-do country people.

THE OUT-BACK SCHOOL.

We often see in the daily papers letters eulogising our Public schools, but there are two sides to the question. Our town schools are certainly creditable, but do the "out of sight" schools away in the country receive the attention they deserve? And is it fair or reasonable to ask teachers to work under such harassing and uncomfortable conditions as exist in many country schools? Why should the country boys and girls—who trudge long distances, and have to work hard morning and evening—not enjoy a little comfort during school hours? Employees in shops, factories, etc., expect comfortable workrooms and efficient aids to their work, and the employers are forced to give them these things. Teachers and scholars in many cases are housed in miserable hovels, furnished in a most antiquated style, the furniture being made very often by a bush carpenter, whose tool-bag contains an axe, hammer, adze, and a saw. How would many of our town teachers, whose efficiency marks are near high-water mark, care to work under conditions like these? Twenty-five children and teacher are in a room 20 by 16, windows down as the wind is blowing strongly, the top sashes will not move, door has to be kept closed because the chimney smokes, if it is open. There are two desks to hold six pupils each, or five comfortably, and two locally-made atrocities to hold five pupils each, but as there are more children than places, they must squeeze up, to the detriment of all written lessons. The aforesaid atrocities slope at an angle of about 30 degrees, so the little hands holding the pencils are thus forced into an unnatural position, and become tired and cramped. No book will rest peacefully on these desks, but are for ever slipping to the floor, to be trodden upon and soiled, the noise racking the nerves of the persevering and much-enduring teacher, who is vainly trying to teach five divisions at once, as well as coach a candidate for the L.C. examination. "Please, miss, the ink is spilt on my book, someone moved the desk," is a familiar sentence to teacher's ears. Item in observation book, "Tablets and writing books are blotted and dirty." There is no porch, so room must be made for hats, cloaks, dinner bags, etc., in the already crowded schoolroom. One blackboard is provided, so the classes must wait their turn or teacher must contrive to do without it.

The schoolroom is built to catch the prevailing winds nicely, therefore our treasured pictures are soon torn to ribbons. Why not frame them? But teacher cannot afford to furnish the schoolroom with picture-frames, and the nearest town is 30 miles away, so we cannot beg thin pasteboards from the draper. We tried "reeds," and other bush material, but were not at all successful in our efforts. I could go on writing of the many disabilities the bush teacher labours under, but what I wish to emphasise in this letter is the discomfort the bush child has to endure. His school life ought to be a delight to him, not a punishment.

I have picked a fairly comfortable school for my example, it being quite a palace compared to some of the bush schools situated not many miles from our largest towns.

PUCK'S GIRDLE.

I'll put a girdle round about the earth in forty minutes.—"Midsummer Night's Dream."

If the Girls' Realm Guild goes on growing at its present rate, it will soon be accused of being "grown-up." At the annual meeting yesterday it was stated that during the past year five new centres have been formed, and that the membership for New South Wales now stands at 3000. When one realises that behind every effort the Guild makes there are 8000 active and enthusiastic girls, well, it is small wonder that such efforts succeed. And when one reads that out of the results of these public efforts eighteen girls have been helped during the year to become self-supporting, one feels that the guild deserves all the success it gains.

Interest in immigration is being aroused once more, and one aspect of the question, which will appeal strongly to women, is the scheme to allow private people to bring out domestic servants. There are hundreds of women in England and Scotland who would come to a private employer if their fares could be advanced, but will not come as assisted immigrants. Hitherto, it has been impossible to help immigrants in this way, but now a move is to be made to institute a new order of things, and a meeting will be held early next month to discuss the matter.

On Monday afternoon the Health Society of New South Wales gave its last lecture for this season, and, as usual, the lecture, which was filled with valuable ideas and useful suggestions, was delivered to a mere handful of people. Year after year this society goes steadily forward; every winter a course of lectures is given by our leading doctors and health authorities, and the most valuable information is given, free of charge, by experts on the various subjects. And year after year the lectures are attended by the same small audience. But the listeners make up in interest what they lack in numbers, and the Health Society is like a stone dropped into a pond. It does not make a big splash, but the ripples spread and spread, and in time reach the shore. Ultimately the wave of knowledge will break on the shore of ignorance.

One of the first things we learn in the bush is how to make things "do" for other things, said one of the Bush Brothers last week. The people of the bush have brought it to a fine art. Cut off from the cities with all their luxuries and conveniences, they have to manage with what they have, and it is really wonderful how some of the women contrive to make things "do," and make them do well. Things which people in cities regard as absolute necessities they manage to do without, or use some home-made contrivance as a substitute. And the best of it is that the contrivances really make up for the things that are not there.

The Women's Imperial Health Association, which is working hard to shed hygienic light in the dark places of Great Britain, has established a juvenile health crusade. The object of this special crusade is to interest children in matters of health, so that the mistakes of past ages shall not be perpetuated. Health truths are taught by means of simple talks, outdoor walks, and moving picture shows, and children are enlisted as "crusaders." These wear a badge, provided by the association, and they are expected to keep the following ten rules:—

1. I will try to have my bedroom window open at the top and bottom, at night as well as by day, which will assist in preventing a cold.
2. I will try to have a bath at least once a week.
3. I will try to keep my head, face, hands, and finger-nails as clean as possible.
4. I will clean my teeth and rinse my mouth every morning on getting up, and at night on going to bed.
5. I will always wash my hands before eating food.
6. I will always eat slowly, and chew my food well.
7. I will try to breathe through my nose by keeping my mouth shut.
8. I will not cough or sneeze without turning my face or holding a handkerchief before my mouth.
9. I will not spit upon floors, stairways, or side-paths.
10. I will love and respect my parents, try to say a kind word or do a kind action, every day, and be kind to all dumb animals.

The American working girl must spend a great deal more on her clothes than the average Australian. At a recent conference of dressmakers in Chicago, it was stated that the average factory girl spent £40 a year on dress, "half of which might be saved if she learned to sew and make her own clothes," said one member of the convention. Some few of the leaders of Chicago society spend £15,000 a year on clothes, while thousands spend £1000 annually.

There are many silly people in this silly world, but I think the silliest of all is the over-dressed woman, says a writer in "Public Opinion." The increase of wealth has filled the world with over-dressed women.

THE FURNISHED COTTAGE.

The season for furnished cottages is about to begin at mountain and seaside resort, so perhaps a few practical suggestions as to their furnishing and arrangement may be of use. Everything should be considered from the point of health and cleanliness, bearing in mind that families on holiday want to do as little housework as possible. Have nothing in the house that is superfluous, and let the furniture be of a good solid quality—that will withstand wear and tear. On the floors there should be good linoleums, carefully fitted against the skirting-boards so as to allow of no dust accumulating along the edges, then, with a few rugs for comfort, the rooms can be easily cleaned, and will look attractive. Window curtains and any bed hangings should be of white washing material. In fact, let white be the predominating colour, for it will be found to give the best results. Above all other furniture the beds are of greatest importance, and, like the other things, get them good, strong, and plain. Over the wire mattress stretch coarse calico or canvas, attached so as to be easily removed. This will prevent dust getting into the wire and save the second mattress being worn by the wire. Over each pillow put a coloured slip, sewn on. When the tenants leave these can be removed, washed, and put back. By having them of coloured ticking no tenant would think of taking them off, as might be done if they were made of calico. In this way pillows are kept unsoiled and healthy, and mattresses may be treated in similar fashion. The bedroom crockery is best white, and all kitchen crockery as well, so that any piece can be matched when broken. Nothing is so unsightly as odd crockery of different colourings. It saves much trouble if kitchen tables and safes are enamelled white, with exception of their tops. The paint can be wiped down, and will always look fresh and clean. Kitchen chairs may be painted in the same way. In the pantry the shelves should be movable; they can then be taken out and thoroughly scrubbed now and then, and the bare walls washed down. In the house there ought to be a few large, comfortable cane chairs, and cushions covered with washable material. In every room there should hang a list of the articles it contains. It will be found an easy and convenient method for checking them over at the coming and going of each tenant. It will repay any landlord to take this trouble, for the cottage will never get that dejected "furnished" look so many have. It will always look fresh and clean, appealing to the first-comer. Clean walls and floors, polished brass and woodwork hold a charm for even dirty people.

CHAPTER IX.—Continued.

So Willard returned to Newport, removed his baggage from the Ocean House—for some inscrutable reason he disturbed Dacre's smiling bonhomie—and occupied quarters in a less important hotel. Changing his name, by the simple expedient of ordering a supply of visiting cards, he called on the horse-breeding Judge, who could only facilitate his seemingly eager quest for Power by telling him to send a letter to the care of a New York bank. This was something gained, and he hurried to New York, where, of course, he was suavely directed to write, and the letter would be forwarded.

Driven to his wits' end after a week of furtive visits to restaurants, on the off-chance that the fugitives might really be in the metropolitan city, he employed a private inquiry agent, and five days later received the first definite news. A "Mr. and Mrs. John Darien Power" had registered at the Lake Champlain Hotel on the evening of the day of Nancy's flight, and had gone into the Adirondacks next morning.

On the principle that it never rains but it pours, quick on the heels of this startling intelligence came a letter from Nancy. It had been sent to Denver, and some bungle in re-addressing it had caused a prolonged delay. It was brief and to the point, and had been posted at Boston.

"My Dear Father," she wrote. "It will cause you much distress, but not any real surprise, to hear that I have decided to dissolve my marriage with Mr. Marten. I have met Derry Power, and now I know just what happened at Bison when you forced me to marry a man whom I detested. I forgive you for your share in that horrible deceit, but I cannot forgive Marten, and the action I am taking renders it impossible that he and I should ever meet again. You will learn the why and the wherefore in due course. Meanwhile I hope you will not take things too deeply to heart, and I look forward to our reunion in more peaceful days. When the divorce proceedings are ended, and Derry and I are married, I shall tell you where to find me. By that time, perhaps, you will have decided to accept the inevitable, and let the past be forgotten. I am well, and happy—very, very happy. Your loving Nancy."

Willard brooded long over this straightforward message. He was blind and deaf to its gentle reproach, finding in it only a confirmation of his worst fears. There was no need now to map out a course of action; he had limned that in the main before leaving Newport. Vengeance on Power—vengeance ample and complete—was what he craved for. He understood, in some furtive and perverted way, that he could not strike a mortal blow at a man of Power's temperament by using the bludgeons of the law to expiate an offence against society. Both Nancy and her lover must have discounted the effect of the social pillory before they transgressed its code beyond redemption. Indeed, they would hail with joy the edict which banned them—be it proclaimed from the housetops and carried round the earth by the myriad-tongued press. Nancy's letter, too, showed that she would not scruple to make known her defence, and Willard was well aware that it would serve to rehabilitate her in the eyes of her friends.

So he had devised a ghoulish and crafty punishment, which, the more he pondered it, the more subtle and effective did it appear. As the scheme grew in his imagination, he almost hugged himself in rapturous approval of it. So warped was his mind that he might have discovered, were he capable of making an honest analysis of motives, that he was actually gloating over the position in which his daughter was placed, if only because of the weapon it placed in his hands against Power.

To succeed, two conditions were necessary—Power must not have written to his mother nor Nancy to her husband. To his thinking, neither of these eventualities was likely. The very environment of the woods and lakes of the Adirondacks forbade the notion. If he was right he would turn Power's dream of happiness into bitterest gall; if wrong, there was still another alternative—deadlier, more lurid, but far from being so attractive to a mean and rather cowardly nature. Time alone would show which project promised success—to fail in both was nearly, if not quite, impossible.

Meanwhile, no painted Indian ever camped on the trail of unsuspecting pioneer with more malign intent and rancorous tenacity than Willard displayed in his pursuit and tracking of the erring pair. He was not a righteously incensed father, but a disappointed man who saw within his grasp the means of glutting the stored malice of years. To appreciate to the full Willard's mental processes at this period of his life, not only his double-dealing in the matter of Nancy's marriage, but his vain longings for the lost wealth of the Dolores ranche must be taken into account. Even then, his apologist might plead an obsession amounting almost to insanity. Nothing else would explain his actions, but no words could palliate them, for the ruthless Pawnee he resembled would assuredly have chosen a less ignoble revenge.

CHAPTER X.

NANCY DECIDES.

A long spur of the Adirondack Mountains stretches across Hamilton County from northeast to south-west. In a hollow on the western slopes of the range nestles Forked Lake; some five or six miles nearer the watershed, and some hundreds of feet higher in altitude, lies a smaller and prettier lake, difficult of access, and far from the beaten track of tourists. Hither, by devious paths, Power had brought Nancy. A guide, hired at Elizabethtown, was enthusiastic about the fishing in that particular sheet of water, and he vouched for it that there was quarry in plenty for gun as well as rod; moreover, attracted by the sport and scenery, he had built a hut on the unfrequented side of the lake, in which was stored a sufficiency of rough furniture, some cooking utensils, and a canoe. Given fine weather and good health, what more did anyone want?

"Let us go there at once, Derry," said Nancy. "A cabin among trees on the shore of a lake has always been my dream."

"It sounds almost too idyllic," said Power, trying to be cynical, "but we'll hire the outfit for a week, and move on to the next caravan in a day if we don't like it."

They arrived at night, in a drenching downpour of rain, the outcome of the first and only thunderstorm of the season, and were inclined consequently to view with critical eyes the accommodation at their disposal. The owner of the property, who also owned a peculiar name, Peter Granite, had gone to a wood hutch for dry fuel and Power divested Nancy of a dripping waterproof, while Peters' dog, a nondescript of the hound type, known as "Guess," shook his shaggy fur noisily.

"'Peter' and 'Granite' each signifies 'rock,'" he whispered, "but Guess seems to be of opinion that we are stranded in a swamp." Incidentally, he kissed her.

"Hush. I have faith in Peter. He told me to-day that some famous author came here every summer till he died, so the place must have a charm of its own."

"Perhaps the famous author was a detached soul—in other words, a queer fish."

"And perhaps you'll get that wet coat off, and make yourself useful. Please strike a match. If it were not for Guess I would be sure that something was going to leap out of the dark and grab me."

So Nancy was admittedly a trifle nervous; but the feeling passed at once when Granite had a fire roaring in the stove, and an oil lamp was swinging from a hook, and the cabin was filled with warmth, and the grateful scent of a stew mixed with the steam of drying dog and garments. The sleeping arrangements were so primitive, however, that Nancy dared not undress. Every inch of the tiny bedroom was lit by lightning almost incessantly, and the constant dripping of water from the roof, added to the howling and whistling of the wind, kept her and Power awake until long after midnight. They would have risen and gone back to the more comfortable living-room, where the stove might have induced drowsiness, and Power could smoke, at least, but certain regular sounds from that quarter revealed that Granite cared little for the storm, was even expressing his unconscious contempt for it audibly, while Guess had met some life-long foe in his dreams, and was fighting a Homeric battle.

To while away the slow-moving hours, and perchance close their senses to the external uproar, the lovers talked, or, rather, Nancy talked and Power listened. A casual reference to some such wild night in France led the girl to discourse of her Parisian friends, and she gave full play to a ready wit and gift of close, yet kindly and humorous, observation, which, in different conditions, would certainly have won her a place among contemporary writers on French life and manners. American ways and habits of thought owe so much to the Gallic leaven introduced at the beginning of the eighteenth century that a modern American woman assimilates French ideas with more ease and surer touch than her British sister, so Nancy would have brought to the task both racial sympathy and natural equipment. She knew Daudet and Turgenieff—had been present at one of their famous quarrels—and her description of the Russian's unbridled fury and the Frenchman's ironic good temper, caused the scene to live again. She spoke French fluently, had even gleaned some scraps of Russian, and Power found himself transported in imagination to the brilliant salons where litterateurs like Zola and Coppee bickered, where artists like Rodin and Bonnat founded schools, where Massenet played snatches of operas yet to reach the ear of a wider world, where the men and women who occupied the stage in the Dreyfus drama were already stabbing reputations with poison-tipped epigrams.

Often she brought laughter to his lips, as, for instance, when she spoke of the beautiful and fascinating wife of a struggling artist, a lady notorious in many walks of life, who attended a fancy dress ball at the American Embassy. "Ah," said someone to the Duchesse de Brasnes, "here comes the latest star, gotten up appropriately as Madame Recamier!" "No," chirped the witty old lady instantly. "You give her the wrong name. You mean Madame Reclamier!"

Luckily Power's acquaintance with the French language was close enough to enable him to appreciate the caustic humour of the words. He was far too absorbed then in the girl's vivid impressions of personalities familiar to him only in the columns of newspapers to indulge in speculation as to the why and the wherefore of this flow of anecdote and quaintly analytical glimpses of character. But he understood later. During three long years she had existed in an atmosphere that checked every natural impulse. She had become a statue, beautiful but impassive. Now she was once more a woman. The marble was coming to life. Love had breathed on her, and the red blood was flowing freely in her veins.

He could have listened till dawn, but the sweet voice suddenly grew husky, and she expressed a desire to rest.

"Derry," she said, with the unthinking confidence of a tired child, "let me lean my head on your shoulder. With your arm around me I do believe I can forget even this dreadful lightning."

POLICE COURTS.

A GAME OF CHANCE.

Edward Traynor, 20, was charged before Mr. Smithers, S.M., at the Central Police Court yesterday, with playing at a game of chance called "Yankee sweat," on a vacant piece of land at the corner of Liverpool-street and Wentworth-avenue, Sydney, last Saturday night. The police alleged that he was operating a numbered wheel, on which people were speculating money, but Traynor went into the box and said that he was not running the machine. He was asked by the man who owned it to turn it round, and he was merely doing so when he was arrested. The magistrate said that he did not believe what Traynor said, and sentenced him to seven days' gaol with hard labour, but suspended the sentence on accused entering into a surety to be of good behaviour for 12 months.

A BARBER'S BET.

Albert Sewell, a young man, was charged at the Redfern Court, yesterday, with having used premises in Mitchell-road, Alexandria, for the purpose of betting. Evidence was given that a constable in plain clothes went into the hairdresser's shop, where the accused was employed, and while the latter was shaving him questioned him regarding a double bet on the Caulfield and Melbourne Cups. The accused offered him 150 to 1 about Ofta and Duke Foote, and the constable took the odds to 4s. Mr. Robison, who appeared for the Crown Law Department, did not press for a heavy penalty, and a fine of £5 was imposed, with the alternative of two months' imprisonment.

STOLE A WATCH.

Samuel Barker, 20, was charged before Mr. Clarke, S.M., at the Water Police Court yesterday, with stealing a gold watch, leather fob, and bronze souvenir, also 16s in money, valued in all at £7, the property of P. J. Dalcom. He pleaded guilty, and was fined £5, or two months' imprisonment.

PARK PESTS.

Complaints having been made to the police authorities at the Glebe and Leichhardt stations of the habit of a number of young fellows frequenting the local parks at night and using bad language, certain constables were sent on special duty with a view to catching the offenders. The Leichhardt officers were successful in capturing two in Treadwold Park on the 15th inst., and they appeared before Mr. Payten, S.M., at the Glebe Court yesterday. One pleaded guilty and was fined 30s or 14 days; the other, who had pleaded not guilty, was mulct in the sum 40s or a fortnight's imprisonment. A Glebe officer arrested an offender in Jubilee Park on the 28th inst., and at the local court yesterday he was fined 20s or seven days.

RED ROUGH HANDS MADE SOFT AND WHITE.

For red, rough, chapped, and bleeding hands, dry, fissured, itching, burning palms, and painful finger-ends, with shapeless nails, a one-night Cuticura treatment works wonders. Directions: Soak the hands, on retiring, in hot water and Cuticura Soap; dry; anoint with Cuticura Ointment, and wear soft bandages or old, loose gloves during the night. These pure, sweet, and gentle emollients preserve the hands, prevent redness, roughness, and chapping, and impart, in a single night, that velvety softness and whiteness so much desired by women. For those whose occupations tend to injure the hands, Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are wonderful.

Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold throughout the world, a sample of each, with 32-page Skin Book, will be mailed free on application to R. Towns and Co., Dept. T., Sydney, N.S.W.—Advt.

LAW REPORT.

IN BANCO.

(Before the Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Pring, and Mr. Justice Ferguson.)

STAWN, LTD., v KEENE.

Mr. Clive Teece and Mr. Norman Pilcher, instructed by Mr. J. T. Ralston, appeared for the plaintiff, in support of a demurrer to defendant's fifth plea. Mr. A. Thomson and Mr. Harper, instructed by Messrs. R. A. Monro King and Dowd, appeared for the defendant, in support of the plea. The plaintiff company sued William Henry Keene, on a contract by which plaintiff agreed to erect, to the satisfaction of defendant, certain automatic electric lift enclosures at 12 Oxford-street, for £115 10s. It was a term of the contract that on completion of the work, and, after the production by plaintiff of a certificate in the writing of the defendant that the whole of the work had been duly done and completed to his satisfaction, he would pay the amount agreed upon. The contract was carried out, but defendant had neglected and refused to give plaintiff the certificate. In his fifth plea defendant pleaded that it was a term of the contract that plaintiff should produce a certificate signed by him (defendant), that the whole of the work had been completed to his satisfaction, and he did not produce it. To this plea plaintiff demurred on the ground that he was excused and discharged from the obligation to produce the certificate, and that, though frequently requested to give the certificate, defendant had not done so. Defendant, in his rejoinder, maintained that the plea was good in substance, and he objected to plaintiff's first count, on the ground that it was embarrassing, as it alleged that all the conditions of the contract were fulfilled, and it did not show whether the claim was for improperly refusing to give the certificate or for breach of contract in not paying the sum claimed by plaintiff to be due.

The Court held that if it was clear, and on the demurrer it must be so taken, that plaintiff had proved that the certificate which he had established his right to receive from the defendant was wrongfully withheld, it was equally clear that the absence of the certificate would not be a bar to plaintiff recovering, as the defendant's plea did not meet the most material allegation in the first count of plaintiff's declaration. For these reasons the demurrer must be upheld, but both parties were strongly advised to amend the pleadings in order to prevent embarrassment arising at the trial, or any difficulty as to any direction the Judge might be called upon to give.

Judgment for plaintiff on the demurrer, with leave to both parties to amend their pleadings, as they might be advised.

A SETTLEMENT.

Grace v Granville Municipal Council.

Mr. Delohery mentioned that this matter had been settled. It was accordingly struck out.

ACTION FOR COMPENSATION.

Avern v Pearson.

Mr. James, instructed by Messrs. Crommelin, Bertie, and Co., of Grenfell (by their agent, Mr. L. C. B. Cadden), appeared for the defendant in support of a demurrer to the first count of plaintiff's declaration; Mr. Perry, instructed by Mr. F. J. Tanner, appeared for the plaintiff in support of the declaration. The declaration set out that plaintiff was employed by defendant in a certain shop and works, and that by reason of defendant adopting an unsafe, dangerous, and improper system for lifting and supporting a waggon, the waggon while being lifted suddenly fell, and plaintiff, who was close to it, was thrown down and injured. The defendant demurred to this count on the following grounds: (1) that it did not allege that defendant knew that he had adopted an unsafe and a dangerous system of lifting and supporting the waggon; (2) that it did not allege that plaintiff was ignorant of the system, and that no facts were alleged from which it could be inferred that the defendant owed a duty to the plaintiff; (3) that no facts were alleged from which negligence could be inferred; (4) that the plaintiff did not allege any contract between him and the defendant that the system should be other than that alleged; (5) that there was no allegation of any negligence on the part of defendant in the declaration.

The Court found for defendant on the demurrer, but gave leave to plaintiff to amend his declaration within 14 days.

(Before the Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Pring, and Mr. Justice Gordon.)

QUESTION OF TITLE.

West v Read and another.

Mr. L. Armstrong, instructed by Mr. A. C. Roberts, appeared for the plaintiff in support of a motion to set aside the verdict found for the defendants, and grant a new trial, or to enter the verdict for plaintiff. Mr. Leverrier, K.C., and Mr. Wyndham Davies, instructed by Messrs. A. Rofe and Son, appeared for the defendants in support of the verdict. The action, which was tried before Mr. Justice Ferguson without a jury during last month's nisi prius sittings, was brought by Alice Mary West, State school teacher, against Richard David Read and Francis William Read to recover £500 damages for alleged breach of warranty as to title to certain land at Bondi, and asking for the return of £40, the amount deposited by plaintiff in connection with the purchase of the land. Defendants denied that they had given any warranty, and also pleaded that they had committed no breach of contract entitling plaintiff to compensation. It appeared that defendants held a mortgage over the land in question from a man named Askham, and they sold the land to plaintiff after giving notice of demand (which was not answered) to the mortgagor by registered letter to comply with the terms of the mortgage. Plaintiff afterwards went into possession of the land and commenced to build, but the mortgagor, who had not received the notice, subsequently turned up and took proceedings in ejectment against her, and she said she was put to considerable expense in order to secure the property. As the question resolved itself into one of law, a jury was dispensed with. The point at issue was whether plaintiff had not really obtained a title to the land by virtue of a memorandum of transfer, executed and registered by the defendants, such transfer being good, notwithstanding that notice of demand by the mortgagees on the mortgagor was not served upon the mortgagor though posted to him. Mr. Justice Ferguson found in favour of the defendants, and plaintiff now appealed on the ground that his Honor's decision in favour of defendants was erroneous, that he erroneously held that plaintiff was not entitled to damages under any of the heads of damage claimed, and that his Honor was also in error in holding that on the evidence no contract or promise of the defendants had been broken or not performed. Mr. Armstrong argued the case for appellant on three separate grounds. First, the terms of the original contract, secondly, on the effect of section 75, and lastly, on the form of transfer in schedule 11 of the Real Property Act.

The argument is not yet concluded.

NO. 2 JURY COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Sly and a jury of four.)

ALLEGED WRONGFUL DISMISSAL.

Pontey v Stott and Hoare, Ltd.

The evidence on both sides was concluded, but counsel's addresses are not yet finished.

NO. 3 JURY COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Harvey and a jury.)

RESUMPTION CLAIM.

BIRT and CO. v CHIEF COMMISSIONER FOR RAILWAYS.

THE DARLING HARBOUR MEAT WORKS.

The case was continued in which Messrs. Birt and Company, Limited, sued the Chief Commissioner for Railways and Tramways for compensation for the resumption of the land, buildings, machinery, and plant used in the operations of the business known as the Railway Meat Markets, at Darling Harbour. A very large sum of money is involved in the action.

Mr. Shand, K.C., Mr. Broomfield, and Mr. Alex. Thomson, instructed by Messrs. Norton, Smith, and Co., appeared for the plaintiff company; Mr. Campbell, K.C., and Mr. Pike, instructed by Mr. J. S. Cargill, Solicitor for Railways, appeared for the defendant Commissioner.

Considerable argument ensued as to whether counsel for plaintiff was entitled to call evidence of development in the frozen meat industry, since the date of the resumption, in order to base a claim for compensation for any such possible development.

Mr. Shand contended that they were entitled to ask the jury to take into consideration not only what the firm's profits had been prior and up to the resumption, but also what the profits might reasonably have been expected to be in the future.

Mr. Campbell objected that, unless the evidence were capable of being examined, tested and possibly refuted, it could not be admitted. Merely conjectural opinions of witnesses, he submitted, were inadmissable and might lead to gross exaggeration and consequent injustice.

His Honor upheld the objection. He said it was a question of valuing the land and business at the time of the resumption. It was a question of what was a fair price to pay for the land and business as it stood at the time. He would admit evidence based upon legitimate estimates of the prospects of the business, arrived at at the time of the resumption or prior to it. Mr. Shand was not entitled, however, his Honor held, to ask in examination-in-chief what happened after the resumption took place.

The first witness, Mr. Beckett, was still being examined when the Court rose.

DIVORCE COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Gordon.)

BIRD v BIRD.

AN INTERESTING JUDGMENT.

His Honor delivered his reserved judgment in the case in which Martha Bird (formerly Field) sought a dissolution of her marriage with George Bird, alleging desertion for three years and upwards as the grounds of the suit. The parties were married at Latrobe Bridge, Sale, Victoria, on May 25, 1885, according to the rites of the Methodist Church.

His Honor said he was not satisfied on the question of domicile. His doubt on that matter had been increased since the High Court decision in the Fremlin v Fremlin divorce appeal. After their marriage, said his Honor, the parties lived in Gippsland and in Cuningham, in the Gippsland Lakes district. They came to New South Wales in 1895, up to which time the respondent husband had been the captain of a steamer in Gippsland. He obtained a position as mate on one of the Manly boats. In 1898 he left New South Wales, and returned to Cunningham, where he secured employment on a steamer. He returned to Sydney about six months afterwards, and had an interview with his wife. He went away again, however, and she had not seen him since. The petition for divorce, however, was not made until October 17, 1912, nearly 14 years after the alleged desertion.

His Honor was not satisfied that the parties had come to live permanently in New South Wales. According to the divorce laws of this State, unless that were so, the respondent, although a Victorian, was treated as a foreigner, in so far as his place of domicile was concerned. For that reason, owing to the absence of domicile in New South Wales, the petition would be dismissed.

LANE v LANE.

Mr. A. W. Ralston, instructed by Messrs. Windeyer and Williams, appeared on behalf of Isabel Frances Lane (formerly Gilchrist), petitioner in a suit for the dissolution of her marriage with Oswald George Stoneman Lane, and moved for an order to consolidate the cross petitions in the suit.

Mr. Curlewis, instructed by Messrs. Minter, Simpson, and Co., appeared for the respondent in the divorce suit, who was petitioning the Court for a decree for restitution of conjugal rights with Isabel Frances Lane.

It was stated that the parties had resided at Cooeyanna, Yarranabbe-road, Darling Point, prior to a separation. The husband was still living there. There was one child, aged 3 years, of the marriage.

With the consent of Mr. Curlewis, his Honor made an order consolidating the suits, naming the wife as the petitioner.

DECREES MADE ABSOLUTE.

Decrees absolute were pronounced in the following cases, in which decrees nisi had previously been made:—Frances Cock v Arthur Henry Cock, Ada Redfort Smith v Libbis Hamilton Smith, Jessie May Wright v James Wright, Ethel May Plucknett v Edgar Ewart Plucknett, Ellen Louisa Susannah Loveless v William John Loveless, Lavinia Harriet Macdermott v Mark Henry Macdermott, Frederick John Tait v Florence Catherine Hannah Tait.

SINGLE MEETING AND PUBLIC EXAMINATION.

Re Herbert Charles Twine. The debtor was examined by the official assignee, the meeting closed and the examination concluded.

(Before Mr. Justice Street.)

APPLICATION DISMISSED.

Re F. W. Loxton, ex parte Duncan Smith.

Mr. Claude Manning appeared on the motion to set aside the bankruptcy notice herein and said that having since Friday gone into the matter he asked that the application be dismissed.

Application dismissed, with costs.

IN PROBATE.

(Before Mr. Justice Street.)

A NOVEL POSITION.

Moore and another v Rosbrook and another.

Mr. R. S. Murray Prior, instructed by Messrs. Fisher and Macansh, appeared for the plaintiffs, Thomas Moore Walker and Thomas Cowin, executors of the will of Arthur Albert Rosbrook, late of Tenterfield, farmer, deceased, and moved for probate of the will. Mr. Jordan, instructed by Mr. J. F. Thomas, of Tenterfield (by his agents, Messrs. Mackenzie and Mackenzie), appeared for William Rosbrook and other next of kin of deceased, not to oppose probate but to ask that their costs should come out of the estate. Mr. Murray Prior before calling evidence said that testator died on June 8, 1912, at the Hospital for Insane, Gladesville. On September 23, 1911, he purported to make a will, in which he left all his real and personal property to the trustees of the Tenterfield Methodist Church. On October 10 of the same year he was admitted as a patient to Gladesville hospital, and it was admitted by all the parties, and the beneficiaries, that when testator executed the document of September, 1911, he was not of sound mind or testamentary capacity. He, however, had on September 21, 1909, made a will in which he distributed his property among the members of his family. As there was no reason to believe that testator was not of sound and disposing mind when he executed the earlier will the executors now sought to obtain probate of it, and no statement of defence had been filed.

His Honor, after hearing evidence, granted probate of the will of 1909, and ordered that costs of both parties should come out of the estate.

INDUSTRIAL MAGISTRATE'S COURT.

(Before Mr. G. C. Addison, Chief Industrial Magistrate.)

Alfred Mulholland, of Burwood, charged with a breach of the Leather Trades, Coachmakers, etc., Board Award, in failing to keep time and pay sheets in the prescribed manner, was fined £1, with 11s costs.

Charles Gilbert, trading as Schweikert and Gilbert, Newtown, was charged with a similar breach of the Iron and Shipbuilding Trades Award, and fined 10s, with 11s costs.

William John Litherland, of Redfern, was charged with a breach of the Iron and Shipbuilding Trades Group No. 10 Board Award in failing to pay the minimum wage to a floorman. He pleaded guilty. It was stated that the defendant employed a lad to do floorman's work, who was not indentured. He was fined £1, with 19s 6d costs. Defendant was further charged with failing to exhibit a copy of the award, and with failing to keep time and pay sheets in the prescribed manner, and was fined 10s, with 6s costs on each charge.

F. Anschau, trading as Anschau Brothers, Parramatta, was charged with failing to keep time and pay sheets in the prescribed manner, and was fined £1, with 11s costs.

William Clark, Petersham, was charged with a breach of the Furniture Trades No. 6 Board (picture-frame makers') Award in failing to pay an employee the minimum weekly wage. He was fined £1, with 26s costs.

Robert Henry Ward, Pitt-street, Sydney, was charged with a breach of the Professional and Shop-workers' Award in failing to pay a female retoucher over the age of 20 years a weekly wage of 40s. Defendant pleaded guilty and said that the girl was engaged in the inferior work, known as "spotting." He was fined 15s, with 17s costs. On a charge of failing to pay a male retoucher the minimum weekly wage of 60s, the same defendant was fined £2, with 17s costs; and for failing to exhibit a copy of the award in the prescribed manner, £2, with 6s costs.

DISTRICT COURT.

(Before Judge Murray and a jury.)

DAMAGES AGAINST CITY COUNCIL.

LITTLE GIRL'S INJURIES.

May Malone, aged 11, of Cathedral-street, Sydney, sued (by her father, Thomas Malone) for damages against the Municipal Council of Sydney, in respect to injuries received through alleged negligence on the part of defendants' servants. On March 16 the child came into contact with a barbed-wire fence, which had been put up in connection with the making of a new road behind St. Mary's Cathedral, in the Domain, and it was claimed that, as a result, her face was permanently scarred. Damages were laid at £1000.

By consent, the jury was withdrawn, and, after a conference between the medical men called by either side, a verdict for £150 was agreed to and entered.

Mr. J. C. Gannon, K.C., and Mr. Perry (instructed by Mr. F. J. Tanner), appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. D. S. Edwards (instructed by Messrs. Dawson, Waldron, and Glover), for the defendant council.

(Before Judge Docker.)

SLANDER SUIT SETTLED.

SEQUEL TO COUNCIL MEETING.

The case was down for hearing in which Edward M. Clark, of Ridge-street, North Sydney, sued Thomas Johnston, of Falcon-street, for £400 damages for alleged slander. Both parties are aldermen of the North Sydney municipality, and the words complained of were spoken at a recent meeting of the council.

His Honor advised the parties to endeavour to come to a settlement instead of washing their dirty linen in public. "The Court is not the proper laundry; they should leave it to the laundry of the council chamber," he said.

Mr. O'Reilly, for the plaintiff, said the latter would be satisfied with a proper public apology, and Mr. Pickburn, who represented the other party, suggested that the defendant should go in the box and say that there was no intention to charge personal corruption against Alderman Clark.

After a conference between counsel, the defendant entered the witness box. He stated that matters at the council meeting referred to were "pretty hot," and that whatever he said he had no intention of charging Mr. Clark with personal dishonesty of any kind.

Mr. Pickburn: And if in the heat of the moment your words appeared to have that meaning they would not be right if applied to Mr. Clark?

Witness: No.

The case was struck out, his Honor congratulating the parties on the settlement of a disagreeable episode. "Men are sent into the council for serious business, and not for vituperation," he added.

Mr. O'Reilly (instructed by Mr. T. J. Hurley) appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Pickburn (instructed by Messrs. Beechag and Simpson) for the defendant.

Grand Opening of Grace Bros New Seven Storey Extension Commences To day

SEE THE OLD ENGLISH VILLAGE. Punch and Judy will be there all day. Full particulars will be found on the back page of this paper.

LEAVE YOUR NAME WITH SANTA CLAUS FOR A XMAS PUZZLE. All particulars of the Competition can be obtained at The Old English Village.

This illustration shows our new seven-storey building in Francis-street. It was erected specially as a bulk store. This building is seven stories high, and built of brick throughout. It extends from Greek to Francis streets, and is connected by bridges (similar to that connecting The Model Store Buildings) with our main showrooms.

This illustration shows our new four-storey Furniture Palace in Bay-street. Each floor measures 210 feet long x 66 feet wide, and basement with 7,000 square feet, giving an area of some 67,000 square feet. The demolition of a number of shops next to the new Furniture Palace is marked with an arrow. This is the site for our Ironmongery and Carpet Departments, now in course of erection.

This illustration shows the main front building, at the corner of the Broadway and Bay-st. The departments accommodated in this building are as follow: Saddlery, Travelling Requisites, Men's and Boys' Wearables, Tobacco, Pipes, etc., Furnishing Ironmongery, Electro-plated-ware, Enamelware, China and Glassware, and Refreshment Rooms.

This illustration shows our newest and most extensive addition—the new seven-storey extension in Grose-street. This fine edifice is of steel construction (on the American principle), and when completed will, we believe, form one of the best-lighted and most complete stores in Australia. There are seven stories in this new addition, each measuring approximately 8,930 square feet, giving a total floor space of 62,510 square feet, roughly, one and a-half acres of floor space.

This fine building in Ross-st. was erected for the storage of furniture. In it is stored the furniture bought and reserved awaiting instructions, such as lay-bys (some thousands of pounds worth), and also customers' own household goods are removed and stored there by our Household Removal Department.

Fourteen years ago we started to manufacture clothing for ourselves. We commenced with eleven hands, and the fact that to-day we employ over 200 in manufacturing alone is quite sufficient evidence of the success of this departure. The Factories (there are now several in one) are conveniently situated within a stone's throw of the Broadway Model Store. Commodious, well-lighted and well-ventilated, the Factory is a large building, 180 feet x 120 feet, of two floors. In it are manufactured Men's and Boys' Clothing, Costumes, Upholstery and Picture Frames.

This illustration shows our Bay-street building, from Grose-street to Francis-street. It is the home of our General Drapery Departments, and in the basement are portions of our rapidly-developing Ironmongery Departments. These sections of Ironmongery located here are Builders' Ironmongery, Tools (Mechanics', Garden and Stable), Lamps and Fittings (Oil, Gas and Electric), Coachbuilding Materials, Sanitary Goods, Mantelpieces, Grates and Tiles, together with the Oils and Colours, Artists' Materials, and Wall-paper sections. On the ground floor will be found the Haberdashery, Toilet Requisites, Jewellery, Purses, Handkerchiefs, Parasols, Ribbons, and all our Lace Departments, a section which has gained for us a world-wide reputation. We say world-wide, because manufacturers in Calais, Nottingham and Plauen, the leading lace centres of France, England and Germany, send to us every year for our Lace Book, which they regard as the most complete index of laces they can procure.

First Floor.—This is the home of our departments for Ladies' and Children's Costumes, Mantles, Blouses, Underclothing and Corsets. Space and light are recognised as two essentials in a modern store, and here we find everything studied to make shopping easy.

Grace Bros. extend a most cordial invitation to the shopping public to come and see the many changes which have recently been made in The Model Store, without feeling any necessity to purchase.

To-day, Wednesday, 29th Oct., We Open Our New Seven Storey Extension in Grose Street.

We are opening to-day the Second Section of our Seven-storey Building in Grose-street. Those who see first the practical side will admit that this building is one designed for the best uses of the shopping public. The light is very near perfect, and our customers will now be able to shop in greater comfort than ever before.

This new building has a frontage in Grose-street of 83 feet, and extends 110 feet back to Francis-street building, into which it opens on all seven floors and basement. The whole building is 140 feet high, including a beautiful basement, extending the entire length and breadth of the building.

When one steps into the Grose-street entrance the first impression is that of the immensity of space, a vastness as it were not found ordinarily in drapery establishments. This is due to the fact that the ceiling of the first storey is 16 feet from the floor. The system of natural lighting in this new building is one that deserves special emphasis, as it is accomplished by a glass dome, carrying, approximately, 3,349 feet of glass.

The business for which this great edifice has been designed is to be that of Drapery, Outfitting, etc., and it deals with every requirement for ladies and children.

The following is a list of departments located in this new building:—Silks and Velvets, Coloured Dress Goods, Black Dress Goods, Flannels, Household Drapery, Linings, Linens, Blankets, Flowers, Feathers, Girls' Outfitting, Toys, special attractions for the children in our Old English Village, Art Gallery and Photo Studio. The basement has been given over to the whole of our Ironmongery and Hardware Departments.

The remarkable growth of our Dress Goods business made it necessary for us to devote to this department one of the choicest locations on the spacious main floor. Scores of beautiful novelty weaves, and a host of other fabrics entirely exclusive, can now be seen to great advantage in this magnificent salesroom. Of equal importance is our Millinery Department. To this section we have given the second floor, it having a similar amount of space in which to display the millinery from the best ateliers of London and Berlin.

The third floor has been given over to Toys, Stationery, Books, Fancy Goods, Basketware and Xmas Cards. A large portion of this floor has been dressed out to depict a number of old English villages of historic interest and significance. These are dressed with toys of every conceivable kind, and the manner in which they are set out, we feel sure, will give pleasure to old and young alike. On this floor we have installed a Round-about, Toy Joy Wheel, and a host of other attractions, all for the delight of the little ones.

The fourth floor has been set apart for Picture Framing and Pictures. The fifth floor has been devoted to general offices. On the sixth floor will be found our Photographic Studio and Art Gallery. In the last-named section we are holding an exhibition of rare academy works (many of which having at one time or another enjoyed proud positions in some of the leading Galleries of the world). These paintings will be on view every day this week, and we invite all lovers of art to come and see them.

MARGARINE PROBLEM.

In another column our London commercial correspondent furnishes some interesting information regarding the growing popularity of margarine in England. It is not pleasing reading from our point of view, for it is a trade largely growing at the expense of our dairy farmers. Nevertheless, perhaps because of that, the information is valuable, and brings some realisation of the problem besetting our butter producers. It is quite evident that the general opinion regarding margarine has to be altered, for it is useless maintaining a pretence that it is a fraudulent, inferior article palmed off on the public. The facts supplied by our correspondent show this is not the case, but that, on the other hand, the produce is gaining ground on account of its "good, uniform quality." This is most significant when coupled with the fact that we know we are sending abroad a lot of butter that is not of uniform quality, while much of it cannot even be said to be good. Obviously we are fighting the margarine people on uneven terms, and victory will not go to those who are failing to supply what the trade wants. That is the dominating factor in all trade, to supply what the buyer wants. Are we doing so? It cannot be claimed that we are, while apparently the margarine manufacturer is. So we find that article having a place in restaurants doing a good class of business. It is no longer confined to the poorer classes of consumers, as we have often been led complacently to believe. This is most important, because it shows that the task of penalising or retarding the manufacture of margarine by law is becoming increasingly difficult. More and more people are becoming accustomed to it, and therefore it is attaining more and more influence. And that, of course, must tell when the matter is considered by politicians. It is right that it should be, and we should be foolish to close our eyes to the fact that the margarine people have a very strong case to put forward, and one, from a practical standpoint, that does not give much hope of securing protective legislation. Margarine is proving itself a wholesome, useful, cheap food, and that is what the world wants.

All this is not palatable to the butter producer, but is there any wisdom avoiding realisation of hard facts? It becomes more obvious that our best, and indeed only, hope of successfully competing against this great rival lies in the production of a better all round quality of butter. We cannot afford to export secondary butter, but have to aim at exporting, if possible, none but first-class and superfine. And we shall never reach that end until we have a strict system of compulsory grading of cream and butter. We have pointed this out for years, and we believe that existing conditions are bringing home the wisdom of such advice. Certainly the longer it is ignored, the more we shall lose ground. It is argued that while there is no question as to the necessity of improving the quality of our butter, that factor does not enter into the question. We are told by a journal representing the co-operative producers:—

"Undoubtedly there is need to improve the quality of Australian butter. No one questions that for a moment; but to urge it as the prime requisite in this discussion is to miss the point and side-track the real issue. The question of coloured margarine as an illegitimate competitor to butter is altogether separate from the quality of the butter, and the two should never be allowed to get mixed up together. That margarine when marketed in its natural colour is not a rival to even secondary butter is evident in the experience of Australia, and the trickery that has to be resorted to in England in order to retail the coloured article shows that it is purely its mimicry of butter that gives margarine its place on the grocers' counters at all. Even if every pound of butter exported from Australia were first grade the coloured margarine problem would still press for solution. It must be taken by itself altogether apart from what may be done or attempted in the way of improving the quality of our butter."

Against this, it has to be remembered that the margarine makers claim that they have just as much right to colour their product as the butter-maker has to colour his. It is a point, no doubt, upon which opinion would depend largely upon circumstances, but at this stage the question of moment is whether it is the prime issue. We certainly do not think so. The practical view to take, as far as the British market is concerned, is the possibility or otherwise of ever accomplishing the prohibition of colouring in margarine. If the interests concerned, both as consumers and producers, are considered, it seems to us a hopeless task to attempt. Here are people securing a nutritious and palatable article of food which is above all else cheap. Are the British authorities going deliberately to take action likely to render the article less attractive to consumers? We hardly think so. And that is considering the matter quite apart from the influence of vested interests in the margarine business. Whether margarine marketed without containing colouring matter would be unpopular, we do not know, but to state as above that it is not then a rival to even secondary butter certainly does not tally with reports and expert opinion. Margarine, according to our advices, scores on account of its good, uniform quality, which is exactly what our secondary butter lacks, and in that respect the question of colouring does not enter. Why, then, waste time fighting on a point of minor concern when the remedy lies in producing a butter of "good, uniform quality?" To our mind, the attitude represented in the above extract is certainly "side-tracking the real issue," and simply fooling the producer with impossible hopes, instead of directing his attention to the matter that really counts—the unprofitable proportion of secondary butter sent from this country to Great Britain.

ARGENTINE AFFAIRS.

PRODUCTION AND YEAR'S TRADE.

BUENOS AYRES, Aug. 29.

The Rural Economy and Statistical Office of the Ministry of Agriculture has issued an interesting report on the national production in 1912. Roundly reduced to pounds sterling, the figures are:—Cereals, 64 millions; oil seeds, 11 millions; fodder, 7 millions; industrial plants, 20 millions; sugar, 4 millions; wine, 8 millions; live stock, 80 millions; poultry, 22 millions; forest products (timber, queiracho, etc.), 9 millions; hunting and fishing, 3 millions; minerals, 3 millions. A grand total of 231 million pounds. Only raw materials are comprised, except as to sugar and wine, and sale prices at local markets are taken as the base. The total value of exports, 1903-1907, was 280 million pounds, a figure which increased to nearly 400 millions in the following period of five years. In ten years the area dedicated to agriculture has increased 145 per cent., and railway track 85 per cent.

This year there has been a great increase in the trade returns, chiefly of raw material for manufacturing purposes. Imports of coal, locomotives, railway material, cement, girders, iron pipes, electric fittings; in fact, transport and housing materials show great increases. Textiles also show an increase, but tobacco in leaf, olive oil, and common wine show decreases. The last item is easily explainable by the fact that the Mendoza wine fills all ordinary requirements. Impure naphtha is imported in increased quantity, no less than 38,000 tons having entered in the first six months. This is a product which enters duty free, very much to the benefit of the American trust which owns the refinery here. Why kerosene should pay 100 per cent. and naphtha enter free is difficult to understand.

COMPARATIVE FIGURES.

Making a comparison for the first eight months of 1913 with the corresponding period of previous years, it is seen that wheat has increased by four hundred thousand tons, and is now 2,637,783 tons. Maize shows a great increase, having risen from 2,332,272 to 3,241,289 tons. Linseed is double, being now 824,598 tons. Oats is 905,386, this being a slight decrease. The estimated surpluses for export for the whole of the year were:—Maize, 2 million tons; oats, 1 million; and linseed, 1,500,000; so that while it may be taken that the estimates of the two latter commodities were substantially correct, as regards maize the estimate has already been exceeded by a quarter of a million, and there are still tremendous stocks in hand. The past week has seen the shipment of 156,000 tons. Argentine exports of butter do not show a betterment, a hundred thousand cases for the eight months being a normal quantity for normal pasture conditions. There is a big falling-off in sheepskins, only 22,732 bales having left, as against 37,227 bales in the eight months. The totals for the full years 1909 to 1912 were 81,606, 80,699, 73,338, and 66,882 respectively, so that the decrease is continuous.

LOAN ISSUE.

For the purposes of the improvement of Buenos Ayres by the cutting of two diagonal avenues in the centre of the city a loan of five million pounds is required. Half of this sum was recently secured on the London market at 5 per cent. interest and 1 per cent. amortisation. The issue was considerably over-subscribed, applicants only receiving 8 per cent. of the amount they requested. Issued at 96, the bankers take it at 93, and, after deducting stamp tax and other expenses, the municipality actually receives 90.6 per cent. of the nominal value.

GREAT LOSS BY FLOOD.

A tremendous area of the southern portion of the province of Buenos Ayres has been under water for some few days, and the effect will be seen on the supply and price of cattle, for hundreds of thousands of cattle and sheep have been swept away, or, rather, drowned.

PETROLEUM.

The petroleum fields of Argentina have arrived, beyond all doubt. The Government is much inclined to retain them and work them, but a counter project is before the Senate, involving a partnership between the State and a syndicate of capitalists, the State contributing the territory and existing plant, and the syndicate the working capital, a board of control being nominated in equal proportions by both parties. Should such a measure become law, it is a safe assumption that the syndicate half would be the controlling one. The American trust is too well known to admit of a doubt.

Public trials are about to be made by the authorities of the Port of Buenos Ayres to determine whether Argentine petroleum is suitable for use in the power-houses or on the locomotives. The existing machinery would be modified, and a small refining plant laid down. The previous remarks refer to oil from South Argentina, but an expert engineer has presented a report of a petroleum zone in the north. In his opinion the petroleum of Salta, for quality or quantity, cannot be beaten by the North American, Russian, or Roumanian product.

COTTON.

A powerful Spanish syndicate has been formed for the promotion of cotton cultivation in Argentina. The capital is thirty-five million dollars, chiefly subscribed by cotton spinners of Barcelona and the district.

CATTLE-SLAUGHTERING PROBLEM.

According to the census taken in 1908, there were in the Republic 29,000,000 head of cattle, of which some five million, or 16 per cent., were steers. To-day the stock is about the same, but the exportation has doubled, so that the percentage of steers has fallen to 15 per cent., or, say, four and a half million. Home consumption claims 5,200,000 carcases, but a number of these are calves, so it may be considered that 4,700,000 carcases are necessary for this country. In other words, there would be very few steer carcases left for exportation if that class were appropriated at home, and, while the export trade continues, it follows that there must be a heavy slaughter of cows. In the city slaughter-houses 63 per cent. of cows are slaughtered, and the percentage for city and export slaughter-houses combined is 40 per cent. Actually, on home consumption by itself, there is a deficiency of two million steers per annum. The Ministry of Agriculture is divided against itself on the matter, so there is no likelihood of Government intervention.

POLO PONIES.

Colonel Cezar, inspector of Argentine cavalry, is prepared to demonstrate the qualities of Argentine polo ponies before the world. At the end of November he and a party of friends will go to England, taking 50 ponies. The Government will pay the cost of passages as its share towards the advertising of Argentine horses.

MEAT TRADE WITH THE STATES.

The first direct shipment of chilled meat from Argentina to the United States has just been made. The selling value of Argentine meat had previously been tested by a consignment re-shipped from Liverpool.

MARGARINE.

GROWING TRADE IN ENGLAND.

UNIFORM QUALITY AND GRADING.

LONDON, Sept. 26.

Object lessons in the art of advertising are to be seen daily in the streets of London, in the shape of travelling advertisements of margarine. The makers of this product have brought into employment, for the delivery of margarine, motor vans of the smartest description. The bodies of these vans are butter-coloured; at one end of each side panel a clump of cocoanut palms is painted, and, at the other end, a pastoral scene, with milkmaid and pails in the foreground. In one week these van pictures, travelling about the streets, are seen by millions of people, and the merest child, at a glance, can recognise the connection between "nuts-milk-margarine." Then last week it was publicly made known, that, desiring to find out whether the inmates of a workhouse preferred butter to margarine, Lambeth Guardians put supplies of both before them without disclosing "which was which," with the result that the paupers voted for margarine. At Aldershot, during the hearing of a charge of stealing margarine, preferred against a private of the Army Service Corps, it was stated that two daily issues are made for breakfast and tea, one ounce a day being allowed for each man.

One really, in view of these things, is forced, even at the risk of being wearisome, to urge the absolute necessity of bringing butter up to choicest quality. The most casual glance at the grocery trade papers is sufficient to show that increased business in margarine is expected in the coming winter. And, why? Because good and uniform quality margarine is preferred to secondary butter. The market value of uniformity is immense. It really seems doubtful whether the huge figures relating to margarine consumption have actually been brought home, in right proportions, to the minds of Australians. Let me give an experience of mine not 10 days ago, in the hope of accomplishing the dual purpose of showing how widespread is margarine consumption, and what value attaches to uniformity of quality.

I was in conversation with the proprietor of a large restaurant where thousands of people dine every week. His trade is high-class; that is to say, his customers are the heads of city businesses. He told me that every bit of beef that went upon his tables now was chilled and imported by a well-known firm. Why? Because the quality was good, and uniform, and could be relied upon. He informed me further, that every ounce of mutton and lamb that he sold was Canterbury. Why? again. Because, once more, the quality was good, and uniform, and could be relied upon. Further, he told me that every one of the small "butter" pats on his tables was margarine. Why? yet a third time. He gave precisely the same answer—good, uniform, reliable quality. He got these qualities and cheapness too. And reliability, he said, he could not get in butter. Of course, it may be urged that this is fraud. And I suggested it. "Oh, no," was the reply, "there is no false representation. The pats are on the table for customers to use or leave, as they think fit. The pats are not described as butter; nor do customers ask for butter. They just take what is before them. And, though this has been my practice for a year, I have not had a single complaint. "It would be by no means difficult to make this a legal offence, perhaps. But that his customers were quite satisfied was evident, for his turnover last year was £2000 more than the year before. The practice I have described is, no doubt, pretty general, though, as I some time ago remarked, the probability is that trade (wholesale and retail) misrepresentation does not amount to more than 1 per cent. However, as things are going on, there will soon be no need for misrepresentation, actual or implied, for prejudice against margarine is dying away. The one way to meet its competition is to raise the quality of butter to the highest grade. This is what the Irish farmers have voluntarily agreed to do.

TOBACCO.

GROWERS BECOMING ANXIOUS.

TAMWORTH.—A serious situation has arisen in connection with the tobacco industry in this district. Approximately 300 tons of tobacco leaf is now lying in sheds in Tamworth and the surrounding districts, for which there is apparently no demand. The tobacco manufacturers up to the present have not approached growers with a view to purchasing. In previous years this was generally done at least two months before this, or even earlier, when all the tobacco leaf available was bought and paid for, and storekeepers, banks, machine agents, and others interested were also paid. In the interest of growers and the district something will have to be done to find out what set of circumstances is responsible for the present deplorable state of the tobacco industry. Planting time will soon be at hand again. Growers do not know what to do. They have been told all along that the demand is far greater than the world's supply of even good sun-cured tobacco leaf at 9d a pound.

[The manager of the British-Australasian Tobacco Company pointed out yesterday that the firm's buyer left Sydney on Thursday last for Texas, on the Queensland border, it being his intention to work his way back from the north. Time would not permit of his reaching Tamworth yet, and if the tobacco for sale there reaches the standard, he will purchase, not having instructions to the contrary from his company, the largest tobacco buyers in the State. The message states that in previous years the purchasing was done two months earlier, but October is the month when the buyer usually sets out.]

RURAL WORKERS AND FARMERS.

Mr. Crawford Greene, Mount Oriel, Iandra, writes:—"In your issue of to-day (October 28) appears a heading, 'Rural Workers. Trouble at Iandra,' under which is given a description of what amounts to a strike. In this connection I wish too deny emphatically that there is or ever has been a strike or any trouble of that description among the station employees or farm hands at Iandra. Neither I nor my farmers pay, nor consider it possible to pay, the wages claimed by the R.W.U., but we pay the current rate, with which the recipients have always seemed satisfied. The only exceptions to this harmonious state of affairs have been when famers have occasionally bid against one another for the services of some particularly efficient stack-builder."

SUBDIVISIONAL SALE.

GOOD PRICES REALISED AT BLAYNEY.

BLAYNEY.—An important subdivision sale was held on Saturday by Mr. Pigott, auctioneer, when two portions of Goongirwarrie Estate, tottling over 2000 acres, were offered. Nine out of twelve blocks were disposed of, prices ranging from £5 10s to £10 2s 6d per acre. The average throughout was about £7 10s, which is considered a splendid price, as a quantity of grazing land was included.

TOMATO DISEASES.

GOSFORD.—At the monthly meeting of Ourimbah branch of the Fruitgrowers' Association a communication was read giving some very useful information on how to prevent the ravages of the disease known as the black spot in tomatoes. Very little has been done hitherto in connection with the spraying of tomatoes for this disease, and it was agreed that the association co-operate with the department in carrying out experiments in this direction. Mr. Agst, of Ourimbah, will carry out tests with various specifics, under the supervision of the departmental experts, in the directions indicated, commencing at an early date. It was also agreed that the association invite a departmental fruit expert to give a grading and packing demonstration at Ourimbah.

THE KENNEL.

NOTES.

At to-morrow's meeting of the Sydney Silky and Yorkshire Terrier Club, a report concerning the late show will be presented. Preliminary arrangements are being made for the club's parade, which will be held in two or three months' time.

Mrs. Albert has transferred a Yorkshire terrier, by champion Lord Carrington, to Miss Beard, of Mosman.

Mr. Bruce Foster, hon. secretary of the Collie Club of New South Wales, reports that the prospects are good for the club's first annual show next month. Schedules of the classes are now obtainable.

The death is reported in New Zealand of the well-known smooth fox-terrier dog, Double First. This dog was imported by Mr. W. Hamilton, of Sydney, from Mr. F. Redmond, of England. Mr. J. W. Thomson, of Dunedin, subsequently bought Double First, who sired more winners than any other fox-terrier in New Zealand.

The reputed best two bulldogs in South Australia—Nuthurst Precocity (imp.) and Wroxham Vanessa (imp.)—would have appeared at the recent bulldog show in Sydney, but for fear of their owner's disqualification. The Bulldog Club of New South Wales is not affiliated with the Kennel Club of New South Wales. The latter body is associated with the Victorian P. and K. Club, with which the S.A. Bulldog Club is affiliated. It was, therefore, thought that members of the latter club ran the risk of being disqualified if they exhibited at what is termed an "unrecognised show."

The Queensland Ladies' Kennel Club held an excellent show in Brisbane on Saturday. Mr. J. Maude, of Sydney, who judged, said that the Queensland collies were the best in Australia. Those two old opponents, Cheriton Eclipse and Craigforth Caledonia, were placed in that order. Glendon Duke was the best fox-terrier, and the best dog of any breed. The Sydney dog, Duncraggan Dalesman, was third in the open class. Lord Noddy and Bargee Marie were the best bulldogs. Speaking at the club dinner, Mr. Maude said that 28 years' experience enabled him to compliment the ladies of Australia on the displays they made at dog shows. They usually made a better success of the shows than the male fraternity.

KENNEL CLUB.

A statement of the policy of the reconstructed Kennel Club has been issued to the members. It has been decided that the committee will hold office for three years. The club will not in future hold exhibitions of any description. The reason for this action is that dog shows cannot be made to pay in Sydney.

The club's register will include the registration of names of dogs, prefixes and affixes, transfers, changes of names, and bitches lent for breeding purposes. There will be quarterly meetings of members. Challenge and championship certificates will be granted to certain breeds at shows. Metropolitan clubs will not be required to affiliate with the Kennel Club. It is desired to establish a council of representatives composed of delegates from the various other clubs. It is not proposed to disqualify exhibitors at shows not held under Kennel Club rules. The annual subscription has been fixed at two guineas.

BULLDOG CLUB'S SHOW.

The new municipal poultry market, Quay-street, promises to be a popular show place for dogs and fowls. The upstairs portion of the building is capable of accommodating all the canine exhibits that Sydney is likely to raise. The lighting arrangements for day and night are excellent. The only drawback would be on a hot summer's day, when the heat from the iron roof would be trying to the dogs and to visitors to the show.

The Bulldog Club had the best judging ring that has been seen at a Sydney show building. It measured about 40ft by 30ft, and was securely roped off. Chairs were provided round the ring, and everyone had a good view of the judging.

Among the visitors was Mr. Lindley, of England, who sold that good dog, Dan Patch (now Milestones) to Mr. Nash, of Adelaide. Mr. Lindley said that the bulldogs at the show were the best collection he had seen in Australia. He entertains a high opinion of Messrs. Clarke and Pattricks Bankside Gem (imp.), and he says that our breeders should favour her type. The Adelaide bitch, Ruthvan's Wag, might, he things, have been better treated. Mr. F. Flowers, M.L.C., got a second prize with Uncle Bill, and Mr. J. Smith, M.L.C., v.h.c., with Arcadee.

Considerable interest was taken in the appearance in the ring of the New Zealand champion, Amherst Baron. This dog was shown rather light, and looked a bit weak in one of his pasterns. Opinions were divided among experienced ringsiders as to whether this dog was better than Mr. Ekin's Lord Roberts (who secured the challenge).

Some of the dogs exhibited had a week previously appeared under Mr. Maude at the Ladies' Kennel Club. A comparison of some of his awards with those of Mr. Rice follows:—

POULTRY.

Questions relating to fancy or commercial poultry-keeping, diseases, etc., should be addressed to "Ancona," "Herald" Office.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

T.W. (Roseville).—The temperatures you mention are the correct ones for hatching duck eggs of any sort.

Lesbolme.—The feathers are from a fowl of mixed pedigree, there being no pure breed with plumage such as you forwarded. Langshans, Cochins, and Brahmas have feathered legs. The chickens from the white rooster and coloured hens are, of course, crossbreds.

F. J. (Marrickville).—Bread-crumbs, coarse or flaked oatmeal, crushed biscuits, or such like, are all suitable foods for young chicks. You can purchase chicken mixture at the produce stores, which is an assortment of small and crushed grains. After three weeks, the ordinary bran and pollard mixture is suitable; also wheat and cracked corn.

J.G.S.—The fowls are probably too fat. When such is the case, the oviduct wherein the shell is formed cannot perform its function of secretion. Discontinue the maize, and reduce the food supply generally for a time. Oyster shell or old mortar should be supplied.

Black Orpington.—The fowl you speak of is probably dead by this time, but if not, it is useless attempting a cure; even if such were effected, the trouble would occur again.

C.A.M.—Information sent by post as requested.

Inquirer.—The birds appear to be in the first stage of roup. Squeeze out all the mucous from the nostrils and syringe out with warm water into which a few drops of Condy's Fluid have been mixed. Dry thoroughly and repeat in a day or two. The affected birds should be kept apart from the flock.

Changes which have been in contemplation for a considerable time in connection with Government poultry farms are likely soon to take place. Apart from the egg-laying competitions, poultry has for a long time been a neglected quantity and quality at Hawkesbury College, and the principal changes foreshadowed will be to the end of a poultry farm and poultry stock worthy of that institution and the State. Although there is yet but little definite, a poultry farm is contemplated, which will be equal in capacity to some of the large privately-owned ones here. It is expected the new poultry expert, Mr. Hadlington, will supervise the operations, and Mr. D. G. Thompson will be transferred to Grafton, where the northern egg-laying competitions are conducted. Mr. Wyndham, of Wagga, is spoken of as likely to take Mr. Thompson's place at the college. For several years past dog, poultry, and pigeon men were severely handicapped through inability to secure suitable city showrooms, necessitating the exhibitions being held at the Royal Agricultural Society's grounds, Moore Park. While eminently suitable as regards space, light, air, and other requirements, the great essential—gate money, was always a negative quantity, few except those connected with the exhibits making the journey. Six or seven months ago mention was made in this column that the then new municipal poultry markets would be both central and otherwise suitable. Already three shows have been held there, with gate money results exceeding any of late years. A fourth show is to follow next month, and it is believed that apart from the Royal, all next year's fanciers' fixtures will be held in the markets, if available.

A correspondent complains that the way in which poultry has been boomed these past few years by egg-laying competitions, pamphlets, and lectures have been responsible for the supply exceeding the demand, as witnessed for some weeks past, when eggs dropped in price to 9d per dozen, or 2d lower than was current at the same period last year. While the correspondent is quite correct about an increased supply, the price would not have suffered but through the fact of the cold storage accommodation being much below requirements, and chiefly through Messrs. Birts' works, where the cold storage of eggs originated, being acquired some time ago by the Railway Commissioners. The spring egg supply is certainly now beyond local consumption, and, when the space in the cold rooms is restricted and the entire supply thrown on the market, lower prices obtain. There is to be a new firm catering for this business next storing season.

While the poultry farmers have been despondent at the late low price of eggs, such price was low only in comparison with the past two or three seasons. Prior to that, 9d per dozen was considered a good payable rate for this product. There is also the fact that, during the month of October of the past and previous year, bran and pollard were at high ruling rates, while at the present time both products are advertised in the "Herald" at under 1s per bushel; hence, low egg prices are only relatively so.

In Friday's "Herald" "On the Land" reference was made to Plymouth Rock fowls. This breed a score of years ago actually boomed as show fowls, the entries exceeding in numbers that of any other breed; while they also found favour with the utility breeder. The later-day made breeds, Orpingtons and Wyandottes, were largely responsible for the decline in Plymouth Rocks, but of late they have enlisted many new admirers, and when flocks of 500 can be found, as mentioned, on the farm of a noted breeder, there is scarcely a doubt but the Rocks are coming to their own again. The hens never had the chance of making records at the egg-laying competitions, there being so few breeders that at some tests they were not represented, and at most, but two or three pens appeared. At the last Hawkesbury College competition, this breed did not appear, but in the ninth annual test the value of the Plymouth Rock eggs laid averaged exactly that of the Black Orpington, and the same birds competing the second year, finished slightly ahead of Orpingtons, and beat the Wyandottes by 2s per pen. At the last Roseworthy competition the Rocks averaged 149 eggs against 150 for the Orpingtons, Wyandottes producing but 147 per hen. With an annual egg production as good as many other breeds, and the excellent table qualities of the cockerels, there is scarcely a doubt but the big blue barred birds will again become as popular as in the past.

Broodiness in Leghorns has often been inquired about in the "Herald," and the reply hitherto given may be repeated. The fact of a hen of this breed going broody is no proof of any recent cross. In large flocks of Leghorns, from five to 10 or more per cent. have developed this feature in a less or more pronounced degree. They cannot, however, be depended on to sit for three weeks, and are rarely used for hatching. A peculiarity in respect to this abnormal tendepcy in this breed is that the percentage of broodiness in the Hawkesbury College competitions is always much smaller than in the South Australian tests. Of 83 pens of Leghorns at Roseworthy there was broodiness in 57, or about two thirds of the number, while of 28 pens at Hawkesbury College this tendency appeared in but eight of the pens. Some South Australian breeders attribute the reversion to the system of feeding. The more likely cause is, however, the climatic conditions.

FEDERAL STEAMER.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The External Affairs Department is calling for tenders for the construction of a single-screw steamer for use in the tropics. She is to be schooner rigged, and to have a clipped bow and elliptic stern. The length is to be 174ft 6in, beam 28ft, and depth 15ft.

WAS MERELY EXISTING.

NOW TRULY LIVING.
PROMINENT CITIZEN TELLS HIS EXPERIENCE.

Mr. George J. Cartwright, a prominent civil engineer, who perhaps is as well known on account of his long residence here as anyone in Sydney, called in at the office yesterday and made the following statement:—"My friends are congratulating me on all sides about my wonderful improvement in health. They all tell me I am looking better than I have for years. I must admit that I feel that way. Before taking your remedy I was merely existing, my food did not digest right, my liver and spleen was in a terrible shape, and I was in a quandary what to do, but hearing of so many prominent people being cured daily, I soon made up my mind that you had the very thing I required; and so it was; as I can truthfully say that I have gained five pounds in ten days, and feel better than I have for years. I can honestly recommend your remedies to all my friends and acquaintances." While it is a bitter foe to disease, yet there are many people who are only half sick, caused by indigestion or improper exercise. They have that tired, listless feeling, nervousness, constipation; food does not digest, catarrh, rheumatism, and generally all run down. Weis's Muco Tonic is just the thing you need to take out that tired stoop, brace you up, remove all the poisons, and acids from an overworked and over-clogged constitution. Made from the purest American Herbs, used by the Quakers for 100 years with the most gratifying results. Weis's Muco Tonic is acknowledged to be the greatest blood-purifier, system tonic, and tissue builder the world has yet produced in all countries. Your system needs cleaning at this time of the year more than any other. The vast number of voluntary testimonials coming in daily from people well known have convinced the most sceptical to the thorough efficiency of this medicine. The Summer Fly.

A HEALTH PROBLEM.

"Where did that fly come from last?" It has annoyed you by crawling over your toast and investigating the marmalade; but annoyance would be changed to disgust and fear if you could answer the question. You cannot do so, but you may be sure that in one day that objectionable and dangerous insect has sampled a wide range of disease-laden dirt; this is simply plain truth plainly put, in order to set you on guard against the busiest and deadliest of the carriers of infectious disease.

The health menace of the common fly is a very real thing; your problem is to defeat it in your own home, which is to you the most important place in the world. You can do two things—reduce the pest to a minimum and rob it of its infecting danger. The first is simple; flies object to the pungent cleanness gained by the use of a perfect cleanser and disinfectant. The best you can get is Lifebuoy Soap; use Lifebuoy Soap throughout, in bedroom, bathroom and kitchen, on floors, walls, tables and sinks; when the wholesome disinfecting agency of Lifebuoy Soap has been thus employed, when the air has been impregnated with it, the flies are inclined to avoid the place, and you will have partly won your first point.

Now for the second and most important. Use Lifebuoy Soap in the laundry. Why? Because the clothes you wear, the linen you use, your towels, handkerchiefs, tablecloths and curtains are common mediums of fly infection. Every fly that crawls on them carries the germs he has gathered in his filthy wanderings, and leaves them snugly awaiting the first susceptible victim. Boiling water does not always kill germs, and some of the commoner soapsuds may only help them to breed. You need Lifebuoy Soap to give you a clean and germ-free wash—Lifebuoy Soap will do it—you will not trouble so much "where the fly came from last," first, because fewer will come, as Lifebuoy Soap used in the house tends to keep them away; secondly, because any Disease Germs brought by the Summer Fly will be destroyed in the wash by Lifebuoy Soap.

The Stock has been taken by my representative, Mr. O'Grady, in the customary manner, who reports upon same as being new and absolutely fresh throughout, consisting very largely of present season's goods, just opened, and comprising the latest and most up-to-date ideas in high-grade Ladies' Goods, with special and exclusive designs.
I invite the very special attention of those about to commence business in Sydney, and of the trade generally, to this unique opportunity for the acquisition of a Stock which in its essence is new, more than ordinarily well assorted, and suitable for the best class of Drapery Trade.
The business was commenced only during the month of May in the present year, and its compulsory discontinuance by the present proprietors is due to financial conditions, and not to any unsuitability of the stock carried, nor lack of public support.
The Plant and Fittings are of a highly attractive character, and are of almost equal value, whether for the continuance of the business in the present premises or for removal and re-erection elsewhere.
The usual 10 per cent. conditions. The highest or any tender not necessarily accepted. Stock Sheets may be seen and all information obtained on the premises or at my office. Inspection of Stock will be facilitated by intending Tenderers making appointments for this purpose.

MACHINERY.

EVERY GOODALL BOILER
HAS A MERIT ALL ITS OWN.

Buying Boilers is necessarily an expensive matter. For two reasons. To be worth having, the boiler must be good, and good things cost money. Therefore knowing beforehand that a boiler that is worth while necessarily means expense, it behoves the buyer to choose the best his money can buy. It doesn't always follow that the best is the MOST expensive, however.
We haven't any "slightly worn" goods to show nor any "special sales" to tempt the bargain-seekers. But we have something in the way of thoroughly SOUND boilers that it will pay you to learn about.
Our Vertical Type Boilers come from a renowned English house, and reach a high standard of boiler efficiency. A wide range of sizes is carried.
The Colonial Type is locally made—double rivetted, and made for a working pressure of 100lb to the square inch. It is actually tested to 200lb before leaving the works. We supply the boilers either with or without steam dome, and include two sets of packed Gland Water Gauges with the fittings. Immediate delivery is assured, except where the size is unusual. Then we promise delivery within four to five weeks. Will you get into touch with our boiler expert about this matter?

We also Stock at Economical Prices,
SUNDRIES,
SHAFTING,
BELTING,
COTTON WASTES,
LUBRIKO GREASES,
WOOD SPLIT PULLEYS,
Etc., Etc.

MR. WADE AND MOUNT KEMBLA.

THE RESCUE OPERATIONS.

MINISTER FOR JUSTICE REPLIES.

Referring yesterday to the statement published by Mr. Wade with reference to the part he took in the Mount Kembla disaster, Mr. Hall, Minister of Justice and Solicitor-General (in the absence of the Premier), said his reply would be brief.

Mr. Wade had stated that during the last three years members of the Labour party had been endeavouring to besmear his character by accusing him of falsely claiming the credit of being present at the rescue work after the Mount Kembla colliery explosion.

"As a matter of fact," Mr. Hall said, "the whole episode is of such slight importance that in the ordinary course nothing would have been said about it but for the methods in which the affair was advertised by the ex-Premier's own friends. For instance, for some weeks before the last general election it was openly stated in the daily papers that Mr. Wade had performed this valorous act of going into the mine just after the explosion to rescue life, and matters reached a climax when, at a public banquet tendered to Mr. Wade at the Sydney Town Hall on November 7, 1910, Sir Joseph Carruthers, in proposing the toast of 'Our Guest,' said, according to a morning paper of the following day:—

"'Mr. Wade had been vilified during the election campaign in a most scandalous manner. (Hear, hear.) He had even been called a coward. (Laughter.) But Sir Joseph would ask them if his action in going into the mine at the time of the South Coast colliery disaster was that of a coward. A monument had been erected in memory of Major M'Cabe, who lost his life in attempting to save others, and they nearly came near to having to erect a monument to Mr. Wade for the same thing.'

"At the conclusion of all this talk Mr. Wade responded, and here it was that full opportunity presented itself for the leader of the Liberal party to clear away any misapprehension that may have existed in the mind of Sir Joseph Carruthers and of others as to the actual part he took in the affair—namely (as stated by Mr. Wade on Tuesday), that he only volunteered to form one of a rescue party, and that the offer was declined. But there was no word from Mr. Wade on the subject during the course of his reply, and it was not till three weeks later that, owing to the correctness of Sir Joseph's statement being questioned, Mr. Wade gave the facts of the matter to the press. Under these circumstances I simply leave it to the public to judge who is responsible for the alleged besmearing of Mr. Wade's character—that gentleman himself or the Labour party."

BOYS' BRIGADE.

REMARKABLE DEVELOPMENT.

APPEAL FOR FUNDS.

"The membership of the Boys' Brigade has been more than trebled during the past six months," remarked the superintendent in the course of his report submitted to a meeting of the committee, presided over by Sir James Fairfax, yesterday. The reason given for the great increase was the fact that spacious and comfortable new headquarters had been built for the boys, possession of which was taken on May 1.

The superintendent (Mr. A. C. L'Orange) reported that, in all the branches of work, the progress had been remarkable during the past six months, and the efforts of the committee had met with a magnificent response on the part of the boys. The register now showed a membership of 1451—a net increase for the period under review of 1012. The average nightly attendance for the past three years had been between 64 and 89, but during the past six months the average had been 291. "These authentic figures," the superintendent added, "need no comment, but they prove beyond all doubt to the committee and to the subscribers that a genuine necessity existed for enlarged premises specially built to accommodate this important work."

Notwithstanding the many attractions provided for the young, the report continued, there had been no diminution in the interest taken by the lads in the work of the brigade, and the general behaviour of the boys had been all that could have been desired. The advantages of the new home had been fully availed of, and the carpentery, basket-work, singing, fret-saw, and small boys' classes, as well as the rifle and cricket clubs, were very largely attended, and were doing good work.

It was intimated at the meeting that a special appeal is being made for the purpose of reducing the debt on the building, and the opinion was expressed that there would be a ready and liberal response to aid such an excellent cause as that of the Boys' Brigade, one of the oldest institutions of the city working among the deserving poor.

DISPOSAL OF GARBAGE.

A NEW DESTRUCTOR.

MOORE PARK PLANT INADEQUATE.

The condition of the Moore Park destructor, which has been a source of worry to the City Council, was discussed at a special meeting of the health committee of the council held yesterday afternoon.

The chief inspector of the City Cleansing Department (Mr. J. P. Webster) stated that the first destructor erected at Moore Park consisted of six cells, with an aggregate grate area of 216 square feet. A second destructor was erected about eight years ago by the City Surveyor, with a grate area of 336 square feet. Attached to the first destructor was a smoke stack of 5ft 4in internal diameter. Everything went well until the second destructor was coupled up to the smoke stack of the first, when it was manifest that the stack was unable to cope with the smoke from the whole of the 14 cells. It was impossible for the men to work, and consequently it became necessary to cut out or reduce the number of cells. He suggested the carrying out of certain alterations at an estimated cost of £10,300, to enable the council to make use of the second destructor, and also to make provision for at least 10 years ahead. The full capacity of the plant would then be 200 tons per day.

After Mr. Kenway had explained the working of the destructor, it was agreed, on the motion of Aldermen Griffin and Cox, that Mr. Webster be instructed to prepare plans for the construction of a new 12-cell destructor at Moore Park, adjoining the present one.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—From the correspondence in your columns it appears that two different methods have been suggested to signalise the entry into Sydney Harbour of the Commonwealth fleet. The first is to get Mr. Percy Spence to paint a picture for King George, and the second is to commission a marine painter to treat the same subject for the benefit of the people of Sydney. In the language of commerce, one is "for export" and the other "for home consumption." The exported exhibit may be construed as a demonstration of loyalty, and, in addition, as a compliment to his Majesty or Mr. Spence, whichever is intended, or it may indicate the uses of advertisement; but it will not commemorate in our midst a turning point in our national life; it will not appeal to our people to stimulate the realisation of nationhood, with its burdens and its ideals, it will not lift us out of the swaddling clothes of provincialism. May I recommend this course: Let us secure the best marine painter in Australia to paint a picture for the King, and to paint a replica for the National Gallery or the Town Hall.

I am, etc.,
JOHN LANE MULLINS.
Oct. 28.

THE CONDOMINIUM.

LABOUR QUESTION.

INTRODUCTION OF CHINESE COOLIES.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

VILA, Oct. 17.

The Condominium, so much in the public eye just now, I found in a similar disunited state as when I left it nearly a year ago, and with small prospects of mending at present. The casus belli is principally the dearth of labour owing to the difficulty of recruiting. The New Hebridean native is not anxious to work; he is getting a much higher price for his copra than of yore, and can live very comfortably without hard toil; and as he is constitutionally averse to that, or indeed any, toil, content to lie under a cocoanut tree, and let his helpmate cultivate his taro patch, he sometimes desultorily wading out on to the reef and spearing a few fish when he feels inclined for such a diet, the initial difficulty of persuading him to sign for three years as a plantation hand can be realised, unless "lashins" of gin and abundance of tobacco, and his being a "mauvais sujet" ("ne'er-do-well") of his tribe induce him to accept the premium offered by the recruiter. Under these circumstances, the credible report that at the end of the year an important French company is to introduce a large batch of Chinese coolies is received by French and British planters alike with joyful acclamation.

The coffee crop promises remarkably well on all sides, notwithstanding the ravages of the hemilea scourge, various planters have assured me.

On August 14 a new French hospital was opened in the capital.

The present French Resident is reported to be leaving the group about the end of the year, when his successor, Monsieur Miramendo, is to arrive.

The sanitary condition of Vila and neighbourhood does not seem to have perceptibly changed for the better.

There is a marked diminution in cases of illicit grog-selling to natives.

In connection with cotton culture in the New Hebrides I was informed by a person interested in this textile that 475 tons were exported from the group last year, and he expected 600 or 700 tons would be the figures for 1913.

In spite of the general complaint of want of business the sporting instincts of the population are not decadent, as we are to have a race meeting on the 25th instant at Tagabe, near Vila, and a very fair field of horses are booked to try conclusions, and training is in active progress daily.

Our esteemed Postmaster and Condominium Treasurer (Monsieur Deschamps) is to leave, much to general regret, for an extended holiday in December, when it is probable the Joint Court will also go into vacation, and the acting-President (Count d'Andino) and British and French Judges will leave also to spend it in Australia, though the latter may remain in Noumea with his family.

An extensive fire broke out on the 21st ult. on Monsieur Colardeau's plantation, at Vila, when it is estimated 10,000 francs damage was done, a new copra drying house being gutted.

A tennis American tournament was held at Messrs. Burns, Philp Company's tennis court, lent for the occasion, on the 27th ultimo.

H.M.S. Pyramus arrived on the 19th ult. from Noumea, and left on the 21st for a cruise round the group in company with the British Government steam yacht Euphrosyne, with H.B.M.'s Resident Commissioner on board. They returned to Vila on the 30th ultimo.

DEAF, DUMB, AND BLIND.

INSTITUTION MEETING.

DEFECTION OF ADULT DEAF.

The fifty-second annual meeting of the New South Wales Institution for the Deaf and Dumb and the Blind was held in the hall at the institution yesterday afternoon. Colonel Goodlet, president of the board of directors, occupied the chair.

The annual report showed that there were on the roll:—Deaf and dumb, 77 boys, 41 girls; blind, 16 boys, 4 girls; deaf and blind, 1 girl. Total, 139. The work of the institution had been sadly interrupted through the epidemic of smallpox, which broke out in Sydney soon after the children had left the institution for the midwinter holidays. Fortunately no case occurred in the institution.

With regard to the compulsory education of deaf and dumb and blind children, the directors had to report, with very much regret, that nothing definite has yet been accomplished, although they have done all they could do to ensure the passing of an Act of Parliament with that object in view.

At the invitation of the board, the Minister of Public Instruction kindly gave permission for Messrs. Senior-inspectors Beavis and Friend to visit the institution and examine the pupils. The report of the inspectors was very satisfactory.

The income of the institution during the past year on general fund account has been well maintained, and shows an increase on that of the previous year of £587 9s 1d; but there has been a much larger increase in the expenditure, owing to extensive alterations, renovations, and improvements in the buildings, and the cost of furniture for the new additions, consequently the year has terminated with a debit balance of £160 4s 1d. Fire drill was practised at intervals, the whole of the children being removed from the institution in less than three minutes.

The Institute for the Adult Deaf, the directors regret to say, had been a source of considerable anxiety to them during the past few months, most of the members having resigned for the purpose of forming an independent society of their own without any intimation whatever to the board.

The present building has been erected by the directors of this institution at very great expense for the special benefit of ex-pupils and others who had completed their educational course. It was of the most modern and up-to-date style, provided with plenty of light and ventilation, and suitable in every way for the requirements of the adult deaf of this State, and has ample accommodation. Under the circumstances, the directors are at a loss to understand what the adult deaf had to gain by their peculiar action.

Sir Philip Sydney Jones referred to the question of the adult deaf. An attempt had been made in Sydney to introduce another adult deaf institution, and such statements as had been made in the circulars issued by that new institution were contrary to facts, to put it in the mildest way. These statements should be refuted. Many of the things desired by this new institution had already been carried out by the present one, and he was quite sure the board of directors would be quite willing to make advances in other directions, if it were found to be practicable and of advantage to the adult deaf. (Applause.)

The report and balance-sheet having been adopted, the following officers were appointed:—President, Colonel John H. Goodlet; vice-presidents, Messrs. James R. Love and W. H. Simpson; hon. treasurer, Mr. Fred Phillips; hon. secretary, Mr. William Rigg; directors (to fill vacancies), Mr. Robert Chadwick, Dr. T. Storie Dixson, and Mr. John Wade. Members of the board—Aubrey Halloran, Thomas S. Holt, Sir Philip Sydney Jones, F. H. Reuss, John F. Rofe, Robert Vicars, William Winn. Honorary medical staff: Consulting physician and medical inspector, Dr. George E. Rennie; consulting surgeon, Dr. Charles P. B. Clubbe; opthalmic surgeon, Dr. J. C. Halliday; aural surgeon, Dr. John E. Graham; physicians, Sir P. Sydney Jones and Dr. E. Selwyn Harrison; dentists, Messrs. A. G. Gabriel and Henry E. Walker.

ACID STOMACHS ARE DANGEROUS.

NINE-TENTHS OF ALL STOMACH TROUBLE SAID TO BE DUE TO ACIDITY.

A PHYSICIAN'S ADVICE ON CAUSE AND CURE.

A famous physician whose successful researches into the cause and cure of stomach and intestinal diseases have earned for him an international reputation, said in the course of a recent lecture that nearly all intestinal troubles, as well as many diseases of the vital organs, were directly traceable to a deranged condition of the stomach, which in turn was due nine times out of ten to excessive acidity, which not only irritated and inflamed the delicate lining of the stomach, but also set up gastritis and stomach ulcers. It is interesting to note that he condemns the use of patent medicines as well as of medical treatment for the stomach, stating that he and his colleagues have secured remarkable results by the use of ordinary bisurated magnesia, which, by neutralising the acidity of the food, removes the source of the trouble. He contends that it is as foolish to treat the stomach itself as it would be for a man who stepped on a tack to rub liniment on the foot without first removing the tack. Remove the tack and the foot will heal itself—neutralise the acid and stomach troubles will disappear. Irritating medicines and medical treatments are useless, so long as the contents of the stomach remain acid; remove the acidity, and there will be no need for medicine—the inflamed lining of the stomach will then heal itself. Sufferers from acidity should get a small bottle of bisurated magnesia from their chemist, and take half a teaspoonful in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water after meals, repeating in fifteen minutes, if necessary, this being the dose which the doctor has found most efficacious in all cases.—Advt.

WATER POWER.

HARNESSING THE SHOALHAVEN.

GOULBURN, Tuesday.

A report by the Chief Electrical Engineer on the practicability of obtaining electric power from the waters of the Shoalhaven River has been published. Mr. Charles A. Edwards, supervising surveyor, made, under the direction of the Chief Electrical Engineer, a flying survey. The survey established the practicability of terminating at Sewell's Point a race commencing near Braidwood. A dam site immediately below the Warri Bridge appeared the most useful for the proposed scheme. From a balance reservoir pipes would be led down the spur of Sewell's Point, which has a very convenient slope for a distance of 35 chains to the power station, giving a total head of 1010ft. The quantity of water available falling through this height would give off at the generator continuously 10,000 electrical horse-power; but, if needed, plant to the capacity of 30,000 horse-power might be provided. For the purpose of an estimate a plant capacity of 14,000 electrical horse-power is assessed capable of carrying an overload for 10 hours of 20 per cent. A transmission main to connect with the proposed State power scheme at Kiama is also allowed for. The capital cost is set down at £526,000, the annual expenditure at £45,820, and the annual receipts at £52,160. The report states that the tin manufactures alone of calcium, carbide, and caustic soda would justify the scheme.

The engineer states:—"I have for long been aware that capitalists are at hand only waiting for a cheap supply of power in order to start the former industry on a large scale."

The charge per unit averages 0.43d. An alternative scheme with increased power and reduced cost is mentioned. The engineer recommends that £3000 be placed on the estimates for a flying survey. He points out that if the land is of good quality irrigation must have first claim on the waters of the river.

NO LICENSE.

PARTY PRONOUNCEMENT.

NOT OPPOSED TO SPORT.

There was a largely-attended meeting of the State Council of the New South Wales Alliance on Monday.

Archdeacon Boyce, who presided, said that the tocsin of war has sounded, and every hour was precious before the day of battle. While drink was doing its deadly work and wrecking homes, no true patriot should be guilty of inaction. In some electorates splendid work was being done, but not in some. A place must be poor in spirit, indeed, that was not alive to the importance of the crisis and slept on calmly. Were there no village Hampdens there?

What was wanted now in every part was sane and vigorous effort for no license. Open-air meetings and house to house canvassing were among the most effective means. No license allowed persons to have liquor brought in from outside places where the bar remained open, but it was a tremendous step towards absolute sobriety. In other parts of the world the blessings that had followed the closing of the public liquor bars had been singularly great, and of priceless value, and every day before the poll here should be a time of earnest work on its behalf.

The following resolution in view of a statement widely circulated was passed:—"That the State council of the N.S.W. Alliance repudiates the false and often-repeated statement of the liquor party that its ultimate aim was the repression of all sport, recreation, and smoking, and again emphasises that its efforts are solely directed against the liquor traffic, and regards this statement made as untrue and ridiculous.

COST OF LIVING.

INQUIRY RESUMED.

EVIDENCE OF SHORT WEIGHT.

Judge Heydon yesterday resumed the inquiry into the cost of living.

Mr. Rolin, K.C. (instructed by Messrs. Minter, Simpson, and Co., Messrs. Sly and Russell, and Messrs. Read and Read) appeared for the Employers' Federation, Mr. Bevan for the public interest, and Mr. M. Connington for the Union Secretaries' Association and several unions.

Evidence for the unions was entered upon, and Mr. Connington went into the box. Before doing so, he said he purposed placing before his Honor all the facts he had gathered, not over all the State, but by reason of purchases made at three of the principal grocery shops in Sydney, and the prices could be taken as bedrock. He would do so with a view of showing that the evidence already given was not in accord with the facts. He proposed himself taking some action which might lead to Parliament itself regulating the weights of articles, so that the people would know where they were.

Mr. Connington contended that many of the figures in documents before his Honor were based on these incorrect weights. It would take a statistician to know which was the cheapest to buy. As showing the variety in the weights of fruit, Mr. Connington said he bought one tin weighing 14oz at 4½d, a tin of 21oz at 6½d, a tin of 27½oz at 9½d, a tin of 28oz at 8½d. A quarter-pound tin of pepper on the bill really weighed 3oz, and cost 4½d. It was marked 3oz on the tin. Baking-powder he bought in 6oz, 7oz, and 8oz tins, the prices being 5d, 6d, and 8½d. Candles ranged from 10½oz to 16oz. Incidentally, the witness remarked, that he found all imported articles, jams and so on, up to full weight, full pounds and full half-pounds. In reply to his Honor, Mr. Connington said that all actual weights were marked on the packets or tins, excepting in the case of a packet of candles.

GIRLS' REALM GUILD.

ITS WORK PRAISED.

The annual meeting of the Girls' Realm Guild of New South Wales was held yesterday, Lady Cullen, presiding.

Miss Mabel Grant-Cooper read the annual report, which stated that during the past year five new centres had been formed, and several reorganised. The membership for New South Wales stood at 3000. The Jumble Depot had been very busy all the year, and Miss Sutton had conceived the idea of having their own jumble van, which would be a motor. A bazaar had augmented this fund, and various donations it had been received. At the Girls' High School centre 68 garments had been made and sent to the Infants' Home, Ashfield. Toys had been sent to the Sydney City Mission, and cuffs to the old women at Newington.

The president (Lady Cullen) said that the institution pleased her more than any other she had had to do with, and she was exceptionally struck by the way the various centres had worked. They never went back, but forward.

DIVORCE AND THE CHURCHES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In your issue of this morning, in a paragraph dealing with a sermon of mine, delivered on Sunday night at St. Mary's, North Sydney, you quote me as saying:—"Of the divorcees granted (in 1912) 307 were made up as follows: 29 Church of England, 87 Presbyterians, 79 Methodists, 52 Congregationalists, 14 Baptists, 7 other religions, while 33 were remarried by the Registrar of the locality." As the last sentence would indicate, these figures are as a matter of fact those officially supplied of the "number of divorced persons remarried by clergymen of specified denominations." It is fair to the denominations concerned that I should correct your report.

A point I wished to make on Sunday night was that in no one instance had a Catholic priest remarried a divorced person, while the other party to the dissolved marriage was alive. Hence, my question—What were the Anglican bishops doing when 29 divorcees were able to find Anglican ministers ready and willing to marry them. Perhaps these 29 cases can be explained as the three Catholic cases mentioned in your report. I hope so.

SUPERANNUATION.

THE LIBERAL POSITION.

MR. WADE'S VIEW.

"The Superannuation Bill, introduced by the Government, has," Mr. Wade declares, "been used as a bait to attract the Public service vote, blindly, at the coming elections, and the Liberals, in accordance with the usual Labour tactics, are blamed for the fact that it is not now law."

The true position, Mr. Wade added, was as follows:—"When my Government passed the Railway Superannuation Act in 1910, a deputation of Public servants waited on me and asked for a revised Superannuation Act for the Public service in the new Parliament. I promised to remove the existing anomalies as soon as practicable, and also stated in the course of the campaign that my party would deal sympathetically with the question. During the life of the present Parliament, the Labour Ministry has done nothing but bring down an ill-digested measure in the dying days of last session. It is obvious, if a scheme for public servants was good three years ago, there was no need to postpone it until the expiring days of Parliament. And, even then, the Government had apparently no intention of using it for anything else but a placard, because Mr. Flowers announced in the council, on behalf of the Ministry, that the Government would not proceed with the bill.

"The subsequent steps were more for the purpose of picking the quarrel with the council than of advancing the interests of the Public service. When the bill left the lower House, it was open to criticism on three points. First of all, the definition of employer had been altered. It now means the Crown acting for the Government of New South Wales. This is wide enough to cover any branch of Government activity, and includes undoubtedly railway servants. I admit that it was not intentionally done, but the railway servants are strongly averse to their pension scheme being absorbed or interefered with, and it was absolutely necessary to make a further alteration so as to exempt the railways from the Act.

"Another blunder was the result of undue haste as contained in section 12, as the bill now stands. Under clause 12, sub-section 2, the bill provides that the employer may contribute for two units at the rates prescribed for the age of 30. Sub-section 3 provides that he may elect to contribute for additional units not exceeding six, at the rate prescribed according to salary and actual age. This was felt to be a hardship upon railway servants, and we Liberals protested against it. The Government altered it, in a tired and exhausted House, and the amendment produced an extraordinary anomaly. Sub-section 2 was amended, and now reads that the employee may contribute for two and a half or three, or four, units at the rate prescribed for the age of 30. The result is that he is compelled to contribute for two units at the rate prescribed for his actual age. If he contributes for two and a half, or three, or four, it is at the rate for thirty. This was unsatisfactory to the smaller salaried men who are not prepared to contribute for more than two units. Thirdly, the scheme, as it left the Lower House, is different from that propounded by the committee and actuaries. They confined their calculations to the actual Public service, whereas the measure now before the House envolves wider benefits, and includes a wider circle of contributors. Under these circumstances, the Bill was clearly one that should be amended and improved, but the Ministry, in their desire to pick a quarrel with the council, said: 'If you amend one line of that bill it will be abandoned.'

"Therefore, many members of the council who were perfectly willing to deal with it in committee, and amend it, were compelled to adopt the alternative of voting holus-bolus for the measure which contained obvious defects, or registering their protest by a vote on the second reading.

"As far as the Liberals were concerned we adhered to the promise made at the last campaign, but we are not going to indulge in a political auction to outbid our competitors in the field. We are prepared to do a perfectly fair thing to the service, and those in the service who accept that promise will not be disappointed. Mr. Beeby, at Waverley, is very profuse in his promises to Public servants, but while the bill was going through Parliament he was equally conspicuous by his absence from the House."

NEWCASTLE.

DELAYS TO SHIPPING.

NEWCASTLE, Tuesday.

The congestion in railway coal haulage which occurred last week has been followed by a similar state of affairs in connection with the loading facilities. The cranes have been unable to deal with the coal, which has been drawn to the Dyke ready for shipment, and both interstate and over-sea vessels have been subjected to delays. There were not sufficient coaling berths, and the following vessels were to-day unable to get berths at the cranes:—The Winfield, Moltkefels, Wimmera, Sydney, Kakapo, Prophet, Leura, Wear, Baron, Tweedmouth, Barwon, Werribee, and Perth. A deputation from the Newcastle Chamber of Commerce will wait on the Treasurer (Mr. Cann) to-morrow morning to make representations respecting the congestion of railway haulage and coal loading appliances.

STRIKE AT NEATH.

Neath colliery was idle to-day, in consequence of a strike of clippers on. It appears that one of the clippers on was put off, and the others decided not to work. The steamer Inga arrived to-day from Sydney to load coal from this colliery, and another vessel is expected in a day or two.

SHORTAGE OF FOOD SUPPLIES.

STRIKERS PREVENT LANDING.

HOPES FOR SETTLEMENT.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Tuesday.

The waterside strike continues. Pickets are preventing anything in the shape of merchandise entering or leaving the wharfs, and are also preventing the passing in of ships' supplies, though this is against the strike committee's orders. Most of the vessels in port are anchored in the stream, including the Corinthic, Rimutaka, Dorset, Northern, Hercules, Wairuna, Kaiapoi.

The wharfs are deserted, and stores closed. The cruiser Psyche arrived unexpectedly this morning. It is understood her presence has nothing to do with the labour trouble. As soon as she tied up a picket gave his version of the strike and its causes to the bluejackets on the wharf.

Mr. Canham, president of the Auckland Waterside Workers' Union, said it had been decided that he should visit Wellington to urge that all transport workers should be called out if the Federation of Labour decided to take the strike out of the hands of the strike committee. He felt sure they would be able to commence an industrial fire which would take a very long time to quell.

The result of the strike is already being felt in the shortage of food supplies. Sugar was raised from 8/6 to 11/8 per 56lb bag. There is also a shortage of flour and potatoes. An attempt to land perishable goods from a coastal steamer was frustrated by pickets. It is reported that the police are ready for any emergency. The north island horses entered for the cup meeting at Christchurch were allowed to go south after full consideration by a big meeting of strikers, though the decision was not unanimous. The meeting also passed a unanimous vote of confidence in the leaders and the executive.

Mr. Massey stated in the House that a conference would be held to-night between representatives of the conflicting parties. He would probably preside. He hoped the conference would result satisfactorily.

A telegram from Fielding states that a gang of about 80 farmers' sons and others is being organised to go to Wellington to work on the wharfs. It is considered that 700 men can be got from the district for the purpose.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL EXHIBITION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Would you give me space to correct a serious error of fact in the notes on the Grammar School in your education column of October 28. The facts are these: We are to receive from the Walter and Eliza Hall trustees the sum of £150 in 1914 and in 1915, rising to £300 in subsequent years. Each year one exhibition of £60 will be awarded to the son of a clergyman of the Church of England resident outside the metropolitan area. Thus, when the scheme is in full working order, there will be five exhibitioners in the school at any one time. Should suitable candidates be lacking, two exhibitions of £25 will be awarded to the sons of clergymen of the Church of England resident within the metropolitan area. In awarding the exhibitions regard shall be paid to the character and educational attainments of the candidates and their need of financial assistance. The examination for the exhibition will be held this year for the first time on Tuesday, December 9.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1913.

ON THE MARKET.

When Father O'Reilly at Ashfield last Sunday night declared in effect that Roman Catholics as a body were on the market the wish was probably parent to the thought. He spoke as he hoped, not as he believed. We have too great a respect for so large a section of the community to think that they are simply waiting to be bought—that a promise to subsidise Roman Catholic schools would make them forget their duties as citizens and their responsibilities as members of a great and growing State. It has to be remembered in this connection that the giver of a bribe might easily become the worst possible enemy of the receiver. Lack of principle would develop into perjury and corruption in other directions; and Roman Catholics who sold themselves for a mess of pottage would wake up afterwards to find their rights and privileges as citizens surrendered to men who would fleece them without scruple. That is to say, what Father O'Reilly and others of his faith desire can be supported by appeals to principle or it cannot. If it can be so supported, there should be no need to declare that Roman Catholics are practically up for sale and that for a concession on one point are ready to give up everything else. On the other hand, should there be no question of principle involved and the claims advanced are so much blackmail, then the Roman Catholic Church must stand condemned of something little better than highway robbery. We are perfectly willing to accept every disclaimer on the latter alternative. We believe that Father O'Reilly and his colleagues are convinced that they are fighting for a principle, but we refuse to believe that the majority among the members of their flocks are ready to sell themselves to the highest bidder to secure recognition for it. There are thoughtful men and women among Roman Catholics who can see all that is involved. They have as much self-respect as other reputable citizens; and whether they are Liberals or supporters of the Labour party, they are not going to make a bargain to achieve one object without any reference to the vital questions which lie at the base of the State's well-being. It would be suicidal so to do. Moreover, a Church or a political party that is up for sale advertises itself as unscrupulous and opportunist. Its influence becomes negligible; and since Australians are not to be bludgeoned or cajoled into doing things they disapprove of, there is the danger that contempt or indifference will develop into direct hostility.

It is hardly necessary to reiterate the truth that a large majority of the people of New South Wales are convinced supporters of the present Public school system. This is a fact which no party has so far dared to challenge, though the Labour party has been willing to go round it with a sop to Roman Catholics in the concessions of the bursary system. The real demands of the Church have not been met, hence the present announcement of a vote upon the market. We have to consider, then, what would be involved in a successful sale. Suppose that either Mr. Holman or Mr. Wade, or a majority of their supporters, gave the necessary engagement to subsidise Roman Catholic schools from public funds, and that later on by bringing pressure to bear upon the Government of the day the bargain was carried out. Would it not mean that the people of New South Wales were sold like sheep? Would it not be a conspiracy against the State? Can Father O'Reilly imagine for a moment that the citizens of this land are so many sheep, defenceless and helpless against any body of enterprising shearers that may come along? Is it possible that the bargain and sale would stand good against the storm of protest that would arise? We may be told cynically that the public has a short memory, that anything is fair in love and war, and that politics as played at present is war. But Father O'Reilly and his friends forget that the people of New South Wales were roused once over this matter. A good deal of water has flowed under the bridge since then, we admit; but the education system of the State has not lost its place in public regard, and whoever steps forward to destroy it will be struck with the same weapon. There is no animus in this against Roman Catholicism. Roman Catholics are citizens entitled to all the rights and privileges of such, and they are undoubtedly a very important section of the community. But once they place class or caste before the State as a whole they will go down. This is the head and front of the Labour party's offending in the eyes of the people of New South Wales to-day. Mr. Holman and his supporters have not studied the interests of the State, but of one section of its people; and although the appeals now being made are to all classes, the community knows from bitter experience that administration and legislation will be directed to realise a class platform, not to give fruit to a national policy. The Roman Catholic Church, according to Father O'Reilly, is prepared to do the same thing. "Give us money, and you can play skittles with everything else," is his appeal to candidates and parties; and that way lies disaster. Politics without principle is a thing of the devil, and we are surprised that spokesmen for a great Church cannot or will not see it.

NEW ZEALAND'S NAVY.

The announcement of the policy of the New Zealand Government with regard to naval defence comes as an opportune and welcome sequel to the celebrations in the Commonwealth on the occasion of the arrival of the flagship of the Australian naval unit. Mr. Massey's statement marks the second stage in the evolution of that joint co-ordinated organisation of Imperial defence in the Pacific Ocean, of which the establishment of the Royal Australian Navy was the first. It will be received with gratification in Australia, first, because it marks the further determination of the New Zealand people to pursue their patriotic endeavour to make an effective contribution to the defence needs of the Empire; and, second, because in two important respects it records an approximation to the policy adopted by the Commonwealth in this matter. In his consultations with the Imperial Government in London Mr. Allen, the Minister for Defence, took as his starting-point the non-fulfilment of the 1909 agreement. The Admiralty proposed to station in New Zealand waters two light cruisers previously forming part of the Australasian squadron. The Dominion Government took the view that this was too great a departure from the 1909 agreement, which provided for two cruisers of the "Bristol" type, three destroyers, and two submarines, to be stationed in New Zealand, as well as for the Dreadnought New Zealand to form the flagship of the proposed China unit. Mr. Massey accordingly proposed that the Admiralty should provide two cruisers of the Bristol type, and that the Dominion Government should increase its annual financial contribution from £100,000 to £150,000. This suggestion was rejected by the Admiralty on what are, no doubt, substantial grounds, and, as far as the Imperial Government is concerned, the matter rests there for the present.

But the inability or unwillingness of the Imperial authorities to comply with the obligations imposed in 1909 provides the stimulus to New Zealand to put forward further efforts to anticipate what Mr. Massey suggested were the impending great changes in the Pacific. In the first place the Dominion is to train officers and men for naval service, and a training ship is to be placed at the disposal of the Government by the Admiralty for this purpose. The most valuable feature of the contribution which the Commonwealth is making to the cause of Imperial defence is in this direction. Personal service is of greater moment than a mere cash subsidy, and we are glad that the New Zealand Government has taken up this matter with such wholehearted recognition of its importance. The Government further proposes to construct a fast modern cruiser of the Bristol type in England, at a cost of £400,000, which in peace time will be under the control of the New Zealand Government, and in war time will pass automatically under the control of the Admiralty. There is this difference from the Australian arrangement, that whereas in the New Zealand case the transfer is to be automatic, with the Australian ships there is a reserve power retained by the Federal Government. In essentials, however, the conditions are the same—that there shall be local control in peace, and that the vessels of the Dominion shall be available for general Imperial purposes when the need arises. The policy of the New Zealand Government will naturally open up the whole question of co-operation with Australia, and it affords a further cogent reason for the early holding of an Imperial Defence Conference, when the subject can be discussed in all its bearings. Advantage will doubtless be taken of the arrangement already made for the training of New Zealand naval cadets at the Commonwealth Naval College. In other matters, whilst there will be no attempt on the part of the Australian Government to interfere in the domestic arrangements of our sister-Dominion, every possible means of cordial co-operation for common ends will be heartily welcomed and reciprocated in the Commonwealth. We congratulate the Dominion Government on its statesmanlike outlook, and wish it well in its desire to join with the Commonwealth in protecting commercial and other interests of the Empire from danger in the southern seas.

THE HARVEST PROBLEM.

The rains which have just fallen over the whole of the wheat belt make it as certain as anything in farming can be certain that a teeming harvest will be reaped this year in New South Wales. It is true that the rain has come a little too late for some of the most forward crops. But over the greater part it could not have been more timely. As far as it is possible to foretell the conditions in this country, this State is in for a season which, with ordinarily prudent management, ought to go a long way towards recouping its finances for the overdraft of the past year. It only remains to transfer to the wharfs the wealth which is now standing in the paddocks. There are two chief agencies in that transference—the farm labourers and the railways; there is an enormous amount of work awaiting them; and an enormous amount of money to be earned by each of them. The whole question is whether they are capable of doing this year's work and willing to earn this year's money. As far as the railways are concerned, their failure through one cause or another to meet the growth of our trade in the past, hardly gives ground for expecting that they will completely succeed in the present. We can only urge upon the railway officials that an unprecedented amount of foresight must be devoted to meet an unprecedented harvest. Although this is one of the great grain-producing countries of the world, it has not yet been provided with the ordinary equipment of a modern grain trade. A series of wheat stacks left to weather on country platforms is an all too frequent result of even a normal increase in our annual production. It will need all the brains and energy that the Railway Department can devote to the problem to avoid the delay in the carriage of this year's wheat developing to the size of a scandal.

The other agency in the transference from the paddock to the wharf is the farm labourer. We do not believe that the rural workers of this country will be so foolish as to throw away the biggest earnings which have offered for many years, and plunge this State in further financial difficulties which will fall on no one quicker than themselves. The coming harvest is a great opportunity to both sides—to farmers and farm labourers also—if it is only approached with reason and with a certain display of tact. But undoubtedly tact is required by both sides if the record harvest, which should be a source of wealth to both, is not to be ruined. In the first place, rural workers must realise that by assuming any foolishly aggressive attitude they may easily spoil, not only their chance of a good share of this year's prosperity, but the prosperity of the country for years to come. Rural workers know perfectly well that in no calling are wages and conditions so dependent on the prosperity of the industry as in the farming and pastoral industries. Industrial tribunals may fix what wages they like, but if a bad year strikes the country industries excessive wages will not be paid simply because they cannot be paid. The test of a year of real depression has not occurred since the arbitration and wages board system was introduced. But when it does come, the country worker will be the first to find himself unemployed. The possibility of high wages in the country industries depends immediately on the prosperity of those industries. If they are wisely led, the country workers will do nothing to interfere with the general prosperity of rural industries. At the same time it will be wise in farmers and pastoralists to recognise that an improvement in the conditions of country labour is bound to come; and there can be no doubt that it is in the interest of the Australian nation that it should come. It is not in the interest of Australia that the workers in the great primary industries which are the main industries of this country, should continue to be the casual and migratory workers that the majority of them are. The accommodation for farm and station workers in this country and the conditions of their life had their origin in a time when the rural worker belonged to an altogether different class—not a class that any country would choose to possess for its country population. Undoubtedly those who come to Australia from the old world are struck by the absence of ordinary civilised amenities in the surroundings of our rural workers. The Scottish Agricultural Commission was emphatic upon the point. The isolated troubles which have lately occurred amongst farm workers are stated to have had as their object the calling of a compulsory conference by the Commonwealth Arbitration Court. If that conference meets we trust that each side will remember that the other has genuine rights and genuine difficulties, and that nothing may occur to place unnecessary obstacles in the way of the already formidable task of gathering this year's harvest.

TRANSIT DEVELOPMENT.

The new power-house now being erected at Balmain is a brief epitome and abstract of the times, as far as transit problems are concerned. This station, when it reaches completion, will be one of the largest and best equipped in the world. Its power capacity will be remarkable from an engineering point of view. The technical description we were able to give yesterday will not, perhaps, convey very much to the layman who is unfamiliar with engineering details. But the scheme implies something almost unparalleled either in Europe or America; and it forms an outstanding object lesson in our treatment of the transit problem. During the last decade the growth of the Sydney tramway system has been phenomenal. Hardly any city in the world could show a similar progress. Yet, even so, we have by no means kept pace with the demand, and though the new power-house when finished will be a subject of interest to engineers everywhere there is little doubt that even its immense capacity will in a few years be strained to the breaking point; so that, important work as it is, it will not do to lose sight of the fact that tramways alone will be quite incapable of coping with the transit problem. We have, in fact, very nearly reached the limit. We have got used to the tramway system, and we fail to recognise that we expect much more from it than can legitimately be demanded. It is admittedly insufficient for the great demand made upon it; but it is doubtful if any other city has so complete and perfect a service of the kind. The London tramways, for instance, are a quite insignificant item in the transit problem, and so are they in most American and Continental cities. That is because their limitations have been realised and alternatives have been provided. In London the motor 'bus is so serious a rival to the trams that the latter usually represent a dead loss of some hundreds of thousands of pounds. The point is that we must learn not to push the tram beyond its possibilities. The time comes when there is no more room for it, and when its rolling stock cannot be increased with safety. We have, indeed, almost reached this stage, and the new power-house will be able to do little more than provide for existing conditions, and such minor suburban extensions as are contemplated or may be decided upon. But we cannot go very much further in this direction.

It is, no doubt, difficult for us to realise the enormous growth of our tramway system, and the consequent enormous increase in the power required to work it. But that growth has been rapid out of all comparison, and it reflects the greatest credit on the technical branch of the service that the development has been carried out so smoothly that we hardly notice what is going on. In an American city such development would arouse a storm of popular enthusiasm, and all the world would be forced to hear about the largest power station on earth. We take things more quietly; but it is only fair for us to realise the great work that is being done. This station, for instance, when in full working order, will hardly be matched anywhere else; and only those who have had some experience of the work can realise what it means to install such a plant and secure its working without a hitch. It is an everlasting monument to the skill of those concerned that our over-loaded trams do their work as well as they do. But precisely because the service is certainly better than can be found almost anywhere else we are apt to expect too much of it, and when discomfort arises we are apt to blame the system instead of realising that the most perfectly organised system in the world must have its limits. We have, in fact, to provide the inevitable alternatives. There seems to be no reason why the motor 'bus which is so striking a feature of London transit should not find a place here. Probably it is the cheapest and handiest means of transit that has ever been devised, and it is a wonderful object lesson in the handling of an enormous traffic to see how effectively it may be used. The other alternative, of course, is the tube railway. Whatever we do with our trams, it is certain that we cannot do without it. The underground city railway has already been far too long delayed, and it is the only possible solution of the ever-growing suburban traffic. There is already ample room for all three methods, and the growth of the city and suburbs is so rapid and continuous that all three are even now urgently required; in another decade it will be impossible to do without them. Meanwhile we ought to be thankful for the foresight and ability shown in tramway management, and the new power-house at Balmain will ensure a service that will never be likely to fail, however great the strain that is put upon it.

LIBERAL SELECTIONS.

Now that the election campaign is fairly under weigh, and the majority of the official Liberal candidates have taken the field, the time has come to consider what lessons may be learned from the events of the last few months. The ordinary Liberal voter will regard them with mingled feelings. There are some things upon which he will congratulate himself; there are others which point to the need of some improvement in the method of selecting candidates. It is extremely fortunate that the Liberals and the Farmers and Settlers' Association have in most cases agreed to support the same candidate. Had it been otherwise there was at least a possibility that in the country, while friends were at cross purposes, victory would fall to the enemy. However, the alliance has averted such a possibility, and there are signs that neither the country nor the Liberals will regret their agreement. In the city, however, the preparations for the campaign have borne less satisfactory fruit. It would be idle to deny that there have been regrettable incidents in the preliminaries to the elections. Perhaps they have been exaggerated, but the mere fact of so many complaints indicates that there is ground for complaint. There is a skeleton in the Liberal cupboard, whose existence it would be foolish to ignore, and the skeleton is the method of selection. The system originated out of the best motives. It was thought fairer to leave the nomination of their candidate to local leagues than for the central executive to dictate its choice to a constituency. In theory the system is admirable; in practice it has worked badly. It has lent itself to intrigue and underhand tactics and all manner of abuses. There have been allegations of positive fraud in connection with certain selections. Some desirable candidates have been defeated, though obviously on their merits they were best qualified to represent Liberalism. Many have refrained from submitting their names rather than undergo what has often been a humiliating experience.

The upshot is that in certain electorates Liberal forces are divided. Some candidates have abstained altogether from the ordeal of selection, and have come forward as "straight out" Liberals. Others, though defeated at the preliminary count, have nevertheless resolved to contest the seat as a protest against the system. All of this may end in disaster. The second ballot was designed to ensure that the representative of an electorate should have received an absolute majority of votes, and hence ultimately to secure a clear-cut issue. In point of fact, the second ballot has simply given a candidate a chance to bid for the votes of a party from whom he has nominally dissociated himself. Liberals should remember that it is no use crying over spilt milk; if they wish their policy to control the government of the State, they should vote for its official exponent, otherwise Liberalism is doomed to the wilderness for another term. They may have grievances, but a general election is hardly the time to make them a cause of quarrel. Indeed, to do so may postpone their redress indefinitely. For the only way out of the difficulty seems to be in a radical alteration of the electoral law. It is easy enough to criticise the present method of selection, it is less easy to suggest a better one, as long as a block vote is relied upon. At present it is necessary, and hence the necessity for an "official" party candidate. If preferential voting were introduced every single member of an electorate might be a candidate without interfering with the prospects of his party; indeed, such a system would be a step towards the dethronement of mere party from its despotic seat. But at present these are mere dreams, and until they are realised it is futile to protest against the system of selection because it has been responsible for some miscarriages of public opinion. In his policy speech Mr. Wade hinted at an alteration of the electoral law. The disappointed Liberal voter would be wisest to return him with a majority and then to remind him of the need for reform.

The "Sydney Mail."—In this weeks "Mail" Mr. Frank Iredale raises a point which will probably give rise to a good deal of discussion among cricketers. He declares that our wickets are defective, Bulli soil being unsuitable for the purpose. On the other hand, Dr. Poidevin, another ex-international player, contends that the Bulli soil has thoroughly proved its efficacy. Yachtsmen will be particularly interested in a splendid photograph of eight-metre boats racing at Cowes; it is proposed to establish a one-design class of boats of this size in Sydney. In "Outdoor Australia" there is an interesting article on trout-fishing in New South Wales; it is asserted that the streams of Monaro offer opportunities to the fly-fisherman that are unrivalled in the world. "Milroy's" notes are of especial interest in view of the Melbourne Cup carnival, in connection with which also there are many illustrations, including a beautiful picture of Henley-on-Yarra, and a fine double-page showing some of the rock gardens, and a view of Collins-street. The bulldog show is freely illustrated. "A Family Outing in the Queensland Back-blocks" makes an interesting page picture. A good deal of space is given to an illustrated account of the grand opera; the Drama page is as entertaining as ever; and there are useful budgets for the housewife and the man on the land. Among other features is an illustrated article on the babies' hospital at Greycliff, Vaucluse.

Control of Buildings.—The question has been raised as to the power of the City Council to veto the erection of any building where the applicant is willing and anxious to comply with the law's requirements, whatever they might be. At the end of September an application, with license fee, was received by the Chief Secretary's Department for a license under the Theatres and Public Halls Act in respect to a proposed open-air theatre or Continental garden at Waratah, Bayswater-road, Darlinghurst. Petitions had previously been presented to the City Council for and against the granting of the required permission. The council refused to endorse the plans, but, notwithstanding this, the solicitors for the company concerned asked the Chief Secretary's Department to issue a license. The latter department appears to be in a quandary, and has asked the council to supply it with the reasons which actuated the council in refusing to endorse the plans. The works committee of the council, before which the matter came yesterday, decided to inform the department that the proposed theatre would be objectionable to residents and owners of property in the neighbourhood, and that was the reason why permission to build it had been withheld.

"Our Earliest History."—In a lecture delivered last night before the Australian Historical Society, by Mr. Beverley R. Grayston, on "Stray Leaves from Australia's Earliest History," he traced the influences which led to the ultimate discovery of "the Great South Land." First, the food necessity of the Chinese (as indicated in the southern trepang fishing); second, the luxury and national ambition of Egypt and other Eastern countries; third, the evolution of the mariner's compass since Marco Polo's 13th century voyages; and last, the religious movements, and consequent missionary efforts throughout the world. The Mongolian strain in the Australian aboriginal was touched upon. Port Curtis, Mr. Grayston was of opinion, could be accepted as De Quiros's "harbour of the Holy Cross." From manuscript in the King's library (Henry VIII.), it was also stated, there was evidence that about the year 1542 southern discoveries were made which had not been noted in historical records. In the discussion that followed, Archdeacon Boyce championed Dampier, whom the lecturer was inclined to disparage, because of his piratical temperament. At the grit and bold bravery of Dampier, said Archdeacon Boyce, we look back with patriotic admiration.

Wool at a Halfpenny.—How considerably wool differs in value, according to the length and quality of the staple, as well as the quantity of foreign matter—dust, grease, burrs, seed—that all greasy wool contains, more or less, was shown in the Sydney wool saleroom yesterday afternoon, when an attractive selection of good wools, from some of our principal districts, was submitted to a large and representative attendance of buyers. The bulk of the good wools in the two catalogues realised between 11¼d and 13½d per lb, scoured selling to 21d, the sales, in the hour and a half, aggregating £150,000. One lot of the lower qualities, however—and not a very good sample either—technically known as "locks," sold as low as ½d per lb. Locks, in the wool trade, are the second cuts, sweepings, and small pieces that fall through the sorting table when the wool is classed, and are the lowest grade in the scale of qualities, forming only a very small proportion of the clip. It is the fleece that is golden, and runs into millions.

Tuberculosis and Heredity.—At a recent meeting of the Actuarial Society of New South Wales, Mr. C. A. Elliott, F.I.A., dealt with the subject of tuberculosis and heredity from the life insurance standpoint. In an interesting paper on "The Rating for Family History of Tuberculosis," he said that they might proceed on the assumption that a proponent aged 57, whose personal history and present condition give no indication of a tendency to tuberculosis, when subjected to the searching scrutiny of modern examination methods, can be considered to have outlived any hereditary taint, and can be regarded as a normal select life. Mr. Burn, in a paper on the treatment of under average lives, read before the fifth International Congress of Actuaries, said, in reference to consumption "The risk of hereditary vulnerability decreases with the age, and is negligible after age 50, if not before. Messrs. Rusher and Kenchington say that a tuberculous family history 'may, in fact, be said to have no practical value for assurance purposes over age 35 at entry.'"

"Right to Work."—Several days ago the Premier (Mr. Holman) received from the executive of the right-to-work movement a list containing the names of nine men who were unemployed, and were anxious to secure work immediately. The matter was placed in the hands of the Superintendent of the State Labour Bureau. Mr. Brennan has advised the Premier that the men were asked to call at the bureau with the view of finding employment. The net result is as follows:—Two men were sent to work; two refused the work that was offered them; two failed to call; one was already in work; one was unsuitable; and one was already waiting for other employment.

Kerosening Waterholes.—Mosquitoes are a great source of annoyance in parts of Marrickville, the swampy nature of the surrounding district being the cause of the dissemination of the pest, and with a view of having the residents' troubles lightened the local progress association recently asked the Marrickville Council to make an effort to abate the nuisance by kerosening a number of waterholes. The council replied that it had no power to spend the people's money in removing a nuisance which existed on private property, but, not being satisfied, the progress association again wrote to the council, stating that it was regarded as unsatisfactory the council was unable to abate the nuisance, and hoping that further steps would be taken to mitigate the evil. The matter was referred to the health committee. Shortly the mosquitoes will have ended the pupa stage of their existence and be on the wing, so if anything is to be done it should be done now.

Immigration.—The statement made by the Prime Minister on Monday, to the effect that the Federal Government should be the only immigration agent for Australia, was brought under Mr. Flowers' notice yesterday. "I am of the same opinoin myself," responded the Vice-President of the Executive Council. "In my opinion," he continued, "the Federal Government should undertake the whole of the work, and prevent the clashing of interests which must arise if the various States are competing. Our Government has already shown its anxiety to co-operate with the other States, and we are ready to listen to any reasonable scheme which Mr. Cook may propound."

Engine Axles.—"I notice," remarked the Minister for Railways yesterday, "that a report has been circulated to the effect that, as the result of inquiries respecting defective engines, I have cabled to London, ordering the cancellation of orders for axles with an English firm. That is incorrect. I certainly did cable to the London office when the report reached me, advising our representatives to strike off our list a certain firm which had supplied defective axles. That is not an English firm. As a matter of fact, it is a German firm."

Produce by Post.—The Postmaster-General (Mr. Wynne) announced yesterday that he had completed arrangements for the carriage of produce by post. A start will be made in Melbourne and suburbs on July 1 next, and if the scheme works well it will be extended to the other capitals. The Railway Department has agreed to carry parcels from the country at greatly reduced rates. These will be picked up and taken to their destination by a fleet of eight motor cars. Full details are not yet available, but it is stated that the maximum weight allowed will be 11lb, for which a delivery charge of about 3d will be made.

Island Tragedy.—Early in September it was reported that a Frenchman named Guitel had been attacked by natives and savagely murdered in the New Hebrides. Since then information has been received by the Rev. John T. Lawton, secretary of the Presbyterian Foreign Missions, to the effect that the official records throw a new light on the matter. It is alleged that Guitel and another Frenchman attacked a party of three natives. Guitel closed with one of the natives, and so twisted his head under his arm that the native almost had his neck broken. He managed to free an arm, and, reaching for his sheath knife, struck at Guitel, inflicting a wound which, unfortunately, afterwards proved fatal.

The Old Carpet.—Not before it was time, a new carpet has been laid in the Balmain Council-chamber. The matter formed the subject of a minute from the Mayor (Alderman G. Clubb) at the last meeting of the council. It read as follows:—"Finding that the old carpet on the council-chamber floor was considerably the worse for wear, and considering that it has been down since 1887, I have obtained from a local supplier a new carpet, after allowing a price for the old one, which he has taken away, at a net cost of £33 1s 6d. I would ask that my action be approved, and the amount voted." The minute was adopted. Alderman Clubb adding, "An alderman did not get the old carpet on this occasion."

MANUFACTURES.

AUSTRALIAN CONFERENCE.

NATIONAL QUESTIONS.

For the first time in the history of the Commonwealth, the whole of the States were represented at the annual conference of the Associated Chambers of Manufactures of Australia, which was held in Melbourne last week, and proceedings were marked by an absence of interstate rivalry in dealing with national questions.

Practical and serious efforts were made to throw light upon existing industrial problems, and the resolutions subscribed to by the conference will at an early date be submitted to the Federal Government, in the hope that they will be helpful in bringing about what the associated chambers consider to be desirable reforms.

As a matter of fact, some of the doings of the congress have already received official recognition. One very complete and detailed resolution carried was that setting out the lines upon which the profit and loss accounts of Government factories should be made up. It was pointed out that the bald financial statements from time to time tendered to the public with regard to the cost of various State and Federal enterprises, on which criticism of private enterprise was sometimes based, were unsatisfactory, and that, as Government figures were not arrived at on the same basis as in commercial concerns, the comparisons deduced were unfair and misleading.

The day following the debate on this matter, the Premier of Victoria (Mr. Watt) commented on the subject, and approved of what he described as the reasonable requests of the conference.

Mr. H. E. Pratten, president of the New South Wales Chamber, who returned to Sydney this week, yesterday expressed the opinion that the principle laid down by the business men who comprised the gathering would have some effect upon the basis of Government "costing" in future.

The Federal aspect of immigration was a matter referred to by the ex-president of the Associated Chambers, Mr. Alfred Wunderlich, of Sydney, who argued that to be entirely effective, immigration should be as far as possible controlled by the Federal authorities. The attitude of the conference on this point was indirectly endorsed by the Prime Minister, when the latter was replying to a deputation from the Millions Club on Monday.

PREFERENCE.

The principle of preferential trade was unanimously re-endorsed, and at the banquet held in the evening following this discussion the leader of the Federal Labour party (Mr. Fisher) enthusiastically advocated a closer commercial alliance with New Zealand.

During the course of the conference some of the delegates resented what they considered to be unfair criticisms of the manufacturers, and their beliefs in relation to the tariff question. A portion of the address of the retired president (Mr. Wunderlich) dealt with the possibilities of trade with Java, and an outside criticism of this suggested an anomaly in the idea of industries that asked for protection in Australia competing with freetrade manufacturers outside the Commonwealth. Mr. Pratten was delegated to reply to this at the conference, his remarks receiving general endorsement, and yesterday Mr. Wunderlich also explained his contention.

"Provided our own manufacturing market is sufficiently protected," Mr. Wunderlich said, "by duties that will prevent undue competition from other countries where lower wages are paid—in other words, if a sufficient tariff is imposed to nullify the difference in wages that we pay and outside competitors pay—then the volume of trade secured in the home market to the local manufacturer is sufficient to enable him in many lines to compete in the world's markets, the reason being that the larger output means cheaper production. Moreover, in respect to Java, the shipping facilities are so good that the market can easily be exploited from Australia. It is only the same distance in time from Sydney to Port Darwin as from Sydney to New Zealand."

THE PATENT LAWS.

A matter of interest that was not on the agenda paper was the question of foreign patents, and it has been decided to approach the Government on the question of amending the existing Australian law. Many labour-saving machines patented in Australia and imported from countries overseas, particularly the United States, are in numerous cases only leased on high terms to manufacturers requiring them, and cannot be bought outright. The law at present provides that before a machine is leased on royalty it shall be offered to the user at a fair market price without royalty, but it was stated at the conference that this legislation is easily evaded. A case was quoted of manufacturers having had to sign a declaration that a certain machine was offered to them on fair terms before they were allowed to lease it. They needed the machine to compete in their industry, so to enable the proprietors of it to evade the patent laws they were forced to sign the declaration before they could lease it. The boot trade is said to be particularly affected by the custom of leasing machines on royalty. The conference subscribed to the principle that any patent for foreign machines should not be valid for a period of over three years if it is not manufactured within the Commonwealth. Such legislation exists in England, the United States, and Canada, and it was pointed out that in England the result of the enactment in this direction was the patent machines and devices that had been made in Germany and America, and imported, were now made in Britain, works having been established for the purpose.

The success of the present all-Australian manufacturers' week has been such as to warrant the conference coming to a unanimous decision to hold a series of biennial exhibitions, starting in Adelaide in 1915. The Sydney exhibition will be held in 1917.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Fred. Flowers, M.L.C., has been appointed president of the Board of Fire Commissioners of New South Wales during the absence, without pay, of Mr. F. A. Coghlan. This has been done in order to relieve Mr. Coghlan during the election campaign, and to enable Mr. Flowers to become conversant with the work of the Fire Brigade Board.

Mr. J. Meek, chairman of Levers' Pacific Plantations, Limited, sails to-day by the steamer St. Albans for Hong Kong to meet Sir William H. Lever, Bart. They will be met by the steamer Kulumbangra, and will proceed to the Solomon Islands to inspect the plantations of the company, reaching Sydney about January 8.

At yesterday's meeting of the State Executive Council, Professor MacCallum was appointed a member of the Bursary Endowment Board.

Colonel Wallack, State Commandant, will return to Sydney to-morrow from a visit to Melbourne.

Mr. J. B. Doyle, late headmaster of the Marrickville West Public School, who has been transferred to the charge of the St. Peter's School, was on Friday last made a presentation by the staff and senior pupils.

Mr. James Wall, president of the Marrickville Bowling Club, was presented with a tea and coffee service and a silver cigarette case at a supper given in his honour by the members of the club.

At the annual breakfast of the Marrickville branch of the Australian Hibernian Catholic Benefit Society, Mr. G. Cheadle, the ex-president, was presented with a gold medal by the members. Miss Williamson, of the women's branch, was the recipient of a similar token of esteem.

The Mayor and aldermen of Concord entertained Mr. T. Henley, M.L.A., at dinner on Monday, at the Commercial Travellers' Club. In the redistribution of seats, Concord was excised from the Burwood electorate, and the dinner to Mr. Henley was in recognition of his past services to the municipality. Speeches complimentary of the work done by Mr. Henley were the order of the evening.

The death occurred at her residence at Summer Hill yesterday of Mrs. Hadfield, wife of Mr. George W. Hadfield, manager of the Haymarket branch of the Savings Bank. The cause of death was pneumonia. The late Mrs. Hadfield took a leading part in religious and philanthropic work.

MATERIAL INTERESTS

VEILED ATTACK.

DR. WILSON ON BRITISH CONCESSIONS.

IN LATIN AMERICA.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.

President Wilson, in a speech at the opening of the Southern Commercial Congress, at Mobile, Alabama, yesterday, declared that the United States would never again seek to secure an additional foot of territory.

He went on to deliver a veiled attack on what he termed the "material interests" that had influenced the foreign policy of certain Governments in relation to the nations of Latin America.

He did not mention Mexico, but declared that it was the duty of the United States to assist the Latin nations of America in their emancipation from the material interests of other nations, and enable them to enjoy unrestrained constitutional liberty.

They heard of concessions to foreign capital in Latin America, but they did not hear of such concessions in the United States, where foreigners were merely invited to make investments. The Latin States which were obliged to grant concessions were likely to have their affairs dominated by foreign interests, and such a position was apt to become intolerable.

The nations to the southward, he declared, would be drawn closer to the United States because of these circumstances.

Dr. Wilson concluded with an eloquent description of future Pan-American relations.

RAILWAY ACCIDENTS.

SIGNALLING ERRORS.

SPECIAL INQUIRY URGED.

LONDON, Oct. 27.

Nine serious railway accidents have occurred this year, which have been mostly due to errors in signalling. Six railway companies are involved.

Some persons attribute these accidents to the new control system now in general operation, as the change tends to relieve the signalmen of direct responsibility, and makes it increasingly difficult for them to keep trace of the trains.

It is said that many signalmen live in daily dread of a disaster.

Some of the newspapers and railwaymen are demanding a special inquiry.

MEXICAN AFFAIRS.

PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION.

DIAZ DOES NOT TAKE PART.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 27.

The result of the Presidential election is not likely to be known for a week.

A curious feature of the election is that General Huerta, although not a candidate, secured a heavy vote in many districts, particularly in Vera Cruz.

General Diaz did not exercise the franchise, and did not participate in the election. The previously cabled report that he attended a meeting of candidates under General Huerta's direction, when each decided to abide by the result of the election, was unfounded.

General Diaz, who regards himself as practically a prisoner, remains in Vera Cruz.

THE DUBLIN STRIKE.

MORE HOPEFUL OUTLOOK.

LARKIN'S INFLUENCE WANING.

LONDON, Oct. 27.

The influence of Larkin, leader of the transport workers who are on strike, is waning, and the situation is becoming more hopeful.

The leading employers and leading trade unionists have agreed to a formula for negotiations for a settlement, based on the immediate resumption of work and the recognition of the union, which undertakes to hold a ballot before the institution of another strike.

It is likely that the formula will be generally adopted.

LARKIN CONVICTED.

SEVEN MONTHS' IMPRISONMENT.

Larkin appeared on trial to-day charged with uttering seditious words.

He challenged several jurymen on the ground that they were prejudiced, and others were chosen.

The accused was found guilty and sentenced to seven months' imprisonment.

CARE OF STRIKERS' CHILDREN.

EXTRAORDINARY SCENES.

Extraordinary scenes continue to occur on the Dublin quays and railway stations in connection with the offer of residents in England to care for the children of the strikers.

Members of the Catholic Young Men's Society and the Hibernian Society formed pickets and turned back some parents who were about to send their children to England, while some Englishmen who were sending children to England were mobbed and the children wrested from them.

The crowd also held up a cab containing two women and three children. The mother of the children mounted the driver's seat, brandished a rope, and produced her marriage certificate. The cab was then allowed to proceed.

P. AND O. OFFICERS.

ATTITUDE OF THE COMPANY.

REFUSAL TO RECOGNISE GUILD.

LONDON, Oct. 28.

The resignations sent in by the P. and O. officers comprise those of all the officers, except the commanders, of the six vessels now in port, including the Malwa.

The company states that it will not take any notice of the incident unless the resignations are made effective, and it will also consider direct representations from the officers; but it refuses to recognise the Merchant Service Guild.

NAVAL DEFENCE.

CANADIAN ATTITUDE.

AN ILL-TIMED SPEECH.

OTTAWA, Oct. 28.

The Premier of British Columbia, Sir Richard M'Bride, speaking at the Canadian Club last night in the presence of the Governor-General, the Duke of Connaught, and the leader of the Opposition, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, expressed deep regret at Canada's failure to pass the Naval Defence Bill.

National defence, he declared, ought to be completely outside party politics; and even if there was only a hint of an emergency Canada ought to come forward with a handsome contribution.

As the Canadian Club is non-political, Sir Richard M'Bride's speech made a sensation.

The Duke of Connaught thanked the club for the warmth of the welcome accorded him on his return to the Dominion, and for the sympathy expressed in regard to the Duchess's recent illness.

He added that he was glad to know that Canadians were one in the desire to do their whole duty in regard to Empire defence.

STRIKE VIOLENCE.

BLOODSHED IN AMERICA.

STRIKERS CAPTURE ARMOURED TRAIN.

TRINIDAD (Colorado), Oct. 28.

The fighting between the strikers and the mine guards has been resumed. The strikers yesterday captured a protected train, which was occupied by a number of guards. They attacked the train with high-powered rifles, and the guards returned their fire for a while, then fled, leaving several wounded behind.

ICEBERG IN A FOG.

THE TEUTONIC'S ESCAPE.

LONDON, Oct. 28.

The Atlantic liner Teutonic, which has just reached Liverpool, reports that when in a fog 172 miles east of Belle Isle the look-outs sighted a huge iceberg directly ahead of the vessel.

The engines were promptly reversed, and the helm ported, and the vessel sheered off just in the nick of time, the stern clearing the berg by a few yards only.

WESLEYAN CHURCH CRISIS.

THE REV. G. JACKSON'S VIEWS.

LONDON, Oct. 27.

A crisis has arisen in the Wesleyan Church in connection with the views enunciated by the Rev. George Jackson, whose appointment as tutor of pastoral theology at Didsbury College was criticised by the Wesleyan Conference in July last.

Mr. Jackson enunciated his views in a series of lectures published in 1909. In these he expressed his disbelief that Moses wrote the Pentateuch, that Genesis was a trustworthy account of the beginnings of human life and civilisation, or that the Book of Jonah was a sober record of plain fact.

With a view of counteracting Mr. Jackson's doctrines, the Wesley Bible Union has been formed. Sir William Smith, president of the union, has issued a statement declaring that the terrible teaching that the Bible is legend, myth, and fable is one of the main causes of the decrease in membership of all the churches.

He adds: "If we are to have a revival in religion, the Church must get rid of such doctrines."

STRIKE OF MINERS.

UNIONISTS IN ARREARS.

LONDON, Oct. 27.

At the Rhondda collieries 7500 miners have struck work because 50 are in arrears with their subscriptions to the Miners' Federation.

THE SUFFRAGISTS.

MORE INCENDIARISM.

LONDON, Oct. 27.

A large residence owned by Mr. Theodore M'Kenna, brother of Mr. R. M'Kenna (Home Secretary), at Bramshott was set on fire last night by suffragists.

The house, which was not occupied, was destroyed.

Pinkettes are little laxative pills, easy to take, effective, and pleasant.—Advt.

HOME RULE.

MUCH-NEEDED RELIEF.

SIR EDWARD GREY'S VIEW.

LONDON, Oct. 28.

Sir Edward Grey, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, delivered a speech at Bewick last night, devoting practically the whole of it to the question of Home Rule, which he declared was the most critical of all home affairs at present.

Home Rule was not taken up as a political necessity, but because the country was sick and tired of the attempt to govern Ireland coercively. Home Rule was essential on purely practical grounds, if the House of Commons was to be saved from destruction as the Imperial authority.

A settlement of the Ulster question by consent was not made easier by a threat of civil war, which was detestable and abominable. He thought it could be avoided, and it ought to be avoided; but it all depended on Ulster and the Conservatives. If, as Ulster said, Home Rule was a matter of life and death to her, it was also a matter of life and death to the House of Commons.

Unless the House was relieved of the care of Irish, Scottish, and English domestic business, it would become incapable of transacting the business of the Empire.

If violence was to be used in opposition to Home Rule, then it must be met with violence.

If Ulster feared oppression, and got exclusion, it would be all the more precarious for the Unionists residing in other parts of Ireland.

An agreement should be possible by both sides being conciliatory and reasonable; but any concessions must be by consent, and accepted by both sides. He suggested that Home Rule within Home Rule was possible and consistent with the maintenance of the unity of Ireland. They could give one part of the country autonomy over education, police, and similar matters.

EXCHANGE OF MEMORANDUMS.

"EXALTED PERSONAGE'S" SUGGESTION.

The "Daily Chronicle" states that no direct communication has passed between Ministers and the Oppositionists in regard to the Ulster question, but, at a suggestion from an exalted personage, a memorandum has been drafted by Mr. Asquith and his principal colleagues, and the same course has been followed by Lord Lansdowne and Mr. Bonar Law, and the memorandums have been exchanged.

PANAMA CANAL.

AND UNITED STATES NAVY.

DOUBLE THE POWER.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.

Speaking at the opening of the Southern Commercial Congress at Mobile, Alabama, yesterday, Mr. J. Daniels, Secretary of State for the Navy, declared that the Panama Canal would double the power of the United States navy, and enable it to defend either the Atlantic of the Pacific coast at the same time.

He agreed with those who thought that the time had arrived for a naval holiday, and declared that the United States would welcome the application of such an idea.

ITALIAN ELECTIONS.

MINISTERIAL SUCCESSES.

FURTHER DISTURBANCES.

ROME, Oct. 28.

The result of the first ballots at the general elections show that the elected Ministerialists exceed half the Chamber of Deputies.

The Socialists have been notably successful in Milan, Turin, Bologna, Venice, Genoa, and Naples.

Further election disturbances are reported. Several carabineers were wounded during a series of riots in Naples, and many murders have been committed in various districts.

CHARGE OF CONSPIRACY.

LONDON, Oct. 27.

Louis Cohen, author of the book "Reminiscences of Kimberley," has been charged with conspiring with Emil James Berger, in connection with libels in the book respecting Sir J. B. Robinson, the South African mining magnate.

An action was brought by Sir J. B. Robinson in November, 1911, in which he recovered £1000 damages from Louis Cohen, author of the book referred to, and £100 from Mr. Bennett, the publisher; and in June last year Emil James Berger was sentenced at the Old Bailey to three years' penal servitude for perjury in testifying against Sir J. Robinson concerning an alleged incident in Kimberley during 1879.

MISS ELKINS MARRIED.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.

Miss Katherine Elkins, daughter of Senator Elkins, a well-known millionaire, was recently secretly married in West Virginia to Mr. William Hitt, a resident of Washington.

Even the relatives of the pair were not informed of the impending ceremony.

Miss Elkins, it will be remembered, was given world-wide prominence because of the frequent announcements and denials, extending over several years, of her engagement to the Duke of the Abruzzi.

STATE FINANCE.

USE OF TRUST FUNDS.

TREASURER'S STATEMENT.

Discussing the strictures passed by Mr. Waddell upon the finances of the State, the Treasurer (Mr. Cann) said yesterday:—

"Mr. Waddell has made it appear that I have not only exceeded the loan account and consolidated revenue by millions, but that I have also absorbed six millions of trust funds. I would not have been able to exceed either the consolidated revenue or the loan funds unless I had the trust funds to do it with. In operating on the trust funds, I am simply doing what Mr. Waddell himself did when he was in office. While the loan fund may be overdrawn, these trust funds have been used, and used always, in that way.

"When Mr. Waddell left office the general loan account was £987,000 overdrawn. I would like to know where he got the money from unless he drew it from the trust funds. We always draw against all the funds that are in the treasury. There is nothing new about that, and the system has been in operation for 30 years. It would be the essence of foolishness to be paying interest on trust funds, and going to the bank and paying interest on other moneys to carry on our work. If we did that I think Mr. Waddell would have good grounds to complain. He says we are carrying on public works at an extravagant rate without making provision for the works financially. The practice has always been to wait until you want the money before you raise it. Take the North Coast railway, for example. That will cost three millions before it is completed. It would be ridiculous for me to raise the whole of the money required for that work before it is actually started. The same argument applies to all public works; you simply raise the money at the rate you require to spend it during the currency of the financial year. As another example, duplication will cost us £4,000,000 before it is completed. All that the Railway Commissioner can spend on the work satisfactorily is about £200,000 a year. Am I now to raise the whole £4,000,000 when it is not required?"

ASHORE.

STEAMER MELBOURNE.

BIG COAL CARGO.

The reported wreck of the well-known cargo steamer Melbourne, while on a voyage from Newcastle (N.S.W.) to Cebu, with a cargo of coal, has now been confirmed.

The Melbourne, a vessel of 3777 tons, left Newcastle on September 20 last for Cebu, in the Philippines, with 4523 tons of Lambton coal, shipped through the Scottish-Australian Mining Company's agency. No further news of the vessel was received here until October 16, when the cables announced that from 65 to 70 guineas per cent. was being paid on the vessel.

Inquiries at the office of the agents showed that they had received no news of any mishap to the vessel, and it was pointed out at the time by the Scottish-Australian Mining Company, that after they had despatched the steamer from Newcastle they would receive no further information regarding her, and all communications would be addressed to the owners' London office.

Since then, the Scottish-Australian Mining Company has received a cable from London regarding another matter, and in this message the loss of the Melbourne is briefly referred to, as follows:—"Melbourne badly ashore; very probably constructive total loss."

The message does not mention where the vessel struck or how the crew fared.

It would appear that the vessel's position is hopeless, as the people who chartered the Melbourne have now chartered the steamer Inabo Maru to load for Cebu a similar quantity of coal to that taken by the Melbourne. The Inabo Maru will, accordingly, arrive in Newcastle early next month, and start to load 4500 tons of coal for Cebu, to replace the Melbourne's cargo.

LABOUR DAY.

SPEECH BY THE TREASURER.

"LESS THAN 8 HOURS."

ARMIDALE, Tuesday.

Eight-hour Day was celebrated at Armidale yesterday. Rain fell early in the morning, and interfered with the procession. However, there were over 30 displays. The State Treasurer (Mr. Cann) arrived by train. He was welcomed at the Imperial Hotel by the Eight-hour committee.

Mr. Cann, in reply to the welcome, referred to the expenditure of the Government. The State's wonderful expansion and progress, he said, demanded it, and whatever Government came next into power would have to meet the State's enormous demands. He held that legitimate business always involved securing capital, and even if the sixty-two millions of loan money invested in railways had swollen to eighty-four millions, while other works amounted to twenty-two millions, it could all be counted fair business, and not merely as a huge debt for non-producing work. If the Government converted the great public undertakings into private concerns to-morrow, the amount yielded would more than wipe out the debt. If the Government had been "making the pace" the country demanded it. Referring particularly to the eight-hour principle, Mr. Cann said the problem of the future was not an eight-hour day, but one of less than eight hours.

The eight-mile eight-hour race was won by L. Short, with T. Holloway 2, and L. Ormiston 3. Time, 46m 12s.

INDUSTRIAL TURMOIL

IN NEW ZEALAND.

"THE CLASH MUST COME."

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Oct. 24.

The significant feature of the strike of the waterside workers at Wellington is that it came practically without a moment's warning, and that it is based on the slenderest foundation of reason.

A few men who do shipping work at the patent slip wanted more wages and better conditions, so as to bring them into line with their fellow-workers at Auckland. The employers refused, the men ceased work, and the day after the waterside workers went out in sympathy.

It all seems very paltry and very absurd, but it calls to memory the prediction of a prominent Labour leader some months ago, that the workers would "one of these fine days" put the employers in a hole, and that when they did the situation might be regarded as serious.

It is singular in this connection that the strike of the coalminers at Huntly immediately preceded the Wellington trouble, though it must not be forgotten that in regard to the former trouble there is a certain suggestion of victimisation by the employers of the men who were concerned in the strike of a year or so ago.

There appears also to be a general feeling of hostility on the part of labour to the Government's proposals in its new Arbitration Bill to penalise any person taking part in a strike or helping anyone who takes part in a strike. The principle of arbitration is not popular among the New Zealand workers at the present time, and even some of the unions which had for years been absolutely loyal to the old Act have openly expressed their disapproval of the proposals contained in the new bill, which the Prime Minister (Mr. Massey) has put before the House.

No one can predict where the present trouble is going to end. Optimists say that it will soon be over—that there is such a large body of "free" labour available, both in the town and the country, that the strikers will easily be replaced, and their cause rendered hopeless. Apart altogether from these considerations, however, it is evident to those who take an interest in public affairs that there is a spirit of unrest among labour, that the Government is not popular with labour, and that labour intends, sooner or later, to make its presence felt.

Whatever may be the outcome of the present strike, it is more than probable that the clash has to come, and will come. The present impression is that the time has now arrived.

STRIKE EXTENDS.

AUCKLAND, Tuesday.

The waterside workers to-day refused to unload coal, 300 men employed at this work going on strike. Nearly 15,000 tons are waiting to be discharged. There is practically no steam or household coal in the city. Four colliers were discharging when word was received from the Transport Workers' executive at Wellington that the men should cease work. The men immediately downed tools.

The cause of the action is apparently to assist the Huntly strikers by stopping supplies of coal.

At a meeting of strikers it was stated that there was no intention of differentiating between the men employed on colliers and other union members.

Upon the result of the conference at Wellington depended the future of Auckland developments.

The conference of employers and waterside workers met for three hours to-night, Mr. Massey presiding. The conference will resume to-morrow.

STRIKE ON A STATION.

TULLAMORE, Tuesday.

It is reported that trouble has arisen on Burra, as the harvester hands have struck for higher pay, according to log wages. The matter is not yet settled.

NORTH AUSTRALIA.

FAUNA AND FLORA.

STUDYING THE ABORIGINES.

SCIENTIST'S TOUR.

Dr. Eric Mjoberg, the Swedish scientist, who was at the head of the expedition to North-west Australia some three or four years ago, has just returned from North Queensland, the main object of his mission having been to study the relationship of the lower fauna to other fauna.

He has been there for nearly 12 months, and has come back with nearly 40,000 specimens, mostly of creeping things—snakes, worms, grubs, centipedes, earwigs, and ticks—which will have to be "worked up," to use his own phrase, before he can arrive at conclusions. The "working up" process will take place in Sweden, for which country he will leave in about a fortnight.

"Nature is, as the great Linnaeus said, most admirable in small things," remarked Dr. Mjoberg yesterday, in exhibiting some of his specimens to a representative of this paper. "I have devoted my investigations mostly to the minute forms of life, and I found Northern Australia practically a virgin field. The whole of the north is a happy hunting ground for the naturalist. I spent seven months on the plateau of the Herberton tableland, at the back of Cairns. I selected that locality because it is about the biggest area of jungle along the Queensland coast. There are a lot of Malayan elements among the flora. The farther you go north the more you notice the influence of New Guinea and the Malay Archipelago."

THE BLACKS.

Dr. Mjoberg took the opportunity to make a further study of the customs of the blacks, and for this purpose made a journey to the country between the Coleman and Mitchell rivers, which empty into the Gulf of Carpentaria, where he came across several tribes living in an absolutely wild state. He secured a number of cinematograph views of their corroborees. He said that the natives were in good condition, game being very plentiful in that part. It was a great pity, he thought, that large areas were not set apart as reserves for the blacks, where they could be secure from the invasion of the whites.

"Mornington Island is one of the few places where the blacks have been left untouched," he said. "Now I see the Government is going to hand that island over to a mission. Why don't they leave the blacks there alone? It is no good trying to civilise them. When they do come in contact with whites, it may be all very well to start a mission to help them, but where they are happy in their own way, as they are on Mornington Island, why don't you leave them alone? In any case, religion can't make them more moral, for in their wild state they are the most moral people I know of. They are about the most interesting people left on the earth's surface, and they're not so low down on the scale of humanity as some people think, though they are in the oldest stone age. They probably came from Asia, and I account for their nomadic habits by the fact that they found the north of Australia unsuitable for agriculture, but full of game, and so they developed in the direction of hunting and tracking, being, as regards the latter, the most skilful race in the world. They had no competition, there was plenty of food everywhere, and there was no reason for them to settle down. I found in the Kimberley district some peculiar implements, made out of stone, and in Northern Queensland I came across evidence of beliefs, which seem to point to an Indian origin."

RICH VIRGIN FIELD.

The flora of Northern Australia is, Dr. Mjoberg says, of a particularly interesting order. He came across one tree called by the natives the "chitto," the wood of which was almost as hard as iron. It contained a lot of oil, and belonged to the genus called "Halfordia."

"Altogether Northern Australia is one of the most wonderful fields for the scientist in the world," was Dr. Mjoberg's concluding remark. He intends to return early next year and make further investigations in the extreme north of Yorke's Peninsula.

LODGE DOCTORS.

B.M.A. DEMANDS RESISTED.

The South and West Sydney friendly societies held a special meeting in the Wesley School Hall, Regent-street, city, for the purpose of dealing with the B.M.A. new agreement and the doctors' resignations. The local branches of the various friendly societies were well represented, there being a large attendance of delegates, with Bro. Les. Ferrier, president in the chair. The new demands were discussed at length, and the following preliminary resolution carried unanimously, on the motion of Bro. T. Flynn and Robert Smith:—

"That this Friendly Societies' Association of South and West Sydney entirely disagrees with the excessive demands now made by the B.M.A., and resolves to recommend to our local branches and their 10,000 members to resist, and refuse to re-appoint the respective doctors under the terms of the new common form agreement."

The further consideration of what action is to be taken was adjourned till Tuesday, November 4.

AIR FEATS.

LOOPING THE LOOP.

FREMANTLE, Tuesday.

Among the passengers aboard the Osterley was Mr. J. J. Hammond, a New Zealander, who, three years ago, flew some aeroplanes in Australia under the management of the Bristol Aviation Company. He says that he has been spending two years in England and Italy, giving exhibitions and teaching aviation. He added that he had witnessed the extraordinary exhibitions of aerial acrobatic feats given in Paris by Pegoud. This somersaulting in the air and looping the loop was not as dangerous as it appeared, and he would be prepared to emulate the deeds of Pegoud in Australia. Mr. Hammond stated that all the Australian airmen in England had made names for themselves. He considered that Harry Busteed was the best all-round airman in England.

BREAD.

WILL IT BE STALE?

The proposal to abolish all night work, and have bread-baking carried on within stipulated hours of the day time, which was exhaustively discussed at the recent interstate conference of operative bakers, is to be balloted upon by the whole of the New South Wales members of the Federated Operative Bakers' Union of Australia. A special meeting has been convened for November 8 to make the result of the ballot known.

This great change would mean, if carried into effect, that bread would no longer be delivered warm, inasmuch as the last batch would have been taken out of the oven at least 12 hours before the delivery carts started. It is thought by the union officials that if the employers provide proper receptacles the bread could be kept fresh, while its manufacture could also, they say, be placed on a different grade, which would prevent deterioration on the second day.

A scheme has been drafted by the conference, which will provide for the work to be done in straight-out shifts of eight hours each, to be worked, if possible, between 6 a.m. and 6 p.m. It is also proposed to make an effort to confine the week's work to 48 hours.

If the union should eventually fail to come to terms with the employers, a log of claims will be submitted for determination by the Commonwealth Conciliation and Arbitration Court.

NAVAL DEFENCE.

NEW ZEALAND'S POLICY.

A LOCAL FLEET.

TO POLICE THE PACIFIC.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Tuesday.

In the course of a statement on naval defence in the House, Mr. Massey said that by the Act of 1908 the annual contribution of the Dominion was increased to £100,000 for ten years from 1909. Then followed the gift of the battleship New Zealand.

In the same year the Imperial Defence Conference met in London, and an agreement was arrived at establishing the Pacific fleet, consisting of three units in the East Indies, Australia, and China Seas, each comprising, with some variations, a large armoured cruiser of the new Indomitable type, three second-class cruisers of the Bristol type, six destroyers of the River class, and three submarines of C class. The battle-cruiser New Zealand was to be the flagship of the China unit, and portion of the China unit, consisting of two Bristol cruisers, three destroyers, and two submarines, was to be stationed in peace time in New Zealand waters, the ships to be manned as far as possible by New Zealand officers and men. In 1912 the New Zealand Government consented to the battle-cruiser being stationed wherever the Admiralty deemed advisable. In that alteration of the 1909 agreement the present Government concurred.

Until 1913 the Imperial Government maintained in the South Pacific the Australian squadron, but with the coming into operation of the new agreement between the Imperial Government and the Commonwealth of Australia, the completion by the Commonwealth of the Australian unit of the proposed Pacific fleet, the Australasian squadron was withdrawn, with the exception of some of the smaller vessels, which were to have their headquarters in New Zealand waters.

This was the position prior to the visit of the Minister for Defence to England at the beginning of this year. The Defence Minister was commissioned by the Government to interview the Imperial authorities on the subject, and endeavour to bring about a more satisfactory state of affairs, so far as New Zealand's naval defence was concerned.

TRAINING NEW ZEALANDERS.

As a result of the consultation between the Admiralty and the Defence Minister it was arranged that New Zealand should train her own personnel, and for this purpose the Admiralty should lend to New Zealand a sea-going training ship and the necessary complement of officers and men, this ship and its complement to be under the administration of the New Zealand Government, but to be at the disposal of the Admiralty when required.

It was further arranged for Imperial purposes in the Pacific, and to assist in the protection of commerce, that the Admiralty should station in New Zealand waters two light cruisers, which had constituted part of the Australasian squadron.

On his return to New Zealand the Defence Minister submitted the arrangement with the additional proposal that New Zealand should at an early date provide a cruiser of the Melbourne type, now forming part of the Australian unit, this type of ship having been recommended by the Admiralty as the most suitable for the protection of commerce. The Government came to the conclusion that the proposal for two light cruisers was too great a departure from the 1909 agreement, and they approached the Admiralty, asking that two cruisers of the Bristol type should be substituted for two light cruisers, in which case the Government would ask Parliament to provide an additional £50,000, this making the £100,000 now provided up to £150,000 per annum. This offer was not accepted.

THE BRISTOLS.

The following extract from a telegram dated October 2, from the Secretary of State, explains itself:—"It was confidently anticipated in 1909 that the stationing of Bristols in New Zealand waters could be arranged without interfering with the general strategic disposition of the naval strength necessary in the interests of the Empire as a whole. The available Bristols are required elsewhere. In particular two have been sent temporarily to the East India and China stations respectively. At present they would be superfluous in New Zealand waters, as there are no possible enemy ships of equal speed to be dealt with there."

No doubt, Mr. Massey continued, the Imperial authorities are in their judgment doing the best possible in the interests of the Empire as a whole, but the New Zealand Government think a commencement should be made to improve the naval position in the South Pacific, and if no satisfactory arrangement is arrived at before next session, Parliament will be asked to agree to the building in Great Britain of one fast modern cruiser, probably of the Bristol type, costing about £400,000, to be used in the event of necessity requiring it for the protection of the trade routes.

GREAT CHANGES.

"It appears quite certain we are on the eve of great changes in the Pacific, and it is well we should commence to shoulder our responsibilities. It is proposed that this ship, or any ship that New Zealand may acquire, shall be under the administration of New Zealand in peace time, but shall automatically pass under the direct control of the Admiralty immediately on the outbreak of hostilities, or shall be available for Admiralty purposes on any other occasion when urgently required. In the meantime H.M.S. Philomel will be taken over by the New Zealand Government, and a commencement will be made with the work of training our own men. The Government do not anticipate any difficulty in securing as many recruits as are required."

"Legislation will be introduced to enable the Government to establish a naval force of officers and men for service either in any ships that may in future be maintained by the New Zealand Government or in the ships of the Royal navy, and for the application of the naval discipline Acts and Admiralty instructions to this force, and to reconstitute the New Zealand Royal Naval Reserve.

"It is proposed that the officer in command of the seagoing training cruiser lent to the New Zealand Government shall be the senior officer of the New Zealand naval force, and adviser to the New Zealand Government on all matters affecting the organisation of the naval force.

"The New Zealand Royal Naval Reserve is to be reconstituted, so as to consist of men who served in the New Zealand naval force, who volunteer on discharge to join the reserve, and of men who served in the Royal navy, many of whom now live in New Zealand.

NAVAL DEPOT.

"A naval depot is to be established at Auckland, under the control of the Admiralty.

"The scale of pay of officers of the Royal navy lent to New Zealand will be the same as in the Royal navy, unless a separate New Zealand service is established. The men lent from the Royal navy to the New Zealand naval force will receive the New Zealand rates of pay. The rates of pay, etc., in the New Zealand ship will be the same as those fixed in the Australian force. This scale will apply to men belonging to the New Zealand naval force, serving in ships of the Royal navy in New Zealand waters. Service in the Royal navy beyond New Zealand waters is considered as foreign service, and will be paid for at Royal navy rates only, the balance between such rates and those fixed for the New Zealand force being allowed to accumulate."

NEW RAILWAY.

DUBBO TO WERRIS CREEK.

FIRST SOD TURNED.

DUBBO, Tuesday.

Mr. Griffith, accompanied by Mr. Thrower, M.L.A., arrived this morning to turn the first sod of the Dubbo-Werris Creek railway. The Minister was met at the station by prominent citizens and formally welcomed. After breakfast he was accorded a civic welcome in the Town Hall, and presented with an address. The Minister then visited the Mechanics' Institute and was welcomed by the president (Mr. G. H. Taylor). At the district school he was received by Mr. Dash, the headmaster, and entertained at refreshments by the pupils of the cookery school. A deputation from the Parents and Citizens' Association asked that the district school be staffed to High school standard pending the erection of the High school, and that pupils' railway concession tickets during the holidays be extended till February.

The Minister promised to place their representations before the Ministers for Education and Railways respectively.

The Minister was entertained at dinner by the citizens. Mayor Ritter presided. Afterwards a procession of public bodies formed up, and accompanied by two bands marched to the site of the railway ceremony. A triumphal arch of district products was erected opposite the Town Hall, and Macquarie and Talbragar streets were a blaze of colour.

Mr. Griffith, at the banquet, said that the Dubbo-Werris Creek railway was not proposed for the purpose of assisting Dubbo solely. It was his object to facilitate the transport of stock in times of drought and increase settlement. In those interests his Government undertook most of their public work. Little money had been spent on the city of Sydney.

Fully 3000 people witnessed the ceremony of turning the first sod. Mr. Griffith was accorded a great reception. He said that this line would be a great connecting link between the western and the northern systems. It had been too long delayed. It should have been constructed years ago.

EARTHQUAKE.

GREAT COMMOTION AT VILA

Our Vila (New Hebrides) correspondent writes:—

At 7.23 p.m. on the evening of the 14th inst. an American clock in the bakery of mine host of the hotel at which I am stopping, suddenly stopped its tick. Simultaneously the hanging lamp in our dining-room commenced to dance a highland fling to the tune of the most violent earthquake that I have ever experienced since my advent in the group many years ago, and Vila was shaken, like a badly-behaved boy, for over a minute.

Tanks rocked on their bases, and half-emptied their contents, when the shelves shed their contents on the floor of the stores, the coffee cups, as it was dinner time, took abnormal positions on the dinner tables, and the diners, as a man, went outside with blanched faces to the security of the open air, and found the earth beneath them heaving like a heavy sea.

The next day the Joint Court, an immense building constructed of concrete, on cement pillars, showed alarming signs of disturbance to its very centre, cracks were gapingly noticeable in all its walls, and a building estimated to have cost some 200,[illegible] francs to erect had been in grave danger of demolition. The quidnuncs agreed that if many shocks of a similar character were to visit us, which is not an impossible proposition, as we are now approaching the hurricane cyclonic season, the Condominium handsome justice hall may be a mass of ruins one of these fine mornings. The residents of both nations were early visitors to the scene, and expert opinion is being employed as to what is best to be done in the circumstances. Meantime there is not wanting those who "told you so" at the outset of the building being started and ridiculing the idea of its being constructed in any other material than timber in such a belt of earthquake occurrences.

MR. JOHNSON.

QUESTION OF RETIREMENT.

NEVER DISCUSSED.

The relationship between the Chief Railway Commissioner (Mr. T. Johnson) and the Government was discussed by the Minister for Railways (Mr. Cann) yesterday. On the question of the Commissioner's retirement, the Minister was emphatic.

"The matter," he said, "has never been discussed by the Cabinet in any shape or form. We have had no application from Mr. Johnson for leave, and we have never talked over the question of relieving him of his position."

"Has any communication been made to the Agent-General's Office with regard to securing a man to fill Mr. Johnson's place?" Mr. Cann was asked.

"The Agent-General' Office comes under the Premier's purview," he replied. "But, as I have said, Cabinet has not gone into the question, so I fail to see how any such communication could have been sent to London."

PANAMA CANAL.

EFFECT ON TRADE ROUTES.

It is evident that the opening of the Panama Canal will not affect the present route of the Messageries Maritimes steamers. The president of the company, M. Andre Lebon, replying to a question addressed to him at a general meeting recently, said that he did not think the opening of the Canal would have the prejudicial consequences which seemed to be anticipated in some quarters. To those who had studied the question closely the Panama Canal seemed to be of interest almost entirely for the United States. He did not believe that any appreciable portion of European traffic would derive any advantage from traversing the desert of water formed by the Atlantic to Panama, and that which was still more deserted up to the Far East, in order to carry goods and passengers. He thought the route already followed offered the most varied resources from the commercial point of view.

SMALLPOX.

ONLY ONE CASE.

Only one case of smallpox was discovered yesterday, the patient being a resident of Hurstville.

The occupants of the Quarantine Station now number 146, of whom 46 are patients. In all seven persons were released. The vaccinations yesterday numbered 128.

THE CAMP MENU.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Some time ago the Minister for Defence, Senator Pearce, called for reports on the question of issuing jam to the troops in camp, in addition to the provisions they already receive. Colonel V. C. M. Sellheim, Quarter-master General of the Military Forces, has reported in favour of jam being issued, and a regulation has now been issued that four ounces of jam a day is to be added to the food ration in a camp of continuous training. It is intended that this regulation shall apply as far as possible to the 1913-14 camps.

CAMPAIGN.

MR. WADE IN MONARO.

BROKEN PROMISES.

POLITICAL RAILWAY WORKS.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL REPORTER.)

COOMA, Tuesday.

The return to Parliament of Mr. Gus. Miller for the constituency of Monaro is considered here to be a matter of considerable doubt.

Three years ago he was not strongly opposed, and the Liberal organisation has been negligible. On this occasion, however, the outlook is very different.

The Liberals and the farmers have selected Mr. E. H. Quodling, a resident of Cooma, to carry the combined banner. This gentleman has been a stock and station agent in the district for 17 years, and is, therefore, very well known, as well as being personally popular. Organisation is vigorously proceeding, and he has been addressing meetings during the past fortnight. Mr. Miller has a very large personal following, and can be relied on to acquit himself well. On the other hand, his opponents point to the marked change in feeling against the Government, and the moral effects of the Federal election. It is difficult to prophesy at this stage, but it is safe to say that the contest promises to be a close one.

Mr. Wade, leader of the Liberal party, reached Cooma this morning. Mr. Wade, who was accompanied by Mrs. Wade, was welcomed by a large gathering of ladies in the afternoon. The Mayor (Alderman J. H. Montague) presided over a largely attended and appreciative meeting in the School of Arts in the evening.

The Labour party, said Mr. Wade, are now boasting of the immensity of their work in land settlement and railway construction, but no place can emphasise the tale of their insincerity to more effect than the Monaro district. Land settlement and railway construction have been influenced not by the wants of the people, but by the prospects of securing votes. The Cooma to Bombala railway was sanctioned by the Wade Government more than three years ago. The first section, to Nimitybelle, was carried out by the M'Gowen Government, and one would not be surprised at that in view of the fact that it runs through the Monaro electorate, which is held by a Labour supporter. But at that point the railway has come to a sudden and unexplained standstill for many months. As part of the scheme of railway construction, the Wade Government resumed two estates—the Mahratta and the Bibbenluke estates—which were adjacent to the route of the proposed railway, but which were then too far from a railway to make closer settlement productive. Shortly after the present Government came into office it took steps to throw open one of these estates for settlement, and the purchasers took up the land in the honest belief that the railway would be carried out, and make the work productive. (Hear, hear.) What has happened? Although the Nimitybelle section was carried out, it was impossible to obtain from the Ministry any promise regarding the Nimitybelle-Bombala section. As time went on, no statement was forthcoming, and the settlement of this private estate fell flat. In the meantime Mr. Beeby was scornfully pointing to the failure of our closer settlement policy, and indicating this country as proof that the price asked was excessive. Yet these propositions were deliberately killed by the want of honesty on the part of the Ministry. (Hear, hear.) Another factor is that Bombala is in a Liberal electorate, and people are asking if that is the reason why this railway is not yet completed. In December, 1911, Mr. Griffith stated positively that the Bombala section would be carried out, and tenders would be called for at once, but nothing was done. In April, 1912, the line was opened to Nimitybelle, and Mr. Holman then promised that tenders would be called for the next section in May. To keep appearances up Mr. Hall came down in July, 1912, to turn the first sod, and made use of the emphatic declaration that the ceremony was no mere bluff, but was the first step towards carrying out the line. Like the far-famed performances of Mr. M'Gowen at Wyalong, the only spade on the job so far was the presentation spade given to the Minister. (Laughter.) Here we have a line sanctioned by Parliament, land settlement dependent upon it, yet through the deliberate blocking and hindering of the work the line is hung up indefinitely. Strange to say, lines are commenced in supporters' electorates, and, in spite of excuses, nothing has been done to complete the Bombala line. This line would have opened up new country, afforded undoubted benefits to one end of Monaro, and placed settlers on the land. (Cheers.) Yet all this good work has been impeded on political grounds, and the Ministry have the effrontery to claim that they are honestly in favour of railway construction and land settlement.

"Mr. Miller," proceeded Mr. Wade, "had the chance of a lifetime to bring the railway question to a head. He should have insisted on the Government keeping its promise. At that time, and in the previous year, the Ministerial majority was very precarious, and if one member had voted against them that majority would have been imperilled. Mr. Miller knew from the questions asked in the House, and from the way they were asked, that the Ministry was monkeying with the question, and he should have forced them to do their duty by saying he would leave them as a protest against a breach of faith. Under those conditions he could not escape the large amount of blame that must be placed upon his shoulders. This is one of the things your member must be called upon to explain at the election. Mr. Miller also voted with the Government so as to deprive selectors of a choice of tenure. Moreover, he supported a proposal to tax land already liable to land tax. Instead of watching the interests of the settlers he obeyed the instructions issued by the caucus."

A vote of thanks to Mr. Wade was enthusiastically carried.

ELECTION DAY.

PROBABLY DECEMBER 6.

A "Gazette" notice was issued yesterday proroguing the State Parliament till November 6. It is expected that the writs will be issued within the following four days, and the general elections must be held on the twenty-eighth day thereafter. If the writs are issued on November 8, the elections must take place on December 6.

A definite announcement as to the date will, it is understood, be made by the Government before the end of the week.

MR. CARMICHAEL AT LEICHHARDT.

"WADEISM" DEFINED.

Speaking at Leichhardt last night, Mr. Carmichael referred to "the threatened recrudescence" of what he termed "Wadeism," which, he said, might be defined as economy in the expenditure of both consolidated revenue and loan funds, with avoidance of taxation. Under "Wadeism" the present heavy expenditure from consolidated revenue will be cut down. The present rate of borrowing will be heavily reduced, and expenditure from loan funds proportionately cut down.

This was the deduction he made from the speeches of Mr. Waddell and Mr. Wade, and he believed the development of the country would suffer from stagnation as it did during the three years previous to the advent of the Labour Government.

LABOUR AND THE LAND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I learn with regret that electors who attended Mr. Cusack's meeting last Saturday night in the Tumbarumba Shire Hall, expected my attendance for a debate with the Labour candidate. None was more disappointed than I that Mr. Cusack, although he announced his acceptance of my challenge at Mr. Trefle's meeting the previous evening, has not yet seen fit to arrange when and where he will do me the honour of debating against me before Albury electors.

I am, etc.,

GENERAL RAINS.

PHENOMENAL DOWNPOURS.

332 POINTS AT WENTWORTH.

Due to the operations of the combined monsoonal and Antarctic disturbance over the S.E. States, one of the finest rainstorms for months past has been received in New South Wales.

Light to heavy rainfall, with thunderstorms, has been recorded throughout, and many of the amounts exceeded one inch. The heaviest fall in the State was 332 points at Wentworth, in the far south-west corner. This is the largest daily amount in that district since February 8, 1911, when 676 points (a phenomenal downpour) occurred.

The scope and benefit of the rainstorm are shown to some advantage in the following statement:—Taking the Western Division of the State as a whole, the amounts varied from about a quarter of an inch to 332 points at Wentworth. Other good falls in the area were:—Balranald 189, Wilcannia 169, Euston 135, Pooncarrie 128, and Nymagee 100.

On the north-west plain the quantities ranged mostly from half an inch to about one inch and a half. Boomi had 172 points, Gulargambone 139, Boggabilla 120, and Narrabri and Moree each 162.

On the Central-western Plain the best were Gilgandra 126, Coonamble 120, Carinda 60, Trundle 50 and Dandaloo 54.

In Riverina, Moulamein received 123 points, Maude 105, Carrathool 93, Booligal 80, Conargo 88, Hillston 56, Grong Grong 51, Hay 53, Deniliquin 53, and Wagga 53, the remainder dwindling thence to a quarter of an inch.

On the north-west slope, most of the amounts exceeded one inch. Werris Creek reported 207 points, Inverell 192, Bundella 195, Bingara 170, Warialda 169, Blackville 166, Bundarra 160, Gunnedah 130, Barraba 110, Manilla 101, and Tamworth 100; Quirindi, however, had only 16 points, and Boggabri 70.

On the central slope the heaviest was 165 points at Coolah; Coonabarabran had 94, Molong 101, Wellington 80, Parkes 74, Forbes 73, Cudal 64, and Dubbo 45.

On the SW slope the amounts were comparatively lighter; 58 points at Young being the largest; all the others falling short of 40 points.

On the N tableland Armidale had 132 points, Emmaville 150, Uralla 135, Walcha 96, Glen Innes and Tenterfield each 60.

On the central tableland Orange headed the list with 276 points, Bathurst received 178, Blackheath 146, Blayney 109, Gulgong 100, Taralga 92, Cassilis 95, and Mudgee 90.

The amounts on the southern tablelands were generally less than half an inch, although one or two exceeded that quantity, Crookwell having 52, and Delegate 51.

The best falls in the north coast were, Kempsey 165 points, and Nambucca 100; the remainder all being very light.

On the Hunter and Manning, Murrurundi had 140 points, Port Macquarie 135, Scone 115, and Merriwa 87; the remainder being less than three-quarters of an inch.

In the metropolitan district 30 points each at Kurrajong and Penrith was the largest fall. Windsor had 13, Parramatta 7, Marrickville 6, and Sydney only 4.

On the South Coast Bega recorded 96 points, Cobargo 86, Pambula 65, Candelo 84, Moss Vale 48, Eden and Bowral 40; the others being all less than the last-mentioned amount.

At 9 a.m. yesterday it was still cloudy to overcast and unsettled generally, and raining or showery at scattered places throughout.

The disturbance responsible for these splendid rains still occupies New South Wales, Victoria, and Tasmania, and appears to be the predominent weather system in Australia at the present time. The centre lies to the east of Tasmania.

Present indications favour finer weather in western districts, but still unsettled with further showers over southern and eastern parts.

RAINSTORM.

A TREMENDOUS FALL.

WENTWORTH, Tuesday.

A phenomenal rainstorm, accompanied by hail as big as hens' eggs, passed over the district on Monday afternoon, when, within the space of a couple of hours, the rain gauges registered a third of the average annual fall of the district. Miles of country round [illegible] under water, for on these western [illegible] there is no get-away to the river for a large portion of the surface water. The main streets were awash from gutter to gutter, and many houses were badly flooded. Big gaps have been left in some of the footpaths, where the water has cut through to the river, and the roads are practically lakes for the time being.

Two or three years ago, in February, seven inches fell in 48 hours. This was during the grape-picking season, and growers had then to harvest portion of their crop from boats, but the rain on that occasion was not nearly as heavy as on Monday. It came down in torrents, and this on top of a heavy thunderstorm, registering 82 points, the previous day. At intervals hail fell, the stones varying in size from a pigeon's to a barnyard fowl's egg. Some trees were completely stripped of leaves.

The storm will do incalculable good to the district. The season opened badly, so badly, in fact, that all the sheep people began to get anxious about summer feed, and sheep were beginning to get too weak to be driven elsewhere for grass. Then, in September, just in the nick of time, a serviceable rain fell, which put quite a different complexion on the outlook, and the storms of Monday and Tuesday will put the finishing touch on it. Altogether in the Wentworth end of the district Sunday's and Monday's rain averaged about 4 inches, and, considering that the average fall over a long series of years is only slightly over 10 inches, and that only 6 inches had been registered up to date this year, the storm has practically assured the season for many months ahead. All tanks for miles around are now running over, and everybody concerned with sheep is satisfied.

HEAVY FALLS IN QUEENSLAND.

CROW'S NEST (Q.), Tuesday.

"A heavy fall of rain and hailstorm was reported from Ravensbourne district, where the hail cut down a lot of early corn, and damaged fruit trees and grape vines.

CHARLEVILLE (Q.), Tuesday.

As a result of good rains yesterday the following falls were recorded:—Charleville district to 9 a.m.: Charleville 52 points, Auteny 29, Glenabria 50, Nive Downs 42, Glengarry 4, Langla Crossing 18, Box Creek 18, Morven 50, Angelalla Downs 80, Ivanhoe 66, Gowrie station 123, Helbetia Park 73, Inyendetta 48, Cowley 21, Yarrawonga 84, Murweh 47, Dillabah 40, Darrimornie 45, Yanna 58, Werriwa 28, Friestling 45, Wyandra 34, Coongoola 15, Augathella 80, Adavale 2, Abbathalla 3, Rosedale 27, Boatman 50, Boatman out-station 70. Other districts on the Downs and south-west report excellent falls.

CHINN CASE.

MR. DEANE AGAIN EXAMINED.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The Select Committee appointed by the Senate to inquire into the dismissal of Henry Chinn from the position of supervising engineer of the western section of the trans-Australian railway continued its sittings at Federal Parliament House to-day. Senator De Largie (W.A.) presided.

The Engineer-in-Chief of the Commonwealth Railways (Henry Deane), in examination by counsel of the Railway Department (Mr. Starke) explained the steps he took to apprise Mr. O'Malley, then Minister for Home Affairs, and Mr. Fisher, then Prime Minister, of his want of confidence in Mr. Chinn.

The Chairman: When Chinn was being engaged, did you ask him what railway construction work he had done?

Mr. Deane: Yes, but I received nothing definite in reply.

Was it not your duty to determine his ability before he was engaged?

Yes: I came to the conclusion, from the general remarks made by Mr. Chinn to me, that statements that had been made about him might be prejudiced.

Mr. Starke: Did you appoint Mr. Chinn?

Mr. Deane: I understood that the then Minister, Mr. O'Malley, had already decided to appoint him.

Senator Maughan: Did you make any protest against the appointment of Mr. Chinn?

On three occasions before he was appointed I protested to the then Minister (Mr. O'Malley), but without success.

The inquiry was adjourned.

CONTEMPT OF COURT.

DIVORCE CASE.

NEWSPAPER MANAGER FINED.

ADELAIDE, Tuesday.

In the Full Court to-day, before their Honors Mr. Justice Murray and Mr. Justice Buchanan, a motion was brought on behalf of Doris Mary Florence Lane for committal or attachment for contempt of Court against Edward James Thomas, manager of the Co-operative Printing and Publishing Company, for printing and publishing in the "Daily Herald" of October 1 an article, which, it was alleged, was calculated to prejudice Mrs. Lane as respondent in a divorce suit, and to interfere with the fair trial.

The facts, said Mr. E. B. Grundy, K.C., who appeared for Mrs. Lane, were very simple. On September 30, a petition was filed by Lane against his wife. The co-respondent was Mr. Thomas Bright, and the allegation in the petition before their Honors was that Doris Mary Florence Lane had misconducted herself with Thomas Robert Bright on various days. The petition and citation were served on Mrs. Lane on September 30, and they had it on the word of the newspaper article, that the preliminary papers had been served on the same day upon the co-respondent. On the following morning, October 1, the very day after those documents had been served, there appeared in the "Daily Herald" an article or paragraph which began: "Divorce Sensation," in very striking black type. It continued, "Solicitor named as co-respondent," "Legislator and Church dignitary important witnesses."

After reading the contents, counsel drew their Honors' attention particularly to the following words therein:—"It is freely stated that the lady in the case has offered to confess conditionally on the Liberal Union representative being omitted from the proceedings. Should the case reach the courts, and present indications point that way, Adelaide will provide one of the most sensational cases that has ever been heard in the Divorce Court."

Mr. J. H. Vaughan, who appeared for the defendant, said that if the paragraph had in any way prejudiced Mrs. Lane, then his clients desired to express their regret, and if the Court felt there was any prejudice then they apologised, both to the Court and to Mrs. Lane if having so prejudiced her case.

Defendant was found guilty, and fined £5, and costs.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL REPORTER.)

GUNDAGAI, Tuesday.

The Government's extravagance was the feature of two speeches delivered by the Premier to-day—one at Cootamundra and the other at Bongongolong.

Mr. Holman said that the serious neglect of the Government's predecessors to spend money in developing the national resources and maintaining decent conditions in the schools and the Public Service was responsible for the large outlay of money during the last three years. The Government had spent money to catch up those arrears, and the spendings were no extravagance. He added: "We have unlimited possibilities stretching out before us, and we have to prepare for the future, the shaping of which is in our hands. This standard of ours for the future, with the Liberals' standard of the past, forms the real dividing line between Conservatism masquerading under the name of Liberalism and the Labour democratic movement." (Hear, hear.)

The Premier, at the outset of an address to some 200 people at South Gundagai, said that the State in the past had been robbed by contractors. The healthy competition boasted of had not existed. Contractors had formed themselves into a ring by which each in turn got a contract. The lowest tender was by arrangement, and by arrangement it went to a certain member of the ring chosen on each occasion. Thus the lowest tender was necessarily a very high tender, and the contractors in turn were able to make enormous profits out of all proportion to the value of the work at the expense of the State. The big contractors were the friends of Mr. Wade, who was always ready to protect their special interests.

In claiming success for the Government's amended industrial law, the Premier said: "The appeal to brute force is not yet dead. But it is dying. While it lives it manifests itself here in small and unpleasant, but still harmless, demonstrations. In other parts of the world inhabited by Anglo-Saxons it demonstrates itself by acts of violence, which have to be met by equal demonstrations of violence. We have not had riots here necessitating the military being called out, and strikers being shot down by scores as in South Africa recently. We owe our immunity from all these concomitants of strikes to the success of the introduction of arbitration into our midst."

Referring to the high cost of living, Mr. Holman said: "Only wild and reckless speakers like Mr. Wade would say that the rise in the cost of living is solely due to the operations of the Labour Government."

Mr. Holman styled "malignant churlishness" the attitude of previous Liberal Governments towards Victoria in matters of common interest to the two States. "The time has arrived," he said, "when the States must work hand in hand for the advancement of their common interests."

The Premier, who was warmly applauded at the conclusion of his speech, predicted a substantial Government majority at the coming elections.

WICKHAM.

MR. MAGNUS CROMARTY'S CAMPAIGN.

NEWCASTLE, Tuesday.

Mr. Magnus Cromarty, the selected Liberal candidate for Wickham electorate, addressed a large meeting at Hamilton to-night. The Mayor (Alderman Melville) presided. Mr. Cromarty, who was well received, said he was not against his opponent on personal issues. None of the promises made by the Labour party three years ago had been redeemed. The Labour Government stood condemned alone by the Nielsen and Willis incidents. He found that the Labour Government, pledged to a non-borrowing policy, had surpassed in extravagance all its predecessors. They had spent a total of over [illegible] millions in three years, and the worst feature of it was it had weakened the State's borrowing power. He contrasted the extravagant policy with Mr. Wade's record of reduced taxation and annual surpluses in the Treasury. More taxes to remedy the financial stringency was inevitable. Referring to State enterprises, he said Mr. Edden had promised them a State coal mine two years ago, but they had not got it. Mr. Cromarty was accorded a vote of confidence.

THE YOUNG LIBERALS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The difficulty which has arisen in the Willoughby selection has caused me to wonder what encouragement is being given to the younger members of the Liberal party to seek seats in the Legislative Assembly. It has been admitted that the Liberal party would benefit by the infusion of some new and young blood in the shape of young and capable men of whom there are many in the Liberal ranks. I happen to know [illegible] Fleming as one of the most promising young men in the Liberal party to-day, who [illegible] graduated to his present position [illegible] and incessant work on behalf of the [illegible] cause in various electorates. He [illegible] the selection by perfectly fair me[illegible] almost all kinds of misrepresentation, [illegible] spite many difficulties, and it certa[illegible] appear to me most unfair that the [illegible] to rob him of the selection by the unsuccessful candidates for selection should receive so much prominence. It is also a sad aspect in Liberal politics to see attempts being made to squeeze out the younger men by old politicians.

PELAW-MAIN AWARD.

NEWCASTLE, Tuesday.

The Northern Coal Miners' Board resumed its sittings at the Newcastle Courthouse this morning. Judge Edmunds presided, and Mr. N. Clark and Mr. E. Peters represented the proprietors and miners respectively on the board.

The Chairman announced that the board had arrived at a decision in regard to the Pelaw Main case. The award provided, in the event of a dispute, for the appointment of an umpire, and, if that failed, the matter could be brought before the board. It represented the opinion of the board as to the manner of successfully working the Pelaw Main colliery, but, he added, the most perfect award possible would be of no avail without the co-operation of the parties. The Chairman pointed out that the award, as given, was subject to alterations the board might see fit to make to-morrow.

The duration of the operation of the award has not yet been fixed.

The award is as follows:—

1. That every machine man working the recognised hours in this colliery on tonnage rates shall receive not less than 12s 4d per shift, if the failure to earn that amount has not been caused by any fault of his own.

2. The management shall not make any deduction from the said rate of 12s 4d unless it has reason to believe that the said machine man is at fault. In such case the management shall, before the pay, notify the same to the said machine man. Thereupon, in case of dispute, the machine men in the adjoining cavil shall be called in together with equal representation of the management to decide the issue, and, should these persons fail to agree, the matter shall be referred to an umpire agreed upon by the parties, or, failing this, to this board. Note: It is not intended by the board to alter in any way the existing methods of bookkeeping, but 12s 4d shall be allowed for each individual shift so far as the earnings for each shift appear upon the records of the colliery.

The award also provides rules for cavilling at Pelaw Main.

MR. JOHN BROWN SATISFIED.

Mr. John Brown, when approached this afternoon, said he was not aware of the nature of the award in the Pelaw Main case, which was given this morning. When made acquainted with the rate of the minimum wage granted, he said: "We don't mind paying 12s 4d per shift as long as the men work for it. The men, however, often worked only five or six hours. As long as the management of the mines is left in our hands we will be satisfied."

THE DISPUTE AT WHITBURN.

At the Northern Coalminers' Wages Board this morning, Mr. Lewis, who appeared for the miners, said that they were trying to arrange a settlement of the Whitburn dispute. The president of the federation had communicated with the manager of the colliery regarding a proposal to appoint an arbitrator, and the Newcastle Coal Company was being approached to see if they would agree to such a course. If that course was not adopted the dispute would be brought before the board.

The Chairman said he did not see why it could not be arranged for them to work irrespective of whether the matter was dealt with by arbitration or by the Court.

Mr. Lewis informed the board that he would be able to report definitely to the board to-morrow.

Mr. Lewis stated subsequently to a "Herald" representative that it had been arranged for an officer of the federation to meet the manager of the colliery and the superintendent of the company on Thursday to confer on the question of working the tops.

GRAND OPERA.

"MANON LESCAUT."

History relates that Wagner began his "Ring" series with the last opera, and worked backwards. Similarly, Australian operagoers have consistently studied the greatest living Italian composer from his later works, completing the list with the first only last night, when "Manon Lescaut," Puccini's earliest successful opera, was staged at Her Majesty's Theatre. This piece, and "The Girl of the Golden West," were both first staged in English in the old country by Mr. Thomas Quinlan, with Jeanne Brola in the name-parts, and it was this prima donna who appeared as Manon last evening under the same direction. The house was as enthusiastic as it was crowded.

There are but few separate arias in this work that are suitable for excerpt purposes, nor could such be expected in music which is at all times primarily illustrative of the action. None the less, the great duet between the lovers in the second act consisted of music as passionately entrancing as anything this composer has achieved. The orchestration, swelling to a climax in great billows of sweet sound, and subsiding again, was splendidly directed by Signor Tullio Voghera. A wonderful melodic passage for the tenor at the words "Your Eyes Deep as the Sea" was of the intensely original character which this composer has shown us in the last act of "Tosca." It was all sung with the utmost ardour by Miss Brola and Mr. Maurice D'Oisly, and when the baritone (Mr. W. J. Samuell) entered to announce the arrest of the heroine, the excitement was worked up in the most tremendous orchestration, exuberantly overflowing with vitality, that could be imagined. As the curtain fell upon this great second act, the audience cheered again and again, and the three principals above-named, the conductor, and Mr. Arthur Wynn, who played admirably as Geronte, were all called forward many times.

As already suggested, the score of this early work, which was preceded by two operas that failed, possesses all the vivacity, restless changes of key and rhythm, and dramatic intensity, in which Puccini still mingles his own characteristics of the modern Italian school with much that shows the influence of Wagner and the modern French masters. The composer, as was the case in "La Tosca," makes his prelude, an allegro of amazing originality and swiftness, very brief, so that it merely indicates the approaching animation of the opening scene. This took the form of a picturesque and well-contrived tableau, showing the principal square at Amiens, near the Paris Gate, and groups of students, soldiers, citizens, and girls enjoying the cool evening air. The action gives passing prominence to Edmondo, a careless student (a part brightly played and well sung by Mr. Sydney Russell), and there is an interchange of gay choral numbers between the students and the maidens, this act and the third being quite remarkable for the skill with which the choral ensembles are brought into the action. The young Chevalier Des Grieux alone displays a disinclination to join in the love-nonsense; and then the postillion's horn is heard, and a diligence from Arras draws up at the inn, from which step the elderly Geronte de Ravoir, Treasurer-General of France, Sergeant Lescaut, of the King's Guards, and the latter's sister, Manon, a charming girl in her teens, who is to enter a convent the next day. Des Grieux contrives to express his admiration for the young beauty whilst her companions are arranging with the landlord of the inn, and after she is called away he sings a beautiful aria, "Never did I behold so fair a maiden!" This romance, exquisitely scored for muted violins, with reeds and harp prominent, was rendered with fervour and fine effect by Mr. D'Oisly, who was in excellent voice, and made a very decided success in the role. Des Grieux elopes with Manon in the chariot hired for the same purpose by the elderly Geronte, a denouement which formed a dramatic finale to music inspired by various emotions—the derisive laughter of the students (girls disguised as boys, as well as men, to form a full chorus), in a captivating melody, the vexation of Lescaut, who had been prepared to betray his sister to the wealthy Treasurer-General, but was disgusted at her flight with a poor student, and the furious rage of the duped Geronte.

In the second act, where Sergeant Lescaut has persuaded his sister to desert her lover for the luxury of Geronte's great mansion in Paris, Manon, not wholly heartless, expresses her sense of the emptiness of mere splendour, and her regret at her lost happiness, in a beautiful and richly-scored air, "Without a Kiss I Left Him"; and there is a clever duet with Lescaut, a part played in soldierly fashion by Mr. W. J. Samuell, who at this point proved effective in some clever music. Contrast is afforded by the entrance of a troop of female singers, headed by a solo mezzo-soprano (Miss Mabel Ellis), who render a thoroughly Italian madrigal, in which the semi-chorus responded to the soloist in harmonies of crystal purity. Much admired also was the Minuet supposedly performed by a richly-dressed group of strings, whose "tuning" was imitated by the orchestra. The minuet formed another contrasted number, and was almost in the style of Mozart. Manon here receives a lesson in dancing before Geronte and various admiring old beaux, during which the audience enjoyed Miss Broula's dainty singing of the graceful theme with its old-world trill, which she tunefully executed. Amidst all this gaiety an instrumental strain is heard, identified at the end of all with Manon's death. The great duets between the lovers, in which both artists gave of their best, held the audience in thrall, and the scene closed with the arrest of Manon on a charge of stealing her protector's jewels, just as she was trying to elope a second time with Des Grieux. The excitement suggested by the ensemble at the end beggars description.

The famous intermezzo, inspired by Manon's grief in prison, is like a veil dividing her career of abandonment to the unbridled joys of careless youth from the purifying sentiment of unselfish love which partially redeems her during the few remaining weeks of her short life. Opening with a lento theme of lamentation for the 'cello, in which the first violin and viola joined later, a beautiful ensemble with harp followed of a still pathetic character, until, at last, gathering in power and richness of tone, the fire of magical unisonal passages, splendidly rendered, approached a climax to the sound of muttering kettle-drums, and then sank to rest. Dr. Voghera accepted an encore for this beautiful intermezzo, the emotional interpretation of which deeply touched the house.

The third act, at the port of Havre, opens with a mournful duet to muted strings, between the lovers, Manon at her prison-window; and the principal episode shows the women-convicts called out to pass between the ranks of the guard to the ship. As, in response to the roll-call one brazen creature after another came forward, some hard and defiant, others with reckless laughter, and Manon, hiding her face in shame, a striking situation is achieved, and the effect was heightened when Des Grieux threw himself at the captain's feet with a piteous appeal to be allowed to go on board, and was cheered by the crowd for his constancy and success when the request was granted. A final tableau shows the lovers amidst the rocky hills, with the endless plains of New Orleans revealed in the distance beneath the setting sun. Manon, nearly delirious with thirst, at last persuades Des Grieux to go forward in search of water. The sky darkens as the now dying girl sings the aria, "Lonely, Forsaken," and on the return of her lover expires with the words "Time will obliterate my faults, but my love will never die"—a closing passage which, more than any other in the libretto, recalls the sentimental style of Prevost's old romance. The music at this crisis was all the more touching because it brought in once more the strain of the minuet when life was so seeming fair for the ill-fated heroine. More pathetic still was a passing allusion to the theme in which Des Grieux first addressed the light-hearted schoolgirl beneath the porch of the old inn at Amiens. As will be gathered, the last act consisted entirely of music for the lovers. Some awe-inspiring discords for full orchestra as Des Grieux raised his hands imploringly to heaven impressively closed the opera.

A SEASON IN NEW YORK.

Mr. Quinlan received yesterday afternoon a cable from the directors of the Century Theatre (millionaires' theatre), New York, asking him would he give a Wagner festival of "The Ring," and "Tristan and Isolde," and other works next April. Mr. Quinlan naturally considers this one of the finest compliments ever paid his organisation, and the whole company are now wondering whether the impressario will accept the proposal.

TO-DAY'S OPERAS.

This afternoon, at 2, the third representation of "Tales of Hoffmann" this season will be given. In the evening "Samson and Delilah" will be staged, with Mr. Francis Costa and Miss Edna Thornton in the name parts of Saint-Saens' favourite work. Dr. Voghera will conduct.

The plan for the final performance of "Faust" (next Tuesday) will be available at Paling's this morning, together with the plans for the symphony concert on November 12, "Louise" (November 8), and "The Mastersingers" (November 10).

FEDERAL SUPPLY.

BILL IN HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The House of Representatives spent the evening considering a supply bill for £812,600 to cover expenditure for one month.

The Minister for External Affairs (Mr. Glynn), answering Mr. Thomas (N.S.W.), said that the proposal to establish freezing works in the Northern Territory had not been definitely turned down, and there had been recent negotiations with an English company, with the object of establishing works at Port Darwin. The Government would prefer to have the meat freezing business carried out by a private company.

The Prime Minister (Mr. Cook) said the question of making a grant to the sufferers as a result of the recent colliery disaster in Wales was being considered. He would make a statement on the question immediately.

The Minister for Trade and Customs (Mr. Groom), in answer to Mr. Sharpe (Q.), said his department was watching over all matters that had been referred to them regarding the presence of a beef trust in Australia. He could not say at this stage what information was in the hands of his department, but he could assure Mr. Sharpe that his department had no sympathy whatever with trusts or combinations that were likely to interfere with the industries of Australia.

The leader of the Opposition (Mr. Fisher) asked whether the Prime Minister (Mr. Cook) stated at Parramatta recently that if the Labour Government had continued in office it would be sure to impose additional taxation, and, also, whether he had stated that the Liberal Government had been compelled to increase its expenditure on account of the draft estimates having been so high.

The Prime Minister (Mr. Cook) said he did not say so. His Government found such a condition of things on taking office that the draft estimates were not presented. They were so inflated that the Liberal Government had to take off some millions.

The Postmaster-General (Mr. Wynne), in answer to Mr. Bruce Smith (N.S.W.), said the Marconi Company had filed their statement of claim, and the Government had filed its reply in connection with the litigation regarding the alleged infringement of the company's patent rights in wireless methods.

The Assistant Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. Kelly), on behalf of the Minister for Defence, informed Mr. Burns (N.S.W.) that 323 boys had been prosecuted for failing to register under the compulsory clauses of the Defence Act.

The Treasurer introduced a Supply Bill for £812,600, to cover expenditure for one month. He pointed out that the bill should not take long to put through, as members should have exhausted all their grievances by this time.

Mr. Fisher (Q.), referring to a statement by the Prime Minister, that the Opposition would have raised taxation if it had been returned to power, said that such a remark was a gratuitous insult to the Labour party. Mr. Cook inferred that the party would break its pledges to the electors. The speech was made at the foundation of a Liberal institute in Parramatta, in which the Prime Minister had taken £100 worth of shares.

The Prime Minister: I only took 100 shares at 10s each.

Mr. Fisher, continuing, said Mr. Cook had said deliberately and solemnly that Labour would have increased taxation.

Opposition members: That's a lie.

Mr. Fisher: No new taxation was proposed, and no new taxation would have been imposed.

Mr. Ahearn: Where would you have got the money?

Mr. Sharpe (Q.) complained that the Government was doing nothing to check the operations of an American beef trust, which he said was busy in Queensland. Sufficient evidence had been supplied to the Government to warrant them taking action, but they seemed disinclined to act. Many members of the Government were well aware of the existence of the trust, and the fact that if it were not dealt with immediately the opportunity would be lost. Day by day the trust was increasing its strength by buying up the best of the stock. The trust was heavily backed financially, and was in a position to drive other competitors out of the market. It would not be long ere the trust was working on an extensive scale, unless a step were made to check it.

Mr. Tudor (Vic.) criticised the speech delivered by the Prime Minister (Mr. Cook) at the opening of mills at Lane Cove on Saturday as being inconsistent with his expressed fiscal belief. On Saturday he spoke as if he favoured a higher tariff being allowed the industry, whereas when the question of affording the industry a higher tariff was dealt with in the House he voted against such a step. (Opposition cheers.)

Mr. Bruce Smith (N.S.W.) said he sympathised with the statements Mr. Tudor had made, particularly in view of recent utterances on the question of higher tariffs by the Prime Minister. Personally, he would have no sympathy with a movement to raise the existing tariff, and he did not anticipate that such a movement would come from the present Government.

MAYFIELD TRAGEDY.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Tuesday.

A man named Biddle was charged at the Magistrate's Court at Ashburton with the murder of Mrs. Lilley at Mayfield on the 15th inst. The police gave evidence that Biddle confessed that he had called on Mrs. Lilley, and told her that another woman wanted her. They went through a paddock. "I then hit her on the head with a hammer," said accused. "I did not do anything more to her." Accused was committed for trial.

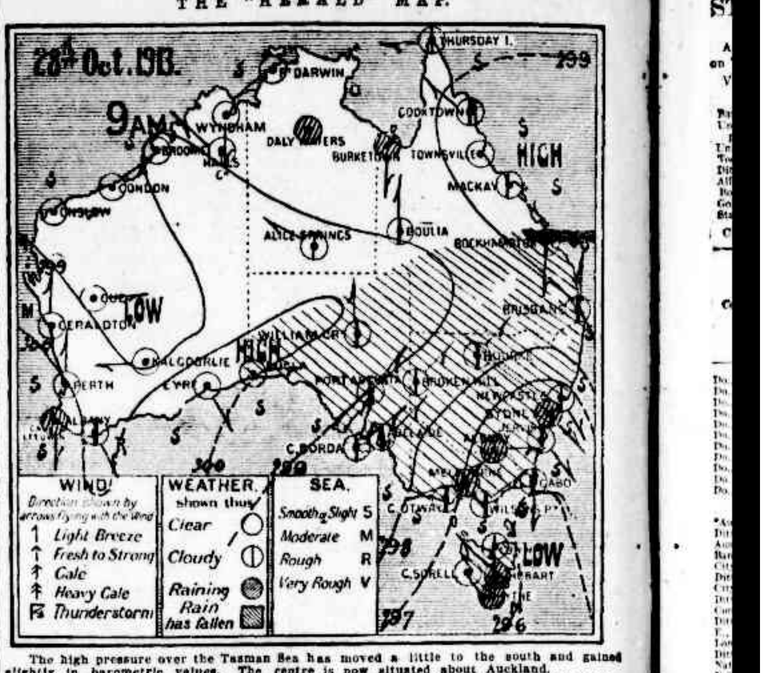
AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.



The high pressure over the Tasman Sea has moved a little to the south and gained slightly in barometric values. The centre is now situated about Auckland.

The combined Antarctic and monsoonal depression which has resulted in such splendid rains over New South Wales has moved eastward, and is at present centred to the east of Tasmania, but the main portion still covers our State.

A rather weak-looking high pressure exists over the central and south-western part of the continent, while a monsoonal dip is in evidence over the north-western parts of Western Australia.

Further showers may be expected over the southern and eastern districts, but becoming fine in the west, with southerly winds.

Ocean Forecast.—Strong and squally south-west winds between Melbourne, Hobart, and Sydney.

SYNODS.

METHODIST SYDNEY DISTRICT.

BOXING AND SUNDAY DRILLING CONDEMNED.

The first session of the Sydney District Synod was commenced in the Conference Hall yesterday morning, under the presidency of the Rev. J. E. Carruthers.

A large number of laymen joined the Ministers in the afternoon session. Sympathetic reference was made to the loss the synod had sustained by the death of the Revs. H. Woodhouse and J. R. Williams, also Messrs. T. H. England, G. F. Crozier, R. H. Ducker, E. Lonsdale, and T. F. Reeve.

On the motion of Rev. A. G. Whitten the synod agreed to recommend the conference that the Balmain (Darling-street) circuit be attached to the Balmain (Montague-street) Central Mission, without the appointment of an additional minister to Montague-street. The Rev. J. Ward Harrison moved, and it was carried, that the conference be recommended to establish a mission within the bounds of the Rozelle circuit to be known as the Rozelle mission. The Rev. T. B. Holmes moved and after considerable discussion it was resolved to recommend that the Stanmore circuit be divided, Stanmore, Marrickville, Warren, and Wardell-road, be one circuit, Tempe Park, and Tempe to form the other, the new circuit to be subsidised, with a diminishing grant covering three years of £80, £60, £40. On the motion of the Rev. J. G. Morris Taylor, it was agreed to appoint a commission to confer with the members of the Lewisham and Drummoyne-Five Dock circuit quarterly meetings with a view to the constitution of Haberfield as a new circuit, and to define its boundaries.

Mr. J. Blanksby moved that steps be taken to supply religious services in Belmore from the Campsie circuit. It was pointed out that Lakemba was already supplying the need. It was resolved to refer the matter to the quarterly meetings concerned.

EVENING SESSION.

The Rev. J. Calvert submitted the report of the Sunday schools in the district which showed a satisfactory increase. An increase also appeared in the Christian Endeavour returns presented by the Rev. B. Dinning. The Rev. J. Ward Harrison reported upon the general returns which show an increase of three churches, one school building, one circuit missionary, 459 church members, 62 junior members, and 965 adherents. The Rev. G. O. Cocks read the report of the Evangelistic Committee.

The affairs of the Glebe-Toxteth circuit came under review, resulting in a resolution, moved by the Rev. J. W. Leadley, and carried, that it be recommended that the Glebe-road and St. John's-road churches be formed into a circuit with one married minister, and Toxteth be made a separate circuit, with the appointment of a single minister.

The Rev. J. G. Morris Taylor was elected the representative of the synod to the stationing committee and conference, with the Rev. Dr. Bromilow as substitute representative.

The Rev. B. J. Meek and Messrs. P. N. Slade and J. Blanksby, were elected to represent the synod on the distribution committee.

The president informed the synod that it had been officially reported to him that the regulation in the education department debarring school teachers who are local preachers from acting in that capacity, had been rescinded.

The Rev. Jos. Woodhouse, in giving his report of the Home Mission Society, showed an increase of income in the Sydney district of £320. The Rev. C. Stead reported on the Foreign Mission funds for the district showing an increase of £171 in the income. It was agreed to recommend the conference that a special grant of £25 be made to the Rev. E. C. Thomas.

The Rev. Jas. Green drew attention to the erection of a new Stadium in Newtown. He moved, "That this synod respectfully asks that the present application for a license for boxing contests to be held in a building now in course of erection at Newtown, be refused by the Chief Secretary, Mr. F. Flowers, on the ground that these boxing contests are a menace to the moral welfare of the community." A similar resolution was carried regarding a Paddington application.

The Rev. A. Stephen moved:—"That this synod offers its emphatic protest against the compulsory attendance of citizen soldiers, amongst whom are youths of 18 and upwards, at Sunday military exercises."

The Rev. Paul Clipsham thought they should pass a resolution to the effect that their people refuse to send their children to these drills.

The Rev. W. H. Beale hoped they would put their backs to the wall, and fight the whole infernal business.

The president stopped a general discussion.

AUSTRALIA'S POPULATION 1800-1912.

The annual rate of increase of Australia's population is getting painfully slow. The following table, which carries us back to the earliest date of our effective existence, shows this clearly:—

COST OF LIVING AND AGRICULTURAL PRODUCTS.

"Another Student" writes:—

Sir,—Referring to "Student's" letter, appearing in your commercial column of 28th inst., following on the fall in prices of agricultural products to be brought about by the suggested increased activity in primary industries, it would appear that the return to the producer being lessened, the margin of cultivation would contract (some of those who at present prices make a sufficient living would under low prices find the return inadequate), and so check production and the remedy in that direction.

This is true; but we have good reason for believing that the margin of profit is now large.

A BANKRUPTCY POINT.

"Creditor" writes:—

Sir,—I should be much obliged if you could answer the following query in the financial columns of the "Herald." A bank clerk, on having a sequestration order made against him, is found to be in possession of certain securities, the property of the bank. Has the bank a prior claim on same as against the other creditors?

If the bankrupt had property of his employer in his possession, the ownership of such property would not be changed, and outside creditors would have no claim.

AERATED BREAD COMPANY, LIMITED.

The accounts of the above company cover the six months ended September 30. They show a net profit for the period of £2489, which, with £574 brought forward, made £3063 available. The abnormally wet weather and the smallpox scare interfered with business. A dividend at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum absorbs £1400, £1000 is added to reserve, and £663 carried forward. NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The oversea imports of the State during September were valued at £3,080,492, which shows an increase of £251,622, or nearly 9 per cent., as compared with the corresponding month of last year.

The total for the nine months was £24,064,161, an increase of £380,959 on the corresponding figures for 1912.

The principal articles with increases were boots and shoes, fruits, hats, and caps, iron and steel, machines and machinery, metal manufactures, and timber, but a general decline is noticeable in most other articles.

The oversea exports for September amounted to £2,849,388, being an increase of £457,194, or over 19 per cent., as compared with the corresponding month of last year.

For the nine months there was a decrease of £769,693, or over 3 per cent., compared with the same period for 1912.

The principal increases during the nine months were:—Minerals, £2884; wheat and flour, £956,905; other pastoral produce, £1,006,958.

The principal decreases during the same period were:—Butter, £173,669; wool, £434,428.

Separating merchandise from gold, the exports of the former during the nine months increased by £1,869,164, and the latter decreased by £2,638,857.

At yesterday's wool sales 12,708 bales of wool were offered, and 11,982 bales sold, including 247 bales disposed of privately.

Good wools were keenly sought after, greasies selling to 13½d, and scoureds to 21d.

The Maitland Brewery has been purchased by Tooth and Co., Ltd., who will in future carry on the enterprise. The Maitland Company is being liquidated for purposes of the sale.

Gosche, Hale, and Co. Ltd. has been registered with a capital of £10,000 in shares of £1 each, and will carry on as wine merchants, etc.

Bedsteads (Resteasy) Ltd. has a capital of £25,000 in shares of £1 each, and will carry on as bedstead manufacturers. The first directors are:—Messrs. Geo. Georgeson, E. A. Harris, and H. W. Thom.

The King's Theatre and Films, Limited, has declared the usual monthly dividend (the 29th) of 3d per share.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

Grocery lines had an improving business yesterday, and from this time till the beginning of December it is expected that business in the distributing trade will increase. Raisins and currants were going out freely. Figs were inquired for, but the regular importers will have few to offer this year. Risk of Customs rejection will not be undertaken. Robinson's groats were very scarce, and to fulfil an order sufficient to cover requirements until the Otranto discharges the full convention price of 7/3 had to be paid. Stocks, however, should be plentiful at the commencement of next week. Gillard's sauces and pickles were in demand, and 15/ and 9/3 per dozen were being obtained without question for the large and small bottles of pickles, and 7/ per dozen for the sauces. Tref.'s sardines had a persistent inquiry in the market, and parcels of halves were procured at 7/3. Quarters, though scarce, were not quite so hard to obtain, and 4/9 was a fair parcel quotation. Distributing, 7/6 and 5/3 were paid by the retailers. The low prices of salmon induced further business. Five hundred cases of Red Alaska sold on the local market at an advance of 2/ per case. As British Columbia prices have been withdrawn, it was expected that there would be more than usual market business in all descriptions of the red fish. High prices asked at the centre of production for Kennett oysters is deterring buyers, and in consequence the local market is bare of supplies. Yesterday the commodity was worth 5/9 to 6/ per dozen. Tartaric acid was firm. Cream of tartar, 95 per cent., had further market business at 10½d. Citric acid was steady.

In the tea market no attempt was being made to push business, as blenders would not come up to prices paid abroad. A few hundred packages of Ceylons were sold, but the amount in stock is below what many buyers have yet realised. According to a Calcutta cable received yesterday, shipments to Australia from June 1 to October 25 were 500,000lb less than for the corresponding period of last year. An estimate of total shipments to the United Kingdom puts the amount at 3,000,000lb more than last year, but, notwithstanding this fact, the market there is extremely firm, and Calcutta also takes an optimistic view of the trend of prices.

The oil market was quiet as concerns all paint material. Prices were steady for linseed oil and for whitelead at late rates. The sale of 5500 gallons of Meggitt's oil was reported. Turpentine was firm, but without quotable change. Cottonseed oil was high; holders were asking for spot lots 7/ in casks, and 7/3 in cases, which prices return them a profit of about 1/9 per gallon. None of the cheaper oil will be on the market till January at the earliest.

Metal lines were easy. Wire-netting had little inquiry, and probably the imported descriptions were most favoured, because they were selling from £2 to £2/10/ per mile below the quoted prices of the Australian-manufactured article. No. 8 black wire maintained its price of £8/5/, even for parcels, but No. 10 black wire was easier, an offer to sell at £9/5/, ex wharf, meeting with little encouragement.

Despatch of cornsacks to the country was very heavy yesterday, and was made heavier by the general rains. Buying orders were more numerous. Some houses had not bought sufficient for their requirements, and they were endeavouring to minimise the extent of the country orders. They could see that the sack requirements would be heavier than they anticipated when they stopped buying a week ago. Sales were made on spot at 7/2¼ slings, for September shipment, but sellers afterwards asked 7/3. To the country 7/5¼ to 7/6 net to rails for prompt despatch was quoted, and 7/8½ delivered discount, and the same prices were available for November delivery. Parcels of October shipment were wanted at 7/6 slings, and country lots at 7/9. Further sales of branbags were made at 6/10½. Woolpacks were steady at 3/4. The estimate of the Indian raw jute crop of 8,750,000 pucca bales has again been questioned by "Capital," the Calcutta newspaper, which believes that the amount should be considerably higher. It asks the Bengal director of Agriculture to explain discrepancies in his forecast of the jute crop. The most important of these, to which his attention is directed, is his statement that last season's crop was 9,850,000 bales, when in point of fact the actual ascertained crop was 10,230,000 bales. He is also asked whether in the light of more recent information he cannot reduce his estimated damage of the deshi crop. In this connection reference is made: (1) To the fact that at least in one district more than double the quantity of jute has been sold and already despatched than his estimate of the entire crop of the districts for the season and (2) the rice crop grown in the same districts, supposed to have been a failure, will probably turn out a bumper crop. His attention is also drawn to the Nepaul and Madras crops, each of which will probably figure 150,000 bales, all mention of which has been entirely omitted from his forecast. If this omission was intentional, at the very least, it is thought, a footnote referring to these crops should have been added to his forecast.

STATE TEA IMPORTS.

Statistics of imports of tea into the State during September compiled by the Customs Department show an extraordinary increase in the quantity brought down from Ceylon, 1,605,858lb, compared with 666,160lb in the previous month, and 654,128lb in September of 1912. These figures account for the unwillingness of blenders to buy. Apparently they have been filled up, and until they have digested this big amount they will not come on to the market again. Imports from India and China declined, but there was also a heavy increase in imports from Java. The total from all countries during September was 2,218,991lb, compared with 1,180,590lb in the previous month, and 1,415,812lb in September of 1912. Details may be given thus:—

Country of origin.	1913. Quantity. lb.	Value. £	1912. Quantity. lb.	Value. £
India	290,435	10,373	381,911	11,796

Total	2,218,991	77,629	415,821	46,501

Imports for the nine months are slightly ahead of those of the same period of 1912, the comparison being as follows:—

SUITS MADE IN ENGLAND.

A deputation to Mr. Cook on Monday complained of the ready-made clothing work and other work of that class going abroad owing to the want of labour here. There is, however, a fair quantity of bespoke suit orders made in England for Australia, orders being sent abroad by individual customers, who prefer the English cut. In Paris the high-class tailor asks his customer whether he prefers English style or French style, and the English style is the dearer. In Germany English tailoring firms are finding an increasing market, much to the perturbation of German firms. According to the British Consul-General at Munich, for years past representatives of the best London tailors have visited Germany and done an increasing trade through the excellence of their goods and cut. Unfortunately the prices they are able to command place their goods beyond the reach of the majority, and of recent years attempts have been made by some of the less expensive tailors to acquire German clients by sending travellers at regular intervals to the country. The latter supplied a good class of clothes for the money, but hardly what was required, and there is still an enormous opening for any United Kingdom tailor who could supply a good suit at a moderate price. In some of the above cases attention has been called to a high rate of duty, but there is a tendency among United Kingdom manufacturers to assume that the duty is high without consulting the actual tariff. It is unquestionably a fact that if manufacturers would pay serious attention to the tariff rates and to local conditions, they could compete with the German product to an extent far beyond that at present reached.

BREADSTUFFS.

RAINS EASE THE MARKET.

The general rains reported yesterday, and their continuance during the day, eased the market for wheat, and a considerable quantity of grain was sold. Shippers offered for new wheat 2/11½ to 3/, and the millers offered the latter price, buying fair quantities. Shippers obtained a little at 2/11½, but at the higher price large quantities were offering by the farmers, they were not inclined to operate to any extent. The rains, it was recognised, had ensured a bumper crop, and it was generally expected that the amount harvested would reach forty million bushels. This anticipation was strengthened by the fact that dull sunless days which have been experienced make ideal ripening weather, and that the late sown crops, which in many places were expected to be failures, will now yield grain. Parcels of new wheat sold to millers at 3/5 for November delivery, and more for December delivery. Large quantities will be available in the middle of next month. About 3/5½ was quoted by speculators for January to March delivery, 3/5½ for January to June, and 3/5½ for April to June. Old wheat also shared in the easiness of the market, millers paying no more than 3/6 for prompt delivery. A couple of large parcels were booked at that price. The London market was cabled as steady, with Liverpool futures higher, but prices for actual business show no appreciable alteration. On the other hand freights had a firming tendency, which neutralised any advantage gained by the firmer market for the grain.

Flour was quiet. For export, millers were willing to quit export quality at £7/15/, and prime flour at £8/5/ f.o.b. Bakers' lots were unaltered at £8/15/. With plenty of green feed available, the demand for bran and pollard had declined, and the association yesterday reduced the price of offals by 5/ per ton, asking £4. In less than a week there has been a fall of 10/ per ton.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

In the live stock market to-day 35,000 fat sheep were yarded. A large proportion consisted of good and prime qualities. The demand was without animation, and prices ruled from /6 to 1/ a head under last week's rates.

PRODUCE.

DAIRY.

A FEATURELESS MARKET.

There was no movement of any note in the dairy section of the Sussex-street markets yesterday. Eggs were in fair demand at about the previous day's levels. New-laid suburban varieties were to be had at from /10 to /11, and railways and South Coast at from /9 to /9½ per dozen. River consignments were worth /9. Only very inferior quality was sold at /8½. Duck eggs commanded to /11 per dozen.

Bacon met with a good inquiry. Stocks continued light, and holders were able to realise up to /11½ per lb for prime sides. For middles they demanded anything to 1/1. Flitches were plentiful, and in this instance prices had an easier tendency. The position of hams was a secure one, and it was quite impossible to secure requirements under the published levels. Several curers refused to quote for December delivery.

The reduction in the price of butter did not exercise much influence upon sales. Average parcels were taken at 105/ per cwt. delivered in boxes.

Other lines were steady.

MELBOURNE.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Some 10,000 bales were submitted at to-day's wool sales. The selection was an excellent one, and competition was remarkably keen. There was little change to report in the market, which exhibited considerable strength, a satisfactory feature of which was an improved demand for ordinary top-making sorts, particularly those of comeback and crossbred qualities.

LONDON MARKET FIRMER.

METAL VALUES ALSO SOLID.

LOCAL MARKET FIRM BUT QUIET.

Considerable interest attached to the cabled quotations received yesterday morning, because Monday was "contango" day on the London Stock Exchange, hence the figures would reflect the tone of the market for the new account.

Judging by them it opened with a slight "bull" tendency, both in Barriers and Australian copper stocks. As a proof of this, Broken Hill Norths firmed /9, Broken Hill Proprietary /6, British Broken Hill (old), 1/, Mount Elliotts 2/6, Hampdens 1/3, Great Cobars 2/, Briseis /3, and Sons of Gwalia /3. On the other hand, the following stocks eased to the extent of the amounts mentioned:—Zinc Corporation (ord.) /1½, Bullfinch Proprietary 1/3, Hannan's Star /1½, Lake View and Oroya Exploration /3. The unaltered quotations were:—B.H. Souths (paid), Mount Lyells, and Mount Morgans. Taken on the whole, therefore, London showed a firm tendency, which was accentuated by the fact that the price of copper—£75—was 10/ up; whilst lead at £20/10/, was 5/ better.

The above figures strengthened the position of holders of Barriers. Hence buyers had to bid up before bargains were struck. The result was that in the sales recorded, British Broken Hill (old) moved from 38/ to 38/6, Broken Hill Proprietary advanced from 35/6 to 36/, Broken Hill Junction North firmed 4½d to 14/, whilst a time sale in Broken Hill Norths was on sound lines, the same being the case for ordinary delivery. Sulphide Corporation (ord.) sold at 26/, or 9d below the last sale booked some weeks ago. The preferential scrip was offered at 37/, the last sale price.

A firm London market in copper and lead, as well as in the share quotations, did not stimulate local speculation in the least. Hampdens were exchanged on the firm side, with a forward sale, indicating the belief of the buyer that they will go better when the next dividend is declared. Buyers offered 98/ for Mount Elliotts, but, seeing that the London middle price on Monday was 99/4½, holders declined to consider the offers. A price was offered for Wallaroo and Moonta, but sellers were silent.

In view of the fact that the lode of the Grafton Copper Mine is looking exceptionally well in the different levels and winzes, and that the installation of the rock-drilling plant will enable the manager to expedite exploratory work, and, at the same time, increase the tonnage of ore sent to the smelters, buyers nibbled at the shares at advanced rates, but they were not entertained. The Sulphide section of the mine is certainly looking well. No. 2 winze is going down in solid sulphides over 8ft wide, whilst in the No. 4 being sunk by a machine drill, the ore body is solid for 5ft. Carbonate ore is coming from the Melbourne end of the mine, and is found to be a useful flux in the reverberatories. As the tramway has completely solved the fuel difficulty, the output of copper will doubtless increase in the coming months. Mount Oxide Option shares were freely called, but no transactions were booked. Oxide Creek (paid) were dealt in from 1/5 to 1/3½ to 1/5.

In the gold division Bullfinch Proprietary and Black Range West sold on the easy side. The Ardlethan group of tin stocks was very quiet, the only sale recorded being in Wild Cherry at 3/3 or 1d down. Buyers and sellers of Carpathia did not come to close quarters, whilst Southern Cross (con.) were easier. Vulcan tin were in slightly better favour.

There was not much character about the market during the afternoon, if one excepts a sudden spasm of weakness supervening upon a lack of strength shown by Bullfinch Proprietary for several days past. It was understood that the selling movement started in Adelaide. Anyhow, they receded to 12/8¼—9½ down on the day.

Copper interests were very much in the background, the only sale recorded being in Mount Oxide Options at £35, with sellers still at the same price. Oxide Creek (paid) were in request at 1/5, with sellers at 1/7. Silver shares were likewise quiet, B.H. Souths (paid) easing 1/ to £7/9/. A time transaction in New Burragorang showed the stock steady.

In tin shares, Carpathias (con.) sold /6 under the previous day's closing rate, but the paid scrip was in request at a steady figure. Southern Cross (con.) sold on the easy side; Kampong Kamunting sold unchanged; whilst Gilmores improved a fraction. Wild Cherry was easier, and 25/ was offered for Big Bygoo shares. Good offers were made for Tongkah Compound, on the strength of Melbourne orders.

BARRIER MINES.

BROKEN HILL, Tuesday.

In the B.H. South mine last week No. 90 bore (970ft level), in section L4, was taken to 142ft; 8ft of low-grade ore was passed through, from 62ft to 70ft, with another 9ft of slightly better ore and 11 per cent. stuff from 109ft to 118ft. No. 91 bore was started in section B on the 1170ft level going west from the main drive, slightly north. It was taken 137ft, and from 84ft to 94ft carried ore assaying 11.7 per cent. lead, 6.9oz silver, and 11.7 per cent. zinc.

At the B.H. South Blocks mine the main north drive (1060ft level) was last week extended 12ft, to 335ft, the last 12ft averaging 19 per cent. lead, 3oz silver, and 10.2 per cent. zinc. Developmental work in the zinc lode progressed at the 891, 762, 634, and 532 ft levels. A large area of country was opened up, but generally the values met with were low.

BROKEN HILL BLOCK 10.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Improvement is shown in several important particulars by the half-yearly report of the Broken Hill Block 10 Company for the period ended September 30. The net profits have increased, the figures shown being about £20,000 more than the corresponding sum six months ago, while better mill work was recorded, and, to round off the satisfactory record, there is the development in the western portion of the lease, which is expected to add considerably to the ore reserves. The receipts were £20,000 larger owing to the greater tonnage handled and the higher average price of lead. The profit in the working account was £26,732, while receipts on by-products account were less owing to the drop in the price of spelter. A windfall of £9660 is credited to the accounts, as a survey revealed a considerable surplus over the estimate in one of the dumps. The net profit, after providing for depreciation, was £37,481. A careful calculation of the economies effected by the new mill as compared with the old mill was made. After making due allowance from the lower grade of the crude ore now available, and bringing into account the improved recoveries and decreased milling costs, the result was stated to be that the whole of the cost of the reconstruction of the plant—about £37,000—was redeemed within the first twelve months of operation of the new mill. During the term under review 49,174 tons of ore was milled, producing 6437 tons concentrates, assaying 33.6oz silver and 64.6 per cent. lead. Working costs amounted to £1/4/3.15 per ton, as against £1/4/3.39 for the preceding six months. An increase of £26,253 is shown as surplus of liquid assets, cash and fixed deposits figuring at £87,420, as against £66,864 the six months previously.

WESTERN AUSTRALIAN MINES.

KALGOORLIE, Tuesday.

The Lake View and Star Company has cabled to London:—"Lake View mine, at 2100ft level, face of north drive at 158ft averages 77/ per ton over a width of 54in. The borehole east indicates a greater width than that exposed in the drive."

CARPATHIA TIN MINE.

The mine manager reports for week ended October 25, as under:—

No. 1 shaft: North drive driven 3ft, making 69ft on milling ore (mixed with porphyry), the full width of the drive, with milling ore remaining on the western side. South drive driven 2ft, making 6ft, the contents of which have been bagged as milling ore. The ore body here is the full width of the drive, with ore still remaining on both sides.

No. 3 shaft: Commenced rising here, from which I am bagging selected and milling ore of high value.

No. 4 shaft: Started stoping here on milling ore, with a small percentage of selected ore chosen.

No. 5 shaft: Sinking 3ft, making 70ft on a lode almost the size of the shaft, with ore remaining on the southern wall. This advance has been classed and bagged as milling ore. Carbonates of copper are still present in the iron ore, accompanied by a higher grade material, which entered the shaft on Wednesday last.

Ore despatched for the week:—Consigned to Darling Harbour, 11.087 tons selected ore, and to Barmedman 90 tons milling ore.

AMALGAMATED ZINC.

DECREASED PROFIT.

The output for the four weeks ended October 18 is given hereunder, in contrast with that for September—The details of past two months' operations are as follows:—

	Sept.	Oct.
Tailings treated, tons	39,049	33,806
Product: Zinc concentrates, tons	11,355	10,241
Lead concentrates, tons	136	145
Estimated profit, all sources, spelter at £22	£32,984	£29,582
Estimated profit on working account	£11,747	£10,051
Net profit on working account	£10,324	£8,758

The decreased tonnage was due to the reduced supply of crudes, owing to the shortage of the water supply, also the Eight-hours' holiday. No credit is taken in the above figures for interest on investments or dividends on shares in other companies.

The net profit of £10,051 for October, contrasts with £12,917 earned in May, £12,097 in June, and £12,146 in July.

"LLOYD" COPPER MINE.

During the week ended October 23, the total quantity of ore raised was 1500 tons, of an average value of 4.25 per cent. A scarcity of labour is still hampering operations. The mill treated 1620 tons of ore, and produced 241½ tons of concentrates, picked ore, averaging 15.10 per cent. Two of the furnaces worked 12 days, and treated 336 tons of concentrates and ore, producing 59 tons of matte, containing 61.03 per cent. copped, 0.4dwt gold, and 11.1oz of silver. A bottom was smelted in No. 2 furnace, which absorbed about 3 tons of metal. There has been a considerable increase in the fuel delivered to the tramline, and there is now a stock stacked on the line of over 1000 tons.

NEW BURRAGORANG SILVER MINING CO.

The manager reports for fortnight ended October 25, as follows:—

No. 1 Level.—Continued stoping as usual, ore produced about 10 tons, despatched 5 tons, now awaiting arrival of teams to forward another parcel. Have also raised 12 tons of second-grade ore, which has yet to be picked.

Lower Levels.—No work done in any of the lower levels during the past fortnight, pending completion of double road to bottom of underlay. Expect to complete this work during coming fortnight to 800ft levels.

Winding Engines.—Completed erection, trial run proving very satisfactory. The secretary advises that the following ore is now at the smelters: 15 tons first-grade, and 5 tons in transit.

WILD CHERRY TIN MINE.

Report for the week ended October 25:—

Hough shaft No. 1: South drive extended 14ft, without exposing any high-grade ore. From the same level, a crosscut is now in operation to locate the trend of the rich ore south from the shaft, 2ft of ore exposed in this crosscut. It is a bit disturbed. Owing to a shortage of miners, only one shift has been employed in this portion of the mine last week.

Smith No. 1 shaft: Main drive north 108 feet level, extended 8ft 6in, total length 98ft. It has shown a full face of good milling ore the whole distance.

Smith shaft No. 2: Main drive south 100ft level, extended 8ft, total 28ft. One foot of ore in face is worth 12 per cent. tin, the full face of drive is worth 5 per cent. tin. At this point crosscutting will have to be carried out to prove width of lode. So far, a smooth hanging wall has been followed in this drive without a break.

The greater portion of the plant has been purchased, and arrangements being made to remove machinery, and erect it on mine as soon as possible.

Olive Green's starting price in the Canterbury Handicap on Saturday was 14 to 1 against.

The programme for the Rosehill November meeting on the 15th prox is announced. The prize money aggregates 675 sovs, of which 150 sovs endow the Rosehill Handicap, 125 sovs the Nursery Stakes, and 100 sovs each of the other races. Nominations will be received by the secretary, Mr. Geo. W. S. Rowe, up to 4 p.m. on Monday next, the 3rd prox.

The Wyong Park Racing Club holds a meeting to-morrow afternoon on the racecourse, situated near the Wyong railway station, on the Northern line, and visitors from the metropolis can reach the scene of action by the trains starting from the Central Railway Station at 6.45, 9.15, 9.55 (horses), and 10.40 a.m.; while those from Newcastle will be accommodated with trains from the coaly city for the south at 6.36, 9.40, and 10.30 a.m. (horses). Large fields and interesting sport are promised.

The sum of £25 has been collected at City Tattersall's Club in aid of the funds of St. Vincent's Hospital.

The scratchings of King Pharaoh, Swan River, and Gold Gift for the V.R.C. Melbourne Cup were lodged yesterday at the office of the A.J.C.

Mossgiel Jockey Club (January 1), Brewarrina Turf Club (December 10, 11), and Spring Flat Racing Club (January 1) race meetings have been granted registration by the A.J.C.

Several useful gallops were executed on the tan track at Randwick yesterday morning, while the "magpie" grass track was available to trainers at a special fee. On the latter track Miocene and Rosedrop spurted five furlongs in 1m 5½s, Minting Boy and Mordkin spurted half a mile in 54s, and Peel River ran the same course in 53s. On the tan, Ocean Blue put in a strong once round, and All Good got over six furlongs in 1m 21s, and over a furlong further Kittle and Minton went strongly. Wihora did useful work, as did Malthusian, Britain, Canaque, and Royal Laddie. Ninfia accounted for a mile in 1m 52s, and Border King went usefully over a short course. Irishman spurted six furlongs in 1m 20s, and Stainer defeated Azoic over a mile in 1m 47s. Those that did sharp spurts were: Volcore, May Maltster, Maltfield, and Gracelle, while Go Alone ran a mile in 1m 54s.

After the declaration of final forfeit yesterday, 24 remained in the Melbourne Cup, so the field, if all go to the post, will be only one more than last year. However, it is possible that before next Tuesday there will be one or two more withdrawals, as a few of those still in have no chance on recent form. It is not likely to be claimed that it is a good field, although the acceptors include two Caulfield Cup winners in Uncle Sam and Aurifer, an A.J.C. Metropolitan winner in Cagou, and the A.J.C. Derby winner Beragoon. As in the recent Caulfield Cup, there is a good deal of tail. Sydney horses have done well in the two miles race during the past few years, as Lord Cardigan won in 1903, Acrasia in 1904, Poseidon in 1906, Apologue in 1907, Lord Nolan in 1908, Prince Foote in 1909, and Piastre last year. I. Earnshaw, who trained Poseidon and Apologue, will be represented this year by Radnor, who ran Beragoon to half a neck in the A.J.C. Derby, and the Sydney representatives eligible to run are Aurifer, Cagou, Harpist, Posinatus, Embracer, Beragoon, Limelight, Crosska, Belove, Sir Vive, Golden Shore, and Ulva's Isle. This is a rather formidable lot compared with the Victorian contingent. Victorian-trained horses amongst the acceptors are Uncle Sam, Mountain Princess, Audacity, Sanskrit, Andelosia, Sea Prince, Rameses, Gladwyn, Effervescence, and Golden Goblet. The sole representative from Adelaide is Wassail, who ran so well in the Caulfield Cup. Sanskrit, trained in Melbourne, is, however, owned in Adelaide, and Belove, trained in Sydney, is owned in Melbourne. Five of the acceptors are imported horses, viz.: Audacity, Embracer, Sea Prince, Limelight, and Golden Shore.

SEMI-FINAL GALLOPS.

RADNOR PLEASES SPECTATORS.

CAULFIELD.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The weather was dull and threatening this morning, but no rain occurred until half-past 7 o'clock, when it began to fall steadily, but the work was almost finished at that hour. There were not as many people on the course for the semi-final gallops as in some past years, but still there was a good muster. All the fast work was done on the grass, which was in the very best of order. Meritus made an early start by running 6f in 1m 20½s. Sea Prince (Fraser) and Belove (Larkins) were bracketed for a mile and a half gallop, and they ran the first 4f in 52s, mile in 1m 46½s, mile and a quarter in 2m 12½s, and the full distance in 2m 39½s, Sea Prince being 20 lengths in front. Anna Carlovna (Fraser) went well, and had Dewberry to assist her over the last six furlongs of nine furlongs, run in 1m 56½s. She ran the first half-mile in 51½s, and 7f in 1m 30s, and the last 6f in 1m 18½s. Embracer (Bracken) ran right away from Wassail (Hopwood) over a mile and a half in 2m 40s, the intermediate distances being 6f in 1m 18½s, and the mile in 1m 46s. Sequarious and Cavity slipped over 5f in 1m 20½s, and Tadanga and Macduff went over the same ground in 1m 17½s. Ireland was kept well in hand for a mile run in 1m 42s. Aleconner did a good working gallop over a mile and a quarter in 2m 19s. Avance went nicely for a mile in 1m 45½s. Lord Tuck spurted 5f in 1m 4½s, and Parolle went a furlong further in 1m 19s. Marcellus improved on his recent form by running a mile in 1m 47s, while Safrano was going at his ease over the same journey, taking 1m 50s. Andesine gave La Jaconde a bad beating over 5f in 1m 4½s. Mountain Princess did a good working gallop of a mile in 1m 53½s. Another to go a mile and a half was Gladwyn (B. Cain), and it took her 2m 41s, the last 9f being done in 2m 1½s. Radnor (lightweight), Allansford (M'Gowan), and Hartfell (Barnett) tried conclusions over a mile and three furlongs. At the end of the first mile, run in 1m 45½s, Radnor and Allansford were a long way in front of Hartfell, and on entering the straight Radnor came away from Allansford, who finished gamely, and won by four lengths, the time being 2m 26½s. Wisconsin ran 9f in 2m 7s. Aurifer (Barnett) could not go slow enough for Golden Shore (Larkins) over a mile and a half, run in 2m 45s. Sunny Park galloped 9f in 2m 4s. Nagara beat Orillia badly over 4f in 50½s. Gladden (Bracken) was going comfortably over a mile and a quarter, run in 2m 19s, and Guncap traversed a furlong less in 2m 4s.

On the sand Benevenuto ran 7f in 1m 37s. Mousme was allotted an easy task. Scottish Chief spurted five furlongs in 1m 10s, and Porch followed with 1m 6s. Uki went strongly over a mile and a quarter. Glenmore (W. Adams) jumped six fences. Golden Point sprinted 5f in 1m 7½s. Maltravers half paced. St. Vano made his way over 9f in 2m 9s. Coral (Fisher) and Aerial Queen left 5f behind in 1m 8½s. Moonbria, Topmast, Pinpress, Avonwort, and Powerful all did useful exercise. Nyan hit out for a mile, run in 1m 52s. Wonrough jumped three hurdles well. Marton had W. Adams in the saddle, and was faster than Commonwealth over six hurdles. Statistician bowled along for a mile and a quarter, run in 2m 23s. Nata put past 6f in 1m 24½s. Singlestick went at an improving pace over a mile, run in 1m 48s; while Posilipo went really well over the same distance in 1m 46½s.

FLEMINGTON.

UNCLE SAM MOVES FREELY.

BERAGOON AND ANDELOSIA SHAPE WELL.

It was dull and overcast this morning, but the threatened rain held off until the before breakfast work had been completed, and the conditions were favourable for galloping. A large gathering, including several ladies, viewed the proceedings, which were of a highly interesting character. Monodia led off by running a tan mile in 1m 48s; while Nari, who followed, was 10 seconds longer for the same distance. Mint Sauce (R. Lewis) was going better at all stages of a mile and a quarter gallop than Golden Goblet (P. Holland), and ran the first half-mile in 53½s, the mile in 1m 46½s, and the full journey in 2m 1½s. Burrinjuck made his way over six furlongs in 1m 26s; while Cock of the North and Kurranka ran a similar distance on the tan in 1m 20s. Bay Malt and Maharajah spurted over half a mile on the tan in a shade over 50s, a smart bit of work, and the former appeared to be going rather better than Maharajah at the finish. Kildalton (J. Killorn) was going strongly on the tan, his last five furlongs being done in 1m 11s. Hathor (R. Lewis) beat Crucis (E. Barker) by quite eight lengths over half a mile, which was well run in 50½s. Audacity (Lewis) and Uncle Matt galloped a mile and a quarter on the tan in 2m 15s, doing the first mile in 1m 47s, and the last one in 1m 50s, and, as will be noted, they were getting slow in the concluding two furlongs. Royal Silver did some half-pace work over a distance; while North Woodleigh went along for seven furlongs in 1m 44s, and Bright Orange ran half a mile on the tan in 58s. Field-General was 1m 5s running five furlongs on the tan, and Flavadore and Loch Amos were striding along. Mala and Quair Burn were let off lightly, while St. Bees (G. Leonard) ran a mile on the tan in 1m 53s. St. Constant (E. Turner) and Rameses (G. Leonard) were fully extended in a gallop of a mile and a half, run in 2m 47s, the final mile being done in 1m 52⅘s. Cagou (light boy) and Harpist (W. H. Smith) did a good, sound gallop of a mile and three-quarters in 3m 15s, the first half-mile occupying 53½s, mile 1m 50s, mile and a quarter 2m 18s, one round of the sand 2m 22s, while the last mile and a half was done in 2m 47½s. Harpist, who had the inside running, was being niggled at for some distance, but Cagou always seemed to be going comfortably. Ulva's Isle was ridden out, and beat Ladies' Man a long way in a gallop once round the outside of the course proper, reckoned as being about 90 yards short of a mile and a half in 2m 41s, and he ran the last mile and a quarter in 2m 18s, and the last mile in 1m 51½s. Ladies' Man was rather tender on pulling up. Danaus was let off with an easy task. Uncle Sam (J. Ettershank) strode along for nine furlongs on the tan in 2m 14s, and moved freely. Effervescence (J. Higgins) had the successive assistance of Arcadius and Doongarra in a gallop of two miles, run in 3m 44s, the last round of the sand being done in 2m 37s. Newberry (W. Minter) and Lindean (E. Turner) ran five furlongs in 1m 7s, and the Lintie and Tiano were both at striding work. Crosska (light boy) had a slight advantage of Scotch Malt (H. Jackson), with Beck's Lager beaten some distance in a gallop once round the sand in 2m 33s, all being ridden out. Carnell went strongly for half a mile, after striding along for about half a mile. Matouree put on speed for a mile on the tan run in 1m 49½s. Pearl King went steadily. Limelight and Necktie had something in hand, while going a mile and a quarter on the course proper in 2m 20½s, the last mile being done in 1m 53s. Herringbone did an even-time nine furlongs on the course proper. King Mostyn ran the last three of four furlongs in 40s. Eubulus and Atora both went steadily. Berragoon (W. H. M'Lachlan) and Andelosia (G. Lambert) were again associated, and galloped eleven furlongs on the course proper in 2m 29s, the last mile and a quarter taking 2m 15s, and the last mile 1m 48½s, a very sound piece of work. They finished together, with Berragoon, who on this occasion had the inside running, looking to be going the better, though neither was ridden right out. Golden Hop ran a mile on the course, and Noogilla was striding along. Bill Brandon and Kedar Khan were schooled over hurdles. Sir Vive did some easy pacing; while Posinatus, a big, raking, free-goer, was striding along on the tan, and ran the last half-mile in 55½s. Sanskrit (E. Barker) looked to be going somewhat better than Hallowmas (W. H. Smith) in a gallop of a mile on the tan in 1m 46½s, and, going on alone, he completed nine furlongs in 2m 1½s. Captain White (W. Smart) and Dollar Dictator ran a tan five furlongs in 1m 7s. Larelle was striding along; while Greek Fire did some easy work. Uxbridge (D. Coleman) was seen to some advantage in a school over hurdles with The Georgian (L. Hegarty). Lacus (R. N. Smart) galloped a mile on the tan in 1m 46s. Bullawarra went along for a couple of miles at about an even-time gait.

MOTORING.

THE "DEFIANCE" AUSTIN.

A NEW IMPORTATION.

The first of a new type of cars of Austin manufacture has been landed by Dalgety and Company, Ltd., to the order of a member of the Automobile Club of Australia. The car is known as the "Defiance" Austin, a special 40-h.p. colonial model, which is sold as a complete car only. This model has been placed on the market especially for fast touring work, and embodies all the latest improvements for the purpose, such as a domed radiator, tapered bonnet, and streamline body. The body accommodates four persons, including the driver, and is provided with a one-man hood and suitable wind shield.

The chassis frame is of channel section and straight, the wheelbase being 10ft 8in. The engine has four cylinders, 4⅛in bore x 6in stroke, and is fitted with enclosed valves, high tension dual ignition, also a mechanical air pump for maintaining pressure on the petrol supply. High lift cams are fitted, and in these circumstances an especially large carburettor is supplied. Austin-Sankey detachable steel wheels, and two spares are supplied. The two rear tyres are studded, and the front pair grooved. Two grooved tyres are also provided with the spare wheels, which are fitted in a "well" in the running boards on each side of the car. The equipment includes a C.A.V. electric lighting set; the dynamo, fitted in the cast aluminium dash above the flywheel, being driven by a special belt device which can be disconnected at will. During the past season this model has been subject to extremely vigorous tests, amongst them being the Imperial Russian reliability trials, in which the car standard in every detail, with the exception of the lighting set, performed most creditably.

MOTOR CYCLING.

MOTOR CYCLE CLUB.

The Motor Cycle Club of New South Wales has arranged the following programme of events for its members, to be held during the month of November:—

November 1: Flexibility and novice hill climbs, at French's Forest.

November 2: Club run to Bobbin Head, starting from Fort Macquarie at 10 o'clock.

November 8: Club run to La Perouse, starting from Centennial Park at 2.30 o'clock.

November 9: Club run to Cataract Dam, starting from Newtown Bridge at 9.30 o'clock.

November 15: Club run to Katoomba, starting from the club rooms at 2 o'clock.

November 16: Club run, to Port Hacking.

November 22: Petrol consumption trial, Centennial Park, starting at 2.30 o'clock. Entries close positively on Thursday, November 20.

November 23: Club run to Newport, starting from Fort Macquarie at 10 o'clock.

The entries for the flexibility and novice hill-climbs, postponed from Saturday, November 25, to be held at French's Forest, on Saturday afternoon, have been reopened, and nominations will be accepted by the hon. secretary, Mr. J. A. Fair, until Friday, at noon. In all probability the venue of the meeting will be changed from that originally chosen.

The following were elected members at the last committee meeting:—Dr. F. G. N. Stephens, Messrs. Stan Cross, R. R. Froude, W. MacDonald, A. K. Mackey, G. Walker, Robert Hood, J. M'Neil, G. Codum, C. Thyme, R. Ralston, G. Hulme, F. G. Gibbons, and J. Ellis.

The framed enlargement of the club members is now on view at the Crown Studios.

SHAKESPEARIAN MEMORIAL.

The Motor Cycle Club has arranged to hold a number of novelty events on the Sydney Cricket Ground on Wednesday and Saturday, December 10 and 13, in connection with the Shakespearian Memorial Fund celebrations.

"CONTINENTAL" INTERSTATE TRIAL.

The following additional entries for the "Continental" interstate trial, to be held from Melbourne to Sydney, in December, have been received:—P. J. Murphy (8-h.p. N.S.U. machine and side car), W. W. Reynolds (3½-h.p. Triumph), E. Childs (3½-h.p. James), A. Maddocks (6-h.p. Matchless).

KOOKABURRA CLUB.

ANNUAL DINNER.

The Kookaburra Motor Cycle Club held its third annual dinner at Sargent's, Ltd., George-street, on Saturday evening. Mr. R. D. Read, the chairman, was supported by Mr. W. Easy, the club vice-president. There was a large attendance, including representatives of the Motor Cycle and Canberra (Sydney) clubs, and a number of old club members, who have retired from the active side of the sport, but, nevertheless, still take an interest in the welfare of the club. A programme of music was interspersed with speeches of a highly entertaining order, as the evening progressed—one member recounting his experiences on a ride to Bourke and back, which was accomplished in a day.

HILL CLIMB POSTPONED.

The hill-climbing contest arranged by the Kookaburra Club for its members on Saturday, November 1, has been postponed on account of the difficulties encountered by the committee in securing a grade with a surface wide enough to admit of two riders ascending the hill at one time.

BOXING.

TO-NIGHT'S STADIUM CONTESTS.

A triple bill will be provided at the Stadium to-night, the principal contest being one of 15 rounds between Jack Blackmore and Tom Townsend. Blackmore was a famous welter-weight a few years ago, and his showing at a recent matinee, when he stopped a big sailor in one round, suggests that his return to the ring is likely to be marked by success. Townsend has been working with Dave Smith, and the latter is anxious to back him against any middle-weight in Australia for the championship title. The winner of to-night's bout will be matched with Tim Land. Sid Wilson and Harry Raff (light-weights) and Tom Brown and Young Holden (feather-weights) will figure in ten round contests.

THE WELTER CHAMPION.

The welter-weight champion of the British Empire, Johnny Summers, finds that he is not able to make 10st for his match with the American light-weight, Harry Stone, but has agreed to scale 10st 2lb at the ringside. Summers will probably have an advantage of nearly half a stone. Tom M'Cormack, the English welter, who left England last Friday, is due to arrive in Sydney on November 27, and will be matched with Summers for the Empire championship.

LONDON, October 27.

Tom Mack defeated Jack Rose, an Australian, at the National Sporting Club in a contest of ten rounds, on points.

The Australian was very slow, and went down three times in the ninth round. He fought gamely in the tenth round, but was well outpointed.

Digger Stanley beat Beynon at the National Sporting Club to-night, in a bout of 20 rounds on points, and won the Lonsdale Belt outright. Stanley was always the cleverer against his stolid and dogged opponent.

The Dixie Kid defeated Albert Scanlon on points at The Ring, in a contest of 20 rounds. Scanlon, who was the heavier, was guilty of clinching in the early rounds, and he did not fight well in the first dozen rounds, hugging continually.

WOLLONGONG, Tuesday.

Bert Barrett, of Wollongong, got a verdict over Billy Elliott, of Sydney, in a 20-round competition at the Star Stadium.

SIR GEORGE REID'S WELCOME.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I was very disappointed to see in the press that the public meeting to honour our High Commissioner had been fixed for Friday, November 14. Surely any other night but Friday might have been arranged, Friday being the late night in the week for business people. If Friday night is persisted in it will be a great disappointment to many people in business, like myself, who will be debarred from the pleasure of seeing and hearing our esteemed old friend, and giving him a hearty welcome. I am, etc.,

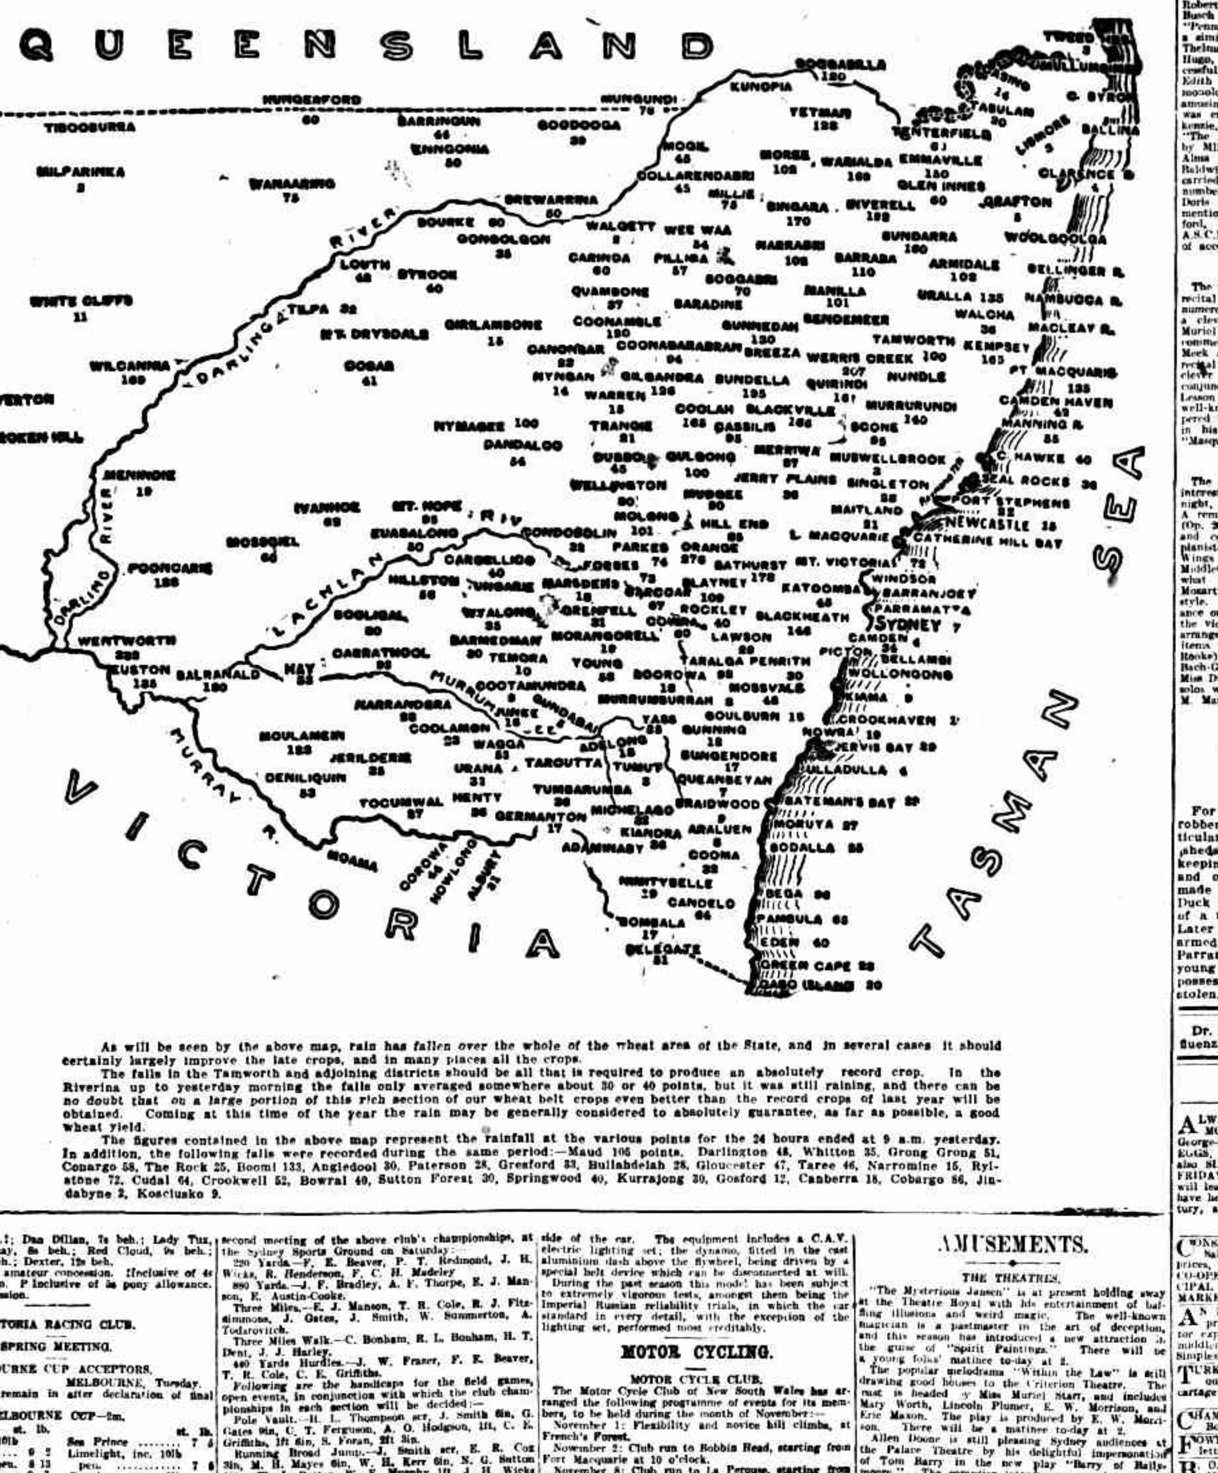
VALUABLE RAINS ON THE WHEAT BELT.



As will be seen by the above map, rain has fallen over the whole of the wheat area of the State, and in several cases it should certainly largely improve the late crops, and in many places all the crops.

The falls in the Tamworth and adjoining districts should be all that is required to produce an absolutely record crop. In the Riverina up to yesterday morning the falls only averaged somewhere about 30 or 40 points, but it was still raining, and there can be no doubt that on a large portion of this rich section of our wheat belt crops even better than the record crops of last year will be obtained. Coming at this time of the year the rain may be generally considered to absolutely guarantee, as far as possible, a good wheat yield.

The figures contained in the above map represent the rainfall at the various points for the 24 hours ended at 9 a.m. yesterday. In addition, the following falls were recorded during the same period:—Maud 105 points, Darlington 48, Whitton 35, Grong Grong 51, Conargo 58, The Rock 25, Boomi 133, Angledool 30, Paterson 28, Gresford 33, Bulahdelah 28, Gloucester 47, Taree 46, Narromine 15, Rylstone 72, Cudal 64, Crookwell 52, Bowral 40, Sutton Forest 30, Springwood 40, Kurrajong 30, Gosford 12, Canberra 18, Cobargo 86, Jindabyne 2, Kosciusko 9.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE THEATRES.

"The Mysterious Jansen" is at present holding sway at the Theatre Royal with his entertainment of baffling illusions and weird magic. The well-known magician is a pastmaster in the art of deception, and this season has introduced a new attraction in the guise of "spirit Paintings." There will be a young folks' matinee to-day at 2.

The popular melodrama "Within the Law" is still drawing good houses to the Criterion Theatre. The cast is headed by Miss Muriel Starr, and includes Mary Worth, Lincoln Plumer, E. W. Morrison, and Eric Maxon. The play is produced by E. W. Morrison. There will be a matinee to-day at 2.

Allen Doone is still pleasing Sydney audiences at the Palace Theatre by his delightful impersonation of Tom Barry in the new play "Barry of Ballymoore." The comedian introduces a number of new songs, including "Eyes of Irish Blue," "My Heart's Bouquet," "Mary," and "Mother Asthore." There will be a matinee to-day at 2.

The last three nights of the Adelphi drama "White as a Lily" are announced. On Saturday Mr. George Willoughby will stage a dramatisation of Marcus Clarke's well-known novel "For the Term of His Natural Life." The management promises some fine spectacular effects in the production which will be presented by the full strength of the Adelphi company.

This afternoon and evening the Mahoney Bros. and Daisy will make their farewell appearances, and the Tenka Troupe of Illusionists have entered upon the last nights of their season at the National Amphitheatre. Throughout the turn they mystify the audience with their weird feats. Other turns include the Creightons, Leonard Nelson, Jennings and Gerald, Clardy Boys, Willis Sisters, Bryant and Bryant, and the tabloid grand opera. The "Mr. Booze" competition (second heat) will be continued on Friday evening.

The Dandies will open a season on Monday next at Eden Gardens, Manly. There will be an entirely new company and repertoire, and all the latest songs and "hits" from London will be introduced. Comedy will be a special feature.

A company of amateurs will give a matinee performance of "Dandy Dick" at the Criterion Theatre on November 8, in aid of the Waitara Foundling Home. The Lady Mayoress is president, and Mrs. Toohey and Mrs. John M'Cormack vice-presidents.

CONCERTS AND RECITALS.

At the St. James's Hall this evening, Miss Adelaide B. Cox will give an elocutionary recital. Miss Cox will appear as Galatea in a scene from "Pygmalion and Galatea," and also in a scene from "Little Lord Fauntleroy." Assistance will be given by Misses Hazel Doyle, Leila Jeffries, Grace Patterson, Queenie Paskins, and Messrs. Sid. Macdonald, Malcolm M'Eachern, Harry Thomas, and Charles Phillip. The plan is at Paling's.

Mr. Stanley Leadley, a baritone, from the studio of Mr. Andrew Black, will give a concert in the Town Hall on Thursday, November 6. Assisting artists will include Miss Vera Watt, Miss Ilma Gresty, Mr. Bryce Carter, and the Y.M.C.A. Glee Club. The plan is at Paling's.

The pupils of the Ancelon-Chapman studio will give an elocutionary and dramatic recital at St. James's Hall on Thursday, November 6. A varied programme will be presented. The plan is at Paling's.

The pupils of Miss Gwyn Smith will give an elocutionary recital in St. James's Hall on Thursday, November 11. The plan is at Paling's.

Mr. S. Vost Janssen will introduce his pupil, Miss Una Black, at an invitation violin recital in St. James's Hall on Monday next. Misses Muriel Barton, Bieta Gannon, and Mr. Herbert Ratcliffe will assist. The plan is at Paling's.

Miss Katie Rappeneker, a young soprano, will give an invitation recital in the Concordia Hall on Thursday, November 13. Several well-known artists will assist. The plan is at Nicholson's.

The tenth annual pianoforte recital by the pupils of Mr. D. Henry Stewart will be held at St. James's Hall on Wednesday, November 12. A number of assisting artists will appear. The plan opens at Paling's on November 3.

On Sunday night, November 9, at the Glaciarium, Mr. L. de Groen will conduct his Vice-Regal Concert Band of 60 performers in a musical festival in aid of the Band's Benevolent Fund. The popular contralto, Miss Vera Watt, has granted her assistance, and a good programme is in course of preparation.

The twenty-second midday organ recital will be given in the Pitt-street Congregational Church to-day at 1.15 by Miss Lilian Frost. The assisting artists are Miss Elsie Aldridge and Mr. Montgomery Stuart.

OTHER ENTERTAINMENTS.

A grand choral concert will be given by the Sydney Harmonic Choral Society in St. James's Hall, Phillip-street, on Saturday evening, November 8, when the members will be heard in several new and interesting numbers. The assisting artists will be Mrs. W. H. Williams, Mrs. W. Bourne, Miss Dorothy Moore, Miss Jessie Sheath, Messrs. Carl Gotch, and Percy Herford. The plan opens at Nicholson's this morning.

The stirring representation of Bulwer Lytton's novel, "The Last Days of Pompeii," has now entered upon the closing nights of its run at Spencer's Lyceum Theatre. The sections devoted to the depiction of the historical arena and the destruction of the city by the eruption of Vesuvius stand out as masterpieces of cinema art. There will be a matinee to-day at 2.30.

The principal attraction at West's Glaciarium and Olympia theatres this week is a 6000ft Pathe colour-film, entitled "The King of the Air." In it is featured a big race between an aeroplane and an express train. De Groen's Orchestra renders incidental music. The plan is at Nicholson's.

On Monday the Crystal Palace Theatre will screen a drama, "The Fatal Legacy," an exciting story of a mysterious legacy handed down from generation to generation. The Lyric Theatre will screen to-morrow "Escape from the Asylum," a pictorial narration of the murder of Stanford White by Harry Thaw, and the latter's trial, condemnation, imprisonment, and escape. "The Bullion Robbery" will be the feature drama at the Colonial Theatre to-morrow. At the Empress Theatre the principal attraction on Thursday will be an Edison film, "Who will Marry Mary?"

To-morrow the Imperial Theatre management will screen a three-reel feature drama, "Humanity," with John Lawson in the principal role of the Jew. The excitement throughout the production is said to be intense.

Millie Doris, the London comedienne, is still on the bill at Bain's Princess Theatre. Other turns include Mysto, Olga Monier, Con. Moreni, Jack Kearns, Walter Whyte, Fides and Fido, the Three Stars, Arthur Farrell, and Jas. Croydon.

The programme at the American Picture Palace will be changed to-morrow. New subjects will include:—"Tapped Wires" (a drama), "Blood Will Tell" (drama), "The New Overseer" (drama).

Harley Davidson, the well-known champion skater, is giving exhibitions at the Centennial Skating Palace, Bondi Junction, every evening. The exhibition will be given until November 1.

JOHN McCORMACK FAREWELL SEASON.

Mr. John McCormack, who is at present in Melbourne, where he opened his season on Thursday last, will return to Sydney to give a farewell season, beginning on Saturday, November 15, followed by concerts on the 17th, 19th, and 20th. The box plans open at Nicholson's on November 6.

MISS MINNA ROBERTS'S PUPILS.

An interesting recital was given last evening in the Concordia Hall by a number of pupils of Miss Minna Roberts. A large audience was present. Miss Alma Busch was applauded for her recital of Conan Doyle's "Pennarby Mine," and received a basket of flowers, a similar tribute being awarded a recitation by Miss Thelma Vernon. A dramatic recital, from Victor Hugo, given by Miss Gladys Bruce, was highly successful, the young reciter being twice recalled. Miss Edith Garnett contributed a couple of clever musical monologues, which were duly appreciated, and an amusing comedy sketch entitled "The Mouse Trap" was enacted by Miss Minna Roberts, Mr. Jack Mackenzie, and Miss Elsie Samms. The trial scene from "The Merchant of Venice" was also agreeably acted by Misses Amy Roberts, Jessie Munro, Elsie Samms, Alma Busch, Gladys Bruce, Edith Garnett, and Vera Baldwin, while a fairy play entitled "Lily Bell" was carried out by Miss Violet Warwick (Titania) and a number of the younger pupils, among whom Miss Doris Sheppard in the name role deserves special mention. The assisting artists were Mr. Percy Herford, Miss Helena Collier, and Miss Muriel Cox, A.S.C.M., who also shared with Mrs. Grouse the duties of accompanist.

MR. HOLMAN'S PUPILS.

The pupils of Mr. William Holman gave a successful recital last night in St. James's Hall before a numerous audience. Miss Doris Williams presented a clever character sketch by Barry Pain, and Miss Muriel Casey was applauded for a double recital, while commendation is due to two younger reciters, Masters Meek and Rae. Miss F. St. George gave an able recital of a scene from "Julius Caesar." Some really clever comedy acting was displayed by Mr. Neville in conjunction with Miss Vivienne Rose-Brown in "A Lesson in Love" (Sheridan Knowles). Mr. Holman's well-known dramatic powers, though somewhat hampered by a severe cold, were displayed advantageously in his rendering of "The Seven Ages" and Poe's "Masque of the Red Death."

STUDENTS' EVENING.

The students of the Sydney Conservatorium gave an interesting programme in Paling's Concert Hall last night, the work throughout being of a good standard. A remarkably fine rendering of Schumann's "Allegro" (Op. 26) was given by Mr. T. Y. Nelson, his phrasing and contrast being excellent. Miss Connie Stuart, pianiste, gave a nicely shaded performance of "On Wings of Song" (Mendelssohn-Liszt). Miss Coral Middleton's playing of Hassler's "Gigue" was a somewhat emphatic one. Miss Ella Layman rendered Mozart's "Romanza" (Concerto in D minor) in good style. The last two players received material assistance on the second piano from Miss Connie Stuart. Of the violin solos Miss Una Black's work in Sarasate's arrangement of "Faust" stood out. Other violin items were D'Ambrosio's "Aubade" (Miss Queenie Rooke) and Squire's "Consolation" (Miss Elsie Cull). Bach-Gounod's "Ave Marie" was sung with feeling by Miss Dulcie Marshall, a singer of much promise. Other solos were sung by Miss F. I. Barnetson and Miss J. M. Marks.

PARRAMATTA DISTRICT.

ALLEGED STOLEN GOODS.

For months past there have been petty robberies around Clyde and Granville, particularly from the railway trucks and goods sheds. The Parramatta police have been keeping a close watch in the vicinity lately, and on Monday evening Constable Grigor made a discovery in the thick scrub near Duck River, finding concealed under the fly of a tent goods to the value of about £50. Later on three men were arrested. One was armed with a fully-loaded revolver. At the Parramatta Court on Tuesday afternoon three young men were charged with being in possession of various articles supposed to be stolen. They were remanded till next day.

AUCTION SALES.

NEW RESIDENTS CAME TO SYDNEY LAST YEAR.
ENOUGH TO POPULATE FIVE BIG TOWNS LIKE BATHURST.

That is the best way to convey the meaning of these big figures—FIVE TOWNS LIKE BATHURST, or GRAFTON, or GOULBURN. It brings home, in a striking way, the increase in our local population—it explains the rapid growth of our residential suburbs, and it forecasts in a sure manner the future value of land available for this purpose. As this increase goes on from year to year, values simply must go up, and land will become harder to obtain. The outer suburbs of to-day, owing to increased transit facilities, will then be regarded as "close in," and Five Dock land in particular will be possible only to the well-lined purse. YOU CAN SEE IT FOR YOURSELF. Our old Fairlight Estate was bought and built on by our clients, and their houses form a boundary to the new property. They stopped simply because no more land was available, but now that we are able to place the Extension on the market, the wave of population will quickly overrun the new property, and before long it also will be covered with the comfortable class of dwelling which graces the original Estate.

FAIRLIGHT EXTENSION ESTATE,
FIVE DOCK.

FAIRLIGHT EXTENSION ESTATE adjoins the first Fairlight Estate, runs back to Five Dock Park, and down to the foreshores of the Parramatta. A reservation has been made of a strip along the edge of Iron Creek, which will eventually be transformed into a handsome Marine Drive. A further reservation has been made for recreation purposes. The Estate itself is well grassed and parklike, and has the gentle slope that ensures perfect drainage. It is subdivided by wide ballasted roads, and the Lots, which average 50 x 150, will make Ideal Home Sites. The surrounding landscape is most picturesque, and the panorama close to the Estate takes in a beautiful stretch of the Parramatta River, including Rodd Island and Iron Cove Bridge, Leichhardt, Callan Park, etc. The property is under five minutes from the Abbotsford tramline, and city water and gas are available. The township of Five Dock is close at hand, and the numerous shops and stores cater for the wants of residents on the Estate. Public School and Post-office within a few minutes.

AUCTION, SATURDAY, NOV. 8th,

AT 3 P.M., ON THE GROUND.

THE ESTATE WILL BE SOLD ON OUR EASY TERMS of £1 Deposit, and Monthly Instalments of 10s, including interest, for every £25 purchased.

MIDDLE HARBOUR WATER FRONTAGES,
JUST BY THE SPIT TRAM.

There are not many of these Water Frontages, but there are a good few Residential Blocks just back of them which possess practically the same advantages. Our only regret about this property is that we have not more to offer, because we think it will sell out as soon as we put it on the market. The Property is known as UPPER SPIT-ROAD ESTATE, MOSMAN.

It is situated about half-way between the Spit Junction and the Spit. Leave the car at the Junction to Upper and Lower Spit roads, and a minute or two brings you on to the Estate. The majority of the sites command splendid and unbroken views of one of the prettiest reaches of Middle Harbour.

AUCTION SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 15,

at 3 p.m., on Ground. Most of the Home Sites vary in size from 50 x 150 up to 66 x 235, and more, and there are also a few fine acre and half-acre blocks. The Estate is offered on

LIFE'S WORTH LIVING
AT HABERFIELD,
AT HABERFIELD.
"SYDNEY'S GARDEN SUBURB."

Firstly, there is the health and well-being of yourself and your family. Haberfield is a true Garden Suburb. Wide, tree-lined streets, and large, open spaces, added to the gardens surrounding the handsome homes, make for freedom and fresh air. Moreover, the scheme of the houses is based on the most modern ideas and experience of ventilation and health conditions.

Secondly, the matter of personal profit and gain. The wise man will seek to avoid a lifetime of rent-paying by owning his own home. If you pay rent for 20 years, you are still a tenant at the end of that time. No matter how much a district may have advanced and expanded, the only difference it will make to you will be, usually, an advanced rental.

Purchase your Home now, at Haberfield, and as this skilfully and beautifully-designed suburb progresses, watch your own profit grow.

VILLAS, ranging from £825 to £1875, are offered for your selection—Villas that are modern in every way; modern in structure, sound, and weatherproof; modern in delightful design, inside and out. Each Villa is artistic and distinctive in exterior appearance. The interiors are embellished, with appropriate regard to the general scheme.

Haberfield is situated within easy reach of the heart of the city. The city man can be in his own garden in half an hour after he leaves his desk. It is unnecessary, once home, to leave the precincts of this charming suburb to obtain amusement or recreation of whatever kind. A fine park, tennis court, bowling green, swimming baths, and many other amusement areas and institutions are features of Haberfield.

Know the pleasure of being your own landlord—the owner of your own home. Show the wisdom of spending your spare time in improving and beautifying your own property—not the property of someone else, who may reap the advantage of your care and attention.

Haberfield is conveniently placed. Take Haberfield or Abbotsford tram in George-street, and alight at O'Connor-street. Time of journey from G.P.O., 30 minutes; or by "through" train to Summer Hill in 10 minutes.

TO PROPERTY OWNERS ON THE NORTH SHORE LINE.
It is very difficult for an Agent to get in touch with every owner who wishes to dispose of his or her property. But it is much easier for a seller to forward particulars of the Property for Sale to a well-known and established AUCTIONEER and REAL ESTATE AGENT. I certainly claim that I am well and favourably known, having been established over 15 years, and during that time I have disposed of a great amount of property along the above line.
2.—At the present time I have no end of inquiries for Property, more particularly, Roseville, Killara, Turramurra, Wahroonga, and Waitara; but the trouble has been to get something at a reasonable figure. If those desirous of selling will send the full particulars I will undertake to inspect at once, and will then do my best to effect a quick sale. The usual charge of commission is made in accordance with the charges of the Real Estate and Auctioneers' Association of New South Wales, of which I am a member. (No sale, no commission.) The seller is not put to any expense whatever by placing their property in my hands.
3.—Commission in the event of sale is the only charge made by me. I will therefore be pleased to receive particulars.

On Page 8 of this Paper will be found our Announcement setting forth the many changes recently made at "THE MODEL STORE," together with a brief description of the NEW SEVEN-STORY EXTENSION, which we are opening to-day. This New Addition to our already vast amount of selling space represents two-thirds of the New Seven-story Building.

This broadening of our facilities opens up before us an opportunity for better service-giving, and we are leaving no stone unturned to give the Shopping Public the best that is in us.

Commencing this morning, we are making a fitting Celebration of the opening of our New Seven-story Building by an Exhibition of Value-giving.

Each Department located in the New Extension is represented in our large BROADWAY WINDOWS by extensive displays, and in this Announcement we have prepared a list of Special Values. These will be available for early shoppers this morning.

THE OLD ENGLISH VILLAGE, AT GRACE BROS.

In connection with the Opening of our New Seven-story Extension, we have devoted one of its floors to the TOY DEPARTMENT, and have dressed it out to represent a number of Old English Villages. A feature of the Old English Village will be the giving away of a grand XMAS PUZZLE BY SANTA CLAUS. These Puzzles will not be ready for distribution until about FRIDAY, but Santa Claus will take the Names and Addresses of those Children who apply at the Old English Village, and the Puzzle will be sent by post to the address given.

THE COMPETITION EXPLAINED.

The XMAS PUZZLE is entitled "CAN YOU DIRECT SANTA CLAUS TO GRACE BROS. FROM THE CENTRAL RAILWAY STATION?" The Puzzle is an easy one to solve, and best of all, any child with an ordinary amount of intelligence will find little or no difficulty in solving it.

First of all, bring the Children to the Old English Village, and find SANTA CLAUS. Ask him to take the Names and Addresses of the Children, for one of GRACE BROS.' XMAS PUZZLES.

This Competition closes on 3rd December, so that early application should be made for a Puzzle.

SILK NEWS TO-DAY FROM SNOWS.

One hundredweight of Pig Iron cast into a small "pig" or billet might be worth thirty shillings, but put through the wonderful processes of the present day steelmaker, skilfully tempered and crafted into, let us say, the finest watch springs, it becomes worth £3000 or more.

SNOW'S SPECIALTY STORE

has transformed, so to speak, the sale of Women's Apparel from "Pig Iron" to "Watch Springs."

By providing intelligent service in the showing of goods and prompt delivery after they are chosen.

By searching the markets of the world, and delving deep into every detail that will reduce cost of production, transportation, and distribution.

By clipping overhead charges, and being willing to minimise profits.

—And by charging prices that are unalteringly lowest in the city.

THESE SILKS REVEAL CHANCES TO SAVE.

40-INCH SILK CREPE, in White, Ivory, Cream, Black, Sky, Turquoise, Pink, Salmon, Vieux Rose, Biscuit, Apricot, Lime, Mustard, Saxe, Navy, Tan, Brown, Grey, and Mole, very fine quality, excellent value.

SNOW'S PRICE, 1/11½ per yard.

CREPE DE CHINES are scarce. In France the prices have risen 12½ per cent., and, even now, demand exceeds supply. Snow's got in early, however, and 42-INCH CREPE DE CHINES are here, in White, Ivory, Cream, Black, Sky, Saxe, Nattier, Pink, Salmon, Vieux Rose, Lime, Mustard, Tan, Brown, Navy, Grey, Mole, Biscuit, and Apricot.

SNOW'S PRICES, 3/11½ and 4/11 per yard.

A new shipment of ALL-SILK FLORAL NINON, 42 inches wide, in White and Coloured Grounds, with small rosebud and other neat designs. 2/6 and 3/11½ per yard.

42-inch ALL-SILK NINON, in the latest shades, fine quality, and worth 2/11½ per yard.

SNOW'S PRICE, 2/6 only.

27-inch HEAVYWEIGHT JAP. SILK, in different qualities, ranging in price from 1/1½, 1/3, 1/4½, 1/6½, 1/9, 1/11½, 2/3, 2/6, to 2/11.

34-INCH HEAVYWEIGHT SHANTUNG SILK, excellent quality, free from all dressing and absolutely all silk, 1/4½, 1/6½, 1/9, 1/11½, 2/6, 2/11, 3/6, and 3/11.

34-INCH ASSAM SILK, very fine quality, still finer prices, 4/6, 4/11, and 5/6 per yard.

Just to hand, a very fine SILK CREPE DE CHINE, 42 to 44 inches wide, in Black, White, Ivory, and Cream. We could sell it to any wholesaler at double the price, but Snow's was always a store for the people.

SNOW'S PRICES are: 5/11, 6/11, 7/11, 8/11, and 9/6.
